Rights Law Won't Be Defied, Johnson Says

U. S. Encouraged By Aggressiveness Of S. Vietnamese

Gen. Taylor Preparing for Departure Next Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP) — High U.S. officials pronounced themselves encouraged Saturday by reports of new aggressiveness by South Vietnamese troops in battle against the Communist guerrillas.

"But let's not go overboard," said one senior Pentagon official cautioning against premature optimism.

"There have been only a few such actions so far. Let's see whether the pattern continues."

After a long and dismal period of apparent deterioration and defeat, reports in recent days have told of South Viet Nam's soldiers slashing at the Communists and inflicting heavy casualties.

A top general pounded one fist into an open palm in a gesture of elation, and said "they're starting to fight the way we've been wanting them to."

But, like the civilian official, the general tried to restrain possible over-optimism. He said he awaits further developments before making any judgments on the long-range significance on

Boy, 5, Dies After Falling From Tractor

New London Youth Crushed by Wheels Of Wagon Saturday

BEAR CREEK — A five-year-old Bear Creek boy was killed when he fell off a tractor and was crushed to death under the wheels of a wagon on State 76 about four miles south of here at 2:35 p.m. Saturday.

Lyle Young

Lyle Young Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Young, route 2, New London, became Outagamie County's 13th traffic victim of the year and third in three days.

Young, riding on the rear draw bar, was thrown from the tractor and run over by the right front and rear wheels of a wagon being pulled by the tractor.

An uncle, Anthony A. Young, 30, route 2, New London, was driving the tractor.

The boy was pronounced dead on arrival at Clintonville Community Hospital. Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said the boy's death was the fifth highway death in the county this month.

Young was one of eight children, six girls and two boys.

Kemps reported that death, almost instantaneous, was caused by severe damage to the neck and the back of the head.

Randy Berndt, 6, of Milwaukee, was injured fatally Saturday when he was struck by a car while playing on the steps of a neighbor's home. Police said they are holding the driver of the car which they said jumped the curb, sideswiped a tree and struck the boy.

The death of the two boys raised Wisconsin's 1964 highway toll to 455, compared with 373 a year ago on the same date.

Marquette to Reconstruct Ancient Chapel

Building Bought In France and Shipped to U. S.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—An early 15th Century French chapel in which Joan of Arc is believed to have prayed will be reconstructed stone by stone on the Marquette University campus, The Rev. William F. Kelly, president of the school, said Saturday.

The chapel now is located on the Jericho, N.Y., estate of Marc B. Rojtman, a New York financier and former Milwaukee industrialist and is a gift to the university from Rojtman and his wife.

Bought Chapel

Mrs. Gertrude Hill Gavin, daughter of the late railroad magnate James J. Hill, bought the chapel in France in 1927 and brought it to this country where she had it re-erected on her 50-acre estate. The Rojtmans acquired the estate in 1962.

The chapel measures 46 by 21 feet and has a steeply pitched roof covered by heavy antique roof tiles and crowned by a spire.

Joan of Arc is believed to have prayed in the chapel in March, 1429, at the time of her historic meeting with the Dauphin of France, later Charles VII. At that meeting, which started the "mission of liberation" of the 17 -year- old Joan, she promised the Dauphin she would raise the English of Orleans. Originally known as Chapelle de St. Martin, the building was located in Chasse, in the Loire Valley.

Campus Mall

The university is considering locating the chapel in an area, now a parking lot, that eventually will be part of a campus mall.

Each stone will be removed and numbered at the Rojtmn estate before the chapel is moved here. Rojtman estimated that it would take six to eight weeks for the chapel to be dismantled and the university plans to begin reconstruction next spring.

Knowles Says 'Creative Energy' Needed in State

WHITEFISH BAY (AP) — Warren P. Knowles, Republican candidate for governor, said Saturday night that Wisconsin needs "the creative energy of its best brains in the coming years, dedicated to looking ahead rather than backward."

Speaking at a North Shore Republican Club reception, Knowles said the need for creativity was "particularly necessary in the fields of education, local government and economic growth."

He cited "the crushing problems of our inner core city districts, with evre mounting population, diminishing tax bases, and the social problems of minority groups."

Another Congolese Rebel Out of Exile

Premier Adoula Admits His Days Are Numbered

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Another former Congolese rebel came home from exile Saturday, hard on the heels of Moise Tshombe. Premier Cyrille Adoula acknowledged that his own days are numbered as the nation's leader. And, at about the same time, a provincial president was reported assassinated.

Flying home from Spain, after Tshombe appealed for reconciliation of all Congolese, was Albert Kalonji, who is regarded by a million Baluba tribesmen in diamond-rich South Kasai as a god-emperor. He fled two years ago after being toppled from power by a central government coup in South Kasai.

Kalonji's Return

Kalonji's return left only Antoine Gizenga, head of the Communist-backed, breakaway Stanleyville regime in 1961, absent from the gathering of former outcasts. Gizenga has been held prisoner on Bula-Bemba Island in the mouth of the Congo River. Reports circulated, that Gizenga has been freed as part of a "round table of reconciliation" demanded by all political groups.

In Elizabethville it was reported that President Jason Sendwe of North Katanga Prov-

Chicago Police Vow to Halt Gang Assaults

CHICAGO (AP)—A police official said Saturday, in the wake of Friday's roving teenage gang assaults, that "canine police will be used to patrol parks during the day" if the trouble continues.

Police dogs now are used only for night patrol of parks.

Deputy Police Supt. James B. Conlisk said the gang attacks by high school students on persons in the Lincoln Park area were viewed as spontaneous incidents. But he warned that similar acts of violence will be dealt with severely.

"We will put an end to this type of activity immediately," said Robert J. Lynskey, police task force commander.

Czechs to Sell U. S. Papers, Magaiznes

PARIS (AP)– American and other newspapers and magazines will be placed on sale to foreign visitors in Red-ruled Czechoslovakia, starting July 1

A group of Western circulation managers in Paris, arranged the deal with Viktor Lederer of the Czechoslovak postal system for the first such sales since the Communists seized power in Prague in 1948

Mild Heart Attack

Shastri's Illness Could Send India Into Leadership Crisis

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—A month after Prime Minister Nehru's death, illness that an aide called a mild heart attack has felled his successor in India's leadership, Lal Bahadur Shastri.

The 59-year-old prime minister was bedfast Saturday, and the nation faced the possibility of another leadership crisis. Physicians ordered all Shastri's engagements canceled and treated him for what they called overstrain and a slight fever.

"There is no cause for anxiety," the government's All-India radio said in a nationwide broadcast.

Mindful of the emotional impact of Nehru's illness and death on the Indian people, a government spokesman reiterated those reassuring words Saturday night and said the prime minister was rested and cheerful.

A top aide of Shastri—a highly placed informant who preferred not to be identified by name — told The Associated Press that Shastri, who survived a serious heart seizure five years ago, suffered a mild heart attack at 10 p.m. Friday. He said a team of doctors instituted emergency treatment to prevent further damage.

The family at first denied this, then retracted the denial. A government official, at a news conference, refused to confirm or deny that Shastri was again a heart patient.

Shastri's son Hari said "timely precautions prevented a recurrence of the 1959 heart attack," which left him near death and unconscious for hours.

Hari said his father, a Moderate Socialist who was sworn in as prime minister June 9, had been exhausted for the past three days. Contributing to Shastri's fatigue was a heated conference with chief ministers of the Indian states about the nation's chronic food shortages.

After Nehru's death May 27, the leadership vacuum created by his lingering illness was filled quickly by Shastri and there were signs the new prime minister's day and night efforts to get India back on the road were succeeding

Lee Harvey Oswald Reveals Innermost Feelings in Writing 'Historic Diary'

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald wrote in his diary he was so discouraged when Russian police punctured his dream of obtaining Soviet citizenship that he slashed a wrist. Later, he wrote, life in Russia convinced him he did not want to become a Soviet citizen after all

The diary was reported in the Dallas Morning News Saturday in a copyright story by staff writer Hugh Aynesworth

Oswald's Russian guide found him, bleeding and unconscious, and saved the life of the man police say killed President John F. Kennedy four years later Oswald was killed by Jack Ruby two days after the assassination last Nov. 22.

Historic Diary

In some places in the diary he related the exhilaration he felt when his attempt to renounce his American citizenship brought him attention.

Oswald titled his document, 'Historic Diary."

The young Marxist, discharged from the U.S. Marines, related love affairs with Russian women, the drabness of his life although he fared better than the average Russian, and some disillusionment with the Soviet Union by Russians themselves.

He began the diary Oct 16, 1959, the day he arrived in Moscow and was assigned Intourist guide Rimma Shenkova He ended it March 27, 1962, after the birth of his first child and after he had obtained permission for his family to accompany him to the United States.

He told Rimma on his arrival that "I want to apply for Russian citizenship."

Agrees to Help

"She is flabbergasted, but agrees to help," he wrote in difficult-to-read handwriting with frequent spelling errors.

"I explain I am a Communist," the diary continued "She is politely sympathetic, but uneasy now She tries to be a friend to me She feels sorry for me I am something new."

For five days, Rimma took

President At Dinner in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLJS, Minn. (AP) (AP) — President Johnson said Saturday night recent events in Mississippi "again illuminate how painful can be the path to racial justice." He said, "May God grant us understanding."

Johnson, in a speech prepared for a Democratic fund-raising dinner, said Congress is about to pass "the strongest and best civil rights bill in this century." But, he added, "No law can instantly destroy the differences shaped over centuries."

Without naming Mississippi, but obviously with that state in mind, he said, "The events of the past few days again illuminate how painful can be the path to racial justice."

New Law

Johnson said, however, that enactment of a new civil rights law would do much to eliminate racial injustice.

"For once a law is passed," he said, "no man can defy it and no leader can refuse to enforce it."

The chief executive said, "If our laws are flouted, our society will fail."

He went on to say that one law is more hallowed than the civil rights bill or even the Constitution.

Respect Neighbor

"That law commands every man to respect the life and dignity of his neighbor — to treat others as he would be treated. That law asks not only obedience in our action but understanding in our heart."

Then he went on to ask that God grant the American people understanding.

The President flew to Minnesota from Detroit for an over-

Guerrillas Down U. S. Copter and Kill 2 Crewmen

APLONG HOI, Viet Nam (AP) —Communist guerrillas brought a U.S. helicopter down in flames, killing two American crewmen but touching off a fierce groundfight that killed 40 Reds U.S. military advisers reported Saturday.

The battle raged Friday at Aplong Hoi, nine miles south of the Vih Binh province capital of Tra Vinh in the steaming Mekong Delta.

In addition to the two U.S. airmen killed — the 145th and 146th American combat deaths in Viet Nam — two U.S. gunners were wounded, one seriously. A Vietnamese army observer aboard also was killed.

Their helicopter was flying a support mission for a two-company ranger operation 50 miles southwest of Saigon. Officials said it was hit by Communist Viet Cong ground fire.

The rangers quickly moved up and located the point where the ground fire originated A battle raged for most of the day. Sixteen government troops were reported killed and 18 wounded.

Diesels, Six Cars Derailed Near Medina

C & NW Crews Begin Clearing Of Right of Way

MEDINA — Chicago and North Western Railroad Co. crews today began work on rerailing two diesel engines and six freight cars that left the tracks about one mile south of here Saturday.

The derailment occurred about 3 p.m. Saturday. Railway officials in Green Bay said the derailment probably was caused by "a rail kink due to excessive heat."

Rerailing is expected to take all day The rear trucks of the lead diesel were off the tracks; the second engine was tipped over.

F C McCormick, Antigo, a C & NW brakeman, received "minimal" injuries when the second engine, in which he was riding, tipped over. He was treated by Dr. James Bergwall of Hortonville.

The engines were pulling a freight train of 56 cars when the derailment occurred. The train was going from North Fond du Lac to Eland.

Change Is Terrible

Must Happiness be Denied Lottery Pot Winners Because of Big Money

BY JOHN R. FARROW

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy Gault, 57, picked up a record English soccer pools winning check worth 300,684 pounds — $841,915 — Tax free — and the world was his oyster.

He was the envy of 10 million people who play the pools every week.

But Jimmy, the little Irishman with a $28 a week job on a building site, suddenly found that money brought problems.

Sacks of begging letters — thousands of them from all parts of the world — poured into his home.

No longer was he just "Little Jimmy." He was Jimmy with the lolly—money.

Soon after his big win — he shared it with a half-blind cousin — Jimmy went on a trip around the world.

Back home in Britain he moved to try and rid himself of the people trying to get money out of him.

He enjoyed himself in the garden and helped breed horses. Still the begging letters came.

After five years of riches, Jimmy died from thrombosis. He had suffered from it for months.

His cousin, Billy Stranaghan, died a few months earlier. He was 76. Billy left $63,364 after spending a lot in a bid to restore his sight and also contributing secretly to charities.

Money Tale

The story of Jimmy and Billy is the sort that people read about.

"The success stories are the ones that rarely get into the papers," said pools official Norman Martlew.

"We find that once people become adjusted to their new wealth they are far happier human beings than when we first met.

"At least eight of the 10 big money winners were genuinely hard up before winning. Seems as though fate doesn't worry about rich people and hands out prizes to those who deserve them most."

Rich Winner

But one rich couple—Charlie and Elsie Dormer—did land $112,000 in the pools. Dormer is a near millionaire as a transport boss.

"I wish we had never won," said Mrs. Dormer. "It has brought us nothing but misery.

"We said we would give the winnings to charity. Suddenly we became a human peepshow. People turned up and just stared.

"We've both been treated for nervous trouble."

Their win came in 1962 and they've had about 20,000 begging letters.

Dream House

But happiness and contentment came to the Hugheses who won $210,000 10 years ago.

They own a dream house with modern equipment everywhere. There's a luxury auto in the garage. They've got a holiday cottage.

They're happy—and her husband is back in business at his old job of bricklaying. This time as his own boss.

"We've had our problems," said Dorothy Hughes. "But we are a whole lot happier now than we were before that fortune came our way."

Charlie Cooper, the 46-year-old bachelor who hit the jackpot of $630,000 earlier this year, said after his win:

"My only hope is that it does not give me a heart attack. The amount I won was frightening."

Charlie looked miserable in most photographs taken after his win. He even got an offer to appear in a Hollywood film to "cheer him up."

He turned down Hollywood, paid a week's rent for people living on a municipal estate and then went for a holiday to get "away from it all."

The bill for the rent came to $4,200. "And he's not all that miserable," said a friend of the family. "He's just miserable with all the publicity and the begging letters."

Wealthy Misery

Harry Hayes won $142,800 — and found that life was a misery.

His new bungalow at Portishead, near Bristol, was beside a bus stop.

In the queue were people who lined up and shouted through the window: "Give us some of the money you've won."

The bus company had to move the stop further down the road.

Raymond Collins bought a new car out of his winnings early in 1963. Six weeks later he was dead. He died in an auto crash.

Molly Muirhead and her $50.40 a week husband landed $140,300. Then said Molly: "We're nervous wrecks. It's too much. But I reckon we'll get accustomed to it."

Molly got this advice from Vivien Nicholson, whose miner husband Keith won $426,493 two years previously — in 1961.

"You'll grow to live with it—just like we have. At first it's strange. But you soon get used to it."

A Picture of Misery is Charlie Cooper, 46, London bachelor, after winning 225,000 pounds ($630,000) in the English soccer pool two months ago. He called the size of the tax-free jackpot "frightening." He's still upset, but a friend says that now his misery comes from publicity and begging letters, and adds, "He'll be happy." (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

New Millionaire Charlie Dormer and his wife, Elsie, announced that they would give their winnings to charity when they hit the English soccer pools jackpot for 40,000 pounds ($112,000) in 1962. They are seen at their luxurious home in South Woodford, Essex, in May, 1962. Twenty thousand begging letters later both had been treated for nervous trouble. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Green Bay Port Breaks Its Shipping Record

International Trade in 1963 Tops '62 Mark in Value of Shipments

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY—Green Bay did $23.4 million worth of business directly with 47 nations of the world in overseas shipping in 1963.

The dollar value of cargoes moving across docks here in both export and import trade is a new season record, according to Port Director John F. Sainsbury.

A foreign trade statistical summary for the 1963 season, now available on the basis of data prepared by the U S Census Bureau foreign trade division, emphasizes Green Bay's growing role as a world port on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway, Sainsbury added.

Statistics for 1963 overseas commerce here cover the value, types and weight of commodities, as well as the destinations of export shipments from Green Bay and the points of origin of import cargoes arriving here on ocean freighters.

High Lights

Among highlights of the 1963 overseas shipping season

—Manufactured and agricultural commodities worth $23,483,082 moved in foreign trade through Green Bay. This compares with a season total of $15,337,623 for 1962 with the $8 million value increase entirely in exports.

The $23.4 million cargo value figure for 1963 is divided between $15,446,942 worth of exports and $8,036,140 worth of imports. The figures the previous year were $7,222,718 in exports and $8,114,905 in imports.

—Foreign trade through Green Bay involved exports to 42 foreign countries and imports from 13 other nations during 1963. For 1962 there were exports to only 27 nations and imports from 14 countries. Nations involved in two-way trade through Green Bay included Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, France, West Germany, Finland and Portugal.

Tonnage Down

—Foreign trade cargoes, although significantly higher in value, were down slightly in tonnage. For 1963, overseas trade amounted to 132,449 tons as compared to 138,698 tons for the previous shipping season.

During the past season, exports totaled 113,004,177 pounds and imports 150,893,260 pounds. These figures compare to 106,201,382 pounds of exports and 171,194,891 pounds of imports during 1962.

—Green Bay retained its ranking as third in foreign trade among west bank Lake Michigan ports, topped only by Chicago and Milwaukee. Other Lake Michigan ports involved in foreign trade are Escanaba, Racine - Kenosha, Marinette, Manitowoc and Sheboygan.

—To discharge and take on the foreign cargoes here, ocean-going freighters made 92 port calls here during 1963. In addition, 19 vessels called here in U S-Canadian waterborne commerce.

Chief Products

—The 1963 overseas shipping summary indicates that the chief exports here, both in value and tonnage, are vegetables, dried milk, cheese, bentonite clay and industrial and agricultural machinery. The chief import commodities are woodpulp, sugar, salt, steel products, plywood and twine.

Nations involved in the export trade at Green Bay include Brazil, Morocco, Colombia, Algeria, India, Portugal, Yugoslavia, Poland, Italy, Sweden, Greece, The Congo, Dominican Republic, Jordan, Japan, Egypt, Turkey, Switzerland, The Netherlands, Mozambique, West Germany, Pakistan, Viet Nam, Libya, Tunisia, Togo, Spain, Ceylon, Taiwan, Belgium, Ghana, Salvador, Great Britain, Iran, Denmark, Uruguay, Liberia, France, Finland and Lebanon.

Import trade originated in the following nations: Canada, France, Sweden, India, Finland, The eNtherlands, The Congo, Belgium, Portugal, West Germany, French Equatorial Africa, Philippine Republic and Denmark.

ince had been killed along with three of his political associates.

No Communications

Communications with Sendwe's capital, Albertville, were not in operation and confirmation was lacking. Albertville, on the western shore of Lake Tanganyika, has been alternately in the hands of rebels and government forces in the past few weeks.

Sendwe, who once opposed Tshombe but later became reconciled with him, was last reported seen on June 18 trying to flee the capital. Several weeks ago he claimed he was beaten up and threatened with death by rebels who told him he was too pro-American.

U.S. strategists believe the the Congo is again heading into deep crisis, with Red China seeking to reap a harvest this time.

Evidence Obtained

Considerable evidence has been obtained showing that Peking is backing up with subversive acts its propaganda claim that the large, strategic and potentially wealthy central African land presents an "excellent revolutionary situation."

The Communist Chinese are predicting that guerrillas like the Red Viet Cong in South Viet Nam will win great victories in the Congo.

the battlefield events of the past 10 days or so.

These sources preferred to remain anonymous.

Meanwhile, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor worked his staff overtime preparing for his departure for Saigon to become U.S. ambassador and, in effect, viceroy in charge of the whole U.S. civilian and military effort in Viet Nam.

Target Date

It is understood that Taylor hopes to leave for Saigon about next weekend, although the target date has changed a couple of times. Replacing Taylor as the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff will be Gen. Earle G. Wheeler.

Officials stressed that they expect Taylor to bring strength and unified leadership to the entire U. S. effort in South Viet Nam, covering political and economic programs as well as prosecution of the war against the guerrillas.

Authorities say the advent of Taylor as top man in Viet Nam does not signal any major change in the already intensified U.S. drive to beef up the Vietnamese forces, to help organize a stable government in Saigon and throughout the country, and to get things on the winning track after two military coups and resultant turmoil.

him on tours of Moscow. On the morning of Oct. 21 he met with a Russian official he described as "balding, stout, black suit, fairly good English." He told the official he wanted Soviet citizenship.

"Why?"

"I gave him vague answers about 'great Soviet Union,'" Oswald wrote. He said he was shocked when the Russian told him, "U.S.S.R. is only great in literature."

Visa Extension

"I am stunned. I reiterate. He says he will check and let me know whether my visa will be extended (it expires today)."

At 6 p.m. on Oct. 21, Russian police telephoned Oswald in his hotel room, Oswald related, and told him he had two hours to start moving out of the country.

"I am shocked! My dreams! I retire to my room. I have $100 left. My fondest dreams are shattered because of a petty official, because of bad planning. planned so much!

"7 p.m. I decide to end it. Soak wrist in cold water to numb the pain. Then slash my left wrist. Then place into bathtub of hot water.

"I think 'When Rimma comes at 8 to find me dead, it will be a great shock.'

Found Unconscious

Rimma found him unconscious, the floor and tub blood-stained. She called an ambulance and Oswald regained consciousness in a hospital's mental ward.

Oswald was released from the hospital Oct. 28. He moved from the Hotel Berlin to the Hotel Metropole.

Rimma obtained an appointmet for him at th e panssport and registration office. He again asked for Russian citizenship. Three days later he took a taxi to the U.S. Embassy where he saw an official, John A. McVickers.

"I took out my American passport and lay it on the desk and said, 'I have come to dissolve my American citizenship,' the diary related.

"He says I am a fool," Oswald wrote. "I state, 'My mind is made up' and from this day forward I consider myself no citizen of the U.S.A."

Soviet Official

One month after his arrival, a Soviet official said he could remain for a time, and later he was told he could have a residence permit but not citizenship.

On Jan. 4 he was instructed to get money from the Red Cross to settle his bills and to reach his work assignment in Minsk, 468 miles southwest of Moscow. The U.S. Red Cross said it has no record that he obtained money from that organization.

Oswald wrote that the mayor of Minsk, Conrade Shrapof, promised him a rent-free apartment. On Jan. 13, he went to work at the Minsk radio factory in a good job as a "checker" metal worker at 700 rubles a month. The Red Cross sent him another check for 700 rubles each month, he said.

'Living Big'

"I'm living big and am very satisfied," he wrote. But he complained that he didn't like the pictures of Lenin or the compulsory physical training at the factory.

He was assigned an apartment although Russians had been on the list to obtain one for five or six years. "It has a splendid view from two balconies of the river," he wrote. "Almost rent free (60 rubles a month)."

At the factory he met a man of about 40, Andrei Tovli. At Tovli's home during a party, the Russian told Oswald, "Go back to the United States."

"It's the first opposition I have heard. I respect Tovli. He has seen the world. He says many things and relates many things I don't know about the U.S.S.R. I begin to feel uneasy inside. It's true!"

Year Later

Less than a year later his disillusionment is complete.

"As my Russian improves, I become increasingly conscious of just what sort of a society I live in. Mass gymnastics, compulsory afterwork meetings, usually political information meeting, compulory attendance at lecture and the sending of the entire shop collective (except me) to pick potatoes on a Sunday at a state collective farm.

He wrote that he fell in love with Ella Germain, "a very attractive Russian Jew I have been going walking with lately, works at the radio factory."

He told of a "conquest" of a music student, an affair that lasted only a few weeks. He related that he had "a light affair" with another woman.

But Ella Germain spurned what he called "my dishonest advances," and when he proposed marriage she turned him down. She said she didn't love him, and, anyway, he might be arrested simply because he was an American.

Wanted Citizenship

Jan. 4, 1961, he wrote, Soviet officials asked him if he still wanted citizenship. He said he only wanted his residential passport extended. For the remainder of January, he penned only four lines:

"I am starting to reconsider my desire about staying. The work is drab. The money I get has nowhere to be spent. No nightclubs or bowling alleys, no places of recreation except the trade union dances.

"I have had enough."

Feb. 1 that year he wrote the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. "I state 'I would like to go back to U.S.!'"

He went to a dance May 17, 1961, at the trade union.

"Boring," he wrote, "but I am introduced to a girl with a French hairdo and red dress with white slippers."

Her name was Marina, and on April 31 (as listed in the diary, although there is no April 31) they were registered as married. "We are man and wife," he wrote.

night stay, to raise funds for the Democratic party and woo the voters.

Farm Question

In advance of the money-raising dinner, the President addressed the Democratic-Farmer-Labor party convention in a half-filled St. Paul auditorium, sounding a call to "keep America moving" and outlinging a campaign blueprint that mirrored the pattern of his recent speech-making forays into all corners of the land.

In discussing the farm question, Johnson conceded, "I do not yet know the answer to all the problems of agriculture."

Three Persons Advised To See Physician After Oshkosh Auto Crash

OSHKOSH — Three persons received injuries and were advised to see a physician in an accident 1½ miles west of here on State 21 at noon Saturday.

According to Winnebago County police, a car driven by Henry E. Raetlig, 40, 3896 Highland Shore, was struck from behind by a car driven by Mrs. Edna M. Marten, Menomonee Falls, when the Raetlig vehicle stopped behind a third vehicle.

Raetlig complained of a sore left arm and shoulder. Mrs. Martin received bruises to her knees. A passenger in the Marten car, Paul H. Marten, Menomonee Falls, suffered a bruised forehead.

Driver Escapes Injury In Freak Accident

OSHKOSH — An Oshkosh man escaped injury in a freak mishap involving his car, a tree and a clothes line pole Saturday evening.

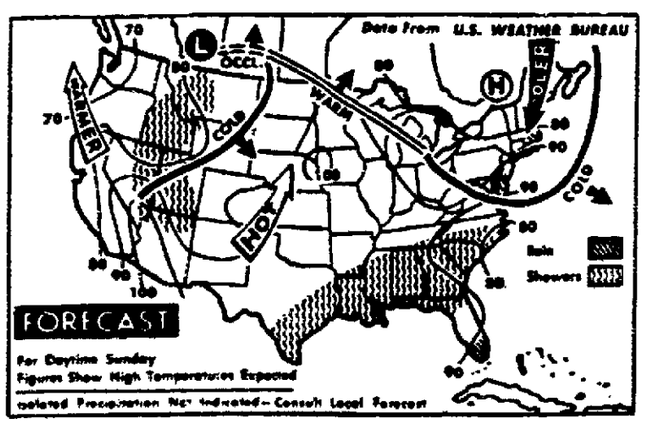

Paul H. Zarling, 69, 1622 Altoma Blvd., told police he was coming out of his driveway when his brakes failed. The vehicle hit a tree across the street, swung in a circular pattern, jumped a curb and hit a clothes line pole in the Zarling backyard.

Damage to the auto was estimated at $150.

$450 Damages Caused In 2-Car Collision

OSHKOSH — Some $450 in damage was caused to two cars in an accident at 3:48 p.m. Saturday two miles west of here on Cnuoty Trunk B.

A car driven by Dixon R. Jacobson, 32, Winneconne, was east-bound when struck by a car driven by Gerold G. Gumz, 20, 928 Waugoo Ave., Winnebago County police said. Gumz was attempting to pass the Jacobson car as Jacobson turned left onto LaBelle Shore Road, police said.

Showers and Thunderstorms are expected again today in the Rocky Mountain area, south Atlantic states, and Gulf coast region. Fair weather is forecast elsewhere. While warmer temperatures are expected in the Pacific northwest and the Great Lakes region, cooler weather is forecast for the Rockies and mid-Atlantic states. (AP Wirephoto Map)

West German Steel Giant Turns to Reds for Trade

Plant Built by Goering Needs Orders to Stay in Business

BY CARL HARTMAN

SALZGITTER, Germany (AP) —Huge factories that Hermann Goering built to arm the Nazi push to the east now are looking for orders from the Soviets to make them profitable again.

Salzgitter and its vast industrial complex lie on the great Mittelland Canal, which flows into Red-ruled East Germany less than 50 miles away.

"If we would ship freely to the East," says Paul Rheinlander, who runs Salzgitter's steel division, "there's no place more advantageous to ship from."

Red Business

West Germany, despite its anti-Communist stand, does more business with the Soviet bloc than any other Western country and is working to develop still more trade. The Communists need steel and steel products but they have little to ship in exchange.

Doing more business with the Communists could help turn the Salzgitter industrial concern into a paying proposition. One of the largest businesses in Europe, it had a turnover of $846 million last year. But since 1962 it has paid no dividends to its only stockholder — the Federal Republic of West Germany.

This is a legacy from the Nazis. The Salzgitter works were started in 1937 to make Germany independent of foreign suppliers of steel. There were big ore reserves — 2.5 million tons—but they were not rich and they had a high acid content that made them impractical to work until a new process was developed in the early 1930s. This was done by H. A. Brassert, an American steel works engineer. He planned both Salzgitter and a similar plant at Corby, England.

Hit Hard

Since the war, declining steel prices have hit Salzgitter hard. Some experts began saying that the mining operation ought to be closed down. The West German government, reluctant to depopulate the border area, decided against it. The unprofitable mining operation is being de-emphasized, and more money is being put into other branches.

Ludwig Erhard, the West German chancellor, is strong for private enterprise and doesn't fancy government ownership of industry. But there isn't much he can do about Salzgitter. A firm that pays no dividends would not find many eager buyers for a stock issue, the way the prosperous Volkswagen works did.

Jan Peerce Injures Left Leg Slightly

$1.5 Million Pledges For Milwaukee's Music Hall-Theater

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gifts and pledges for Milwaukee's proposed music hall-theater totaled nearly $1.5 million or about a quarter of the goal, the kickoff dinner of the campaign was told Thursday night.

Edmund Fitzgerald, a co-chairman of the drive, said the largest gift of $500,000 came from an anonymous donor.

Next largest gifts were of $250,000 each by The Journal Company and the First Wisconsin National Bank.

The Journal Company gift was made in memory of Harry J. Grant, veteran board chairman of the company, who died last July.

Plans call for the structure to be built on the east bank of the Milwaukee River as the main building in a proposed center for the performing arts.

The other co-chairman is Irwin Maier, president of the Journal Company and publisher of The Milwaukee Journal and The Milwaukee Sentinel.

Most Viewers Don't Watch Commercials

NEW YORK (AP) — Advertising agencies are turning out television commercials at a rate of about 40,000 a year, most of which reach the air. And if some superwoman housewife last year had dedicated herself to watching her set 18 hours a day, seven days a week, she would have been exposed to 115 sales pitches a day.

These statistics were gathered by an advertising executive, Gordon Webber, for a speech and reprinted in the current issue of the trade magazine Broadcasting.

Webber, however, went on to note that, in normal usage of television, "there are disturbing signs to the effect that while the housewife is looking at some (commercials), there are an awful lot of them she isn't looking at, or having looked at, can't remember."

He reported the results of a recent survey made of one popular hour-long program which carried eight commercials. It found that 21 per cent of a sampling of viewers could not remember any of the commercials; 19 per cent, only one and 17 per cent, two.

What was most disturbing to advertisers was the large number of viewers who were not able to remember a single sales message on the show.

Television columnists, like other tillers of the vineyard, take vacations, and this one is about to start one.

Meteoric Career

Canada's Guy Favreau Is Man of Many Parts

BY FRED COLEMAN

OTTAWA (AP)—Guy Favreau is minister of justice, the Canadian counterpart of U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Favreau also is government leader in the Canadian House of Commons, a job something like the one Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield holds.

And Favreau heads the federal wing of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson's Libral party in Quebec, the French-speaking province with 75 seats in the 265-seat House of Commons.

There is no American equivalent for Favreau's third job.

There is probably no American equivalent for Favreau, either.

Quick Rise

Only a year ago the burly, 46-year-old Montreal lawyer was a political unknown. Today he is a top contender for the Liberal party leadership and the prime minister's office when Pearson retires.

He is riding perhaps the most meteoric political career in Canadian history.

He entered politics for the first time last year and was elected to the House of Commons.

3 Key Posts

Within a year he was given all three key posts, moving ahead of more experienced French-Canadian Cabinet ministers to become Pearson's top French-speaking political lieutenant. He may eventually give up the House leadership to concentrate on the other two jobs.

The Liberal party has traditionally rotated its leadership between French and English Canadians. When Pearson steps down, if the traditional pattern holds true, Favreau, as the senior French-Canadian in the Cabinet, should succeed him.

Observers here and in Quebec City speculate that Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec, once thought of as Pearson's likely heir, has ruled out his chances for national office. Quebec has been pressing the federal government for more political and economic independence and Lesage has led the fight for the French-speaking province.

Error by Charlie Smith Leads to 7 Unearned Runs in Second Frame

MILWAUKEE (AP)— Charlie Smith's error led to seven unearned runs in the second inning that carried Milwaukee to a 9-6 triumph over the New York Mets Saturday.

A two-run homer by Hank Aaron and a three-run double by Denis Menke powered the assault on starter Carl Willey and Al Jackson

Rico Carty also hit a home run for the Braves in the seventh after Ron Hunt connected in the Mets' half of the inning.

Hank Fischer received credit for the victory, only the second for the Braves in their last 11 games.

He had an 8-2 lead after the big second inning, but gave way to Chi Chi Olivo in the sixth. When Olivo failed to stem the tide, Bob Tiefenauer came in and blanked the Mets in the last 2 2-3 innings.

Smith fumbled Gene Oliver's grounder with one out in the second. Carty then walked. Frank Bolling singled, and after Fischer sacrificed, an intentional pass to Eddie Mathews filled the bases. Menke came through with a bases-clearing double, before Aaron sent Willey away with his 10th home run. Jackson gave up the final run of the wild session on two walks. Joe Torre's single and a passed ball.

Jackson gave up the final run of the wild session on two walks, Joe Torre's single and a passed ball.

After that, the Mets chipped away at Fischer and Olivo until they had shaved the deficit from six runs to two. But then Bob Tiefenauer stopped them and Carty gave the Braves a bit of insurance with his seventh inning homer off Jackson.

The defeat was the Mets' 14th in their last 16 games.

Foxes Sweep Doubleheader From Quincy

Glass, Beene Win In Closing Action Of First Round

QUINCY — The Fox Cities Foxes continued their 1-inning bombardment with eight runs in the fourth inning here in the second game of two en route to a doubleheader sweep over Quincy, 3-1, and 9-1, Saturday night.

The doubleheader closed the first half of the Midwest League season.

Fred Beene checked the Gems on three hits in the nightcap in his first start for the Foxes. Beene hurled the route and fanned 11.

Fred Rico opened the big fourth with a double and Ron Perez followed with one of the same. Stan Walters doubled in Perez and scored on Beene's 2-bagger.

Sepich Homers

Jim Pierce relieved starter George Lewis at this point and John Sepich greeted him with a two-run circuit smash, plating Beene.

John Matias was hit by a pitch and Ray Woitkowski singled. Rico, up for the second time in the inning, singled to score Matias and Woitkowski crossed the plate on Perez' ground out.

In the first game Henry King's brilliant relief job clamped the Quincy attack. King came on in relief of Jerry Glass in the fifth inning and yielded one hit in the three frames he worked. King fanned five and walked one.

Dave May's bat produced two runs in the fifth on a long triple to center field after John Sepich and John Matias singled. May scored later on Steve Huntz' grounder to second sacker Don Dillard, which he bobbled for an error.

Dillard greeted Glass with a lead-off triple to left in the first inning and scored Quincy's only run on Glen Mattison's single.

East Scores 18-15 Win Over West

George Mira's Passing Paces Comeback Victory in Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)— George Mira of Miami, Fla., dazzled the West with a brilliant second half passing show and led the underdog East to an 18-15 comeback victory in the All-American football game.

Mira, voted the most valuable player in a unanimous vote, hit with nine of 10 passes in the third period, including five in a row in a 75-yard touchdown drive. The march was climaxed by an 11-yard scoring toss to Paul Warfield of Ohio State.

After Matt Snell of Ohio State intercepted a pass by Don Trull of Baylor, Mira took the East in again, setting up the touchdown with a fine 31-yard broken field run. Rich Leeson plunged over for the score.

It was Mira again leading the way to a fourth quarter East touchdown, scored by little Sherman Lewis, Michigan State's 5-foot 9, 155-pound halfback.

Willie Grenshaw of Kansas State plunged home from the 2 for a West score in the second period and Dennis Claridge of Green Bay sneaked over from the 1 for the final score of the game in the fourth period.

A crowd of 21,112 watched the game on a perfect cool, clear night at War Memorial Stadium. The game is co-sponsored by the American Football Coaches Association and the Buffalo Evening News.

In the final seconds the West challenged but Bill Truax of Louisiana State broke through and smeared Trull for a 13-yard loss at a vital stage. Then Ralph Baker of Penn State intercepted a Trull pass to end it.

Scores Fourth Win in Five Legion Starts

WAUPACA — Waupaca's Legion baseball team collected its fourth win in five Fox Valley Legion League, Southern Division, starts as it downed Marion, 4-2, Saturday.

The win moved the hosts into second place in the loop, a position held by the losers prior to the contest.

Doug Kolb picked up the win, fanning eight and walking none, while Ken Frailing, who struck out nine and passed four, was the loser.

Paul Reyes paced the winners with three hits, while Dennis Brandenburg socked a double in Marion's losing cause.

Judy Torluemke Ties Miss Wright For Golf Lead

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Nineteen-year old Judy Torluemke of North Key Largo, Fla., moved into a tie with Mickey Wright of Dallas Saturday after 36 holes of the $10,000 Waldemar open with a score of 144.

Judy matched her one-under-par 72 of the first round over the 6,300-yard Tam O'Shanter Golf Club course. Leading-money winner Mickey faltered to 74 after a first round 70.

The final 18 holes will be played today.

They start the final round two strokes ahead of six others, including Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., who had 72 after a 74..

Also in the deadlock for third was Shirley Englehorn, whose 70 for the second round was low for the day.

Milwaukee's Lee Maye scores in a cloud of dust in the second inning of Saturday's game against the Mets in County Stadium. Pitcher Al Jackson covers the plate after uncorking a wild pitch. Jackson waited for the throw from catcher Jesse Gonder. The Braves won, 9-6. (AP Wirephoto)

Swan Clubs Also Triumphs in Kaukauna Meet

KAUKAUNA — Wally Lom's Bar, of Green Bay, decisioned Appleton's Subway Bar, 9-4, in the first second round contest of the Kaukauna Athletic Club softball tournament Saturday night.

De Pere's Swan Club outlasted Murphy's Corners (Skunk Hill), 1-0 in a first round game.

Don Rohde was the winning pitcher for Lom's. Charlie Miller was tagged with the loss. Hank Peerenboom homered and doubled for Subway.

Ron Lenya and Willie Taylor engaged in a mound duel in the 1-0 contest, with both hurling 2-hitters. Lenya was the winner. Swan Club scored an unearned run in the first inning.

Buschke Hurls 2-Hitter in Legion League

WRIGHTSTOWN — Manawa's Jim Buschke twirled a 2-hitter and struck out 14 as his teammates trounced Wrightstown, 7-0, Saturday in a Northern Division game of the Fox Valley Legion League.

Losing pitcher Terry Ferron fanned 16 but he couldn't keep the Manawa 12-hit attack down.

Buschke paced his own win with a triple, while Bill Teft and Frank Lieschow also collected 3-baggers.

Manawa scored four of its runs in the last inning.

Giants Wallop Dodgers, 9-1, to Move Within 7 Points of First-Place Phils

Marichal Hurls 10th Victory; Haller Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Tom Haller belted two homers for four runs and Juan Marichal won his 10th game in a 9-1 rout of Los Angeles that pulled San Francisco into a near-tie for the National League lead.

Orlando Cepeda also drove in four runs with a homer and single as the Giants exploded in the fourth and fifth innings for their third straight victory over the Dodgers and seventh in nine meetings.

Within 7 Points

Coupled with Philadelphia's loss at St. Louis, it moved the Giants within seven percentage points of the league-leading Phils.

Marichal retired the first ten batters, yielded a fourth-inning run on two hits and a ground ball, then gave up only three hits the rest of the way. The Dominican right-hander, 10-3, struck out eight.

A walk to Hal Lanier and first baseman Ron Fairly's error on Duke Snider's bounder put two runners on base for Cepeda's wind-carried homer over the right field wall in the fourth.

Haller followed with a longer belt over the same fence off starter and loser Joe Moeller, 4-7.

Indians Call Up Chico Salmon to Replace Alvis

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians called Chico Salmon up from their Portland farm club Saturday to replace Max Alvis.

Salmon was in Oklahoma City with the Pacific Coast League team for a weekend series and was to report immediately to the Indians in Boston.

A versatile player, Salmon has been used in the infield and the outfield by Portland. The Panamanian was regarded as one of the more promising young players with the Indians in spring training this year.

Alvis was stricken Friday with spinal meningitis and is in a Boston hospital.

Cardinals Hand Philadelphia 9-4 Setback; Javier Ties NL Record

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals scored four unearned runs on three errors and whipped the National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies 9-4 Saturday.

Lou Brock broke a 4-4 tie in the fourth inning with a two-run single after Philadelphia's Richie Allen bobbled a bunt and Tony Taylor dropped a throw.

Ken Boyer reached first when Roy Sievers let a throw get away to open the fifth inning and moments alter winning pitcher Curt Simmons singled home runs off hard-luck loser Rick Wise.

Settles Down

Simmons settled down after the teams traded four-run first innings and blanked the Phillies the rest of the way on six hits for his eighth victory against six defeats.

Simmons has beaten his former club 14 of 16 times since coming to the Cardinals as a free agent in 1960.

A two-run double by Danny Cater and Sievers' two-run single gave the Phillies a quick 4-0 lead in the first. But with two out in their half of the inning, the Cardinals hammered starter Dennis Bennett for four hits and a walk.

Bill White's double, the first of his three hits, drove in two runs and singles by Charlie James and Julian Javier brought home the other two.

Javier tied the - National League record for putouts for second basemen with 11.

Orioles Score 3-1 Win Over Senators

Powell Slams 3 Home Runs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boog Powell slammed three home runs Saturday as Baltimore won its fifth straight game by defeating Washington 3-1.

Powell drove the ball against the scoreboard in right field in the first inning, lined a homer over the right field fence in the fourth and hit his third over the right-center fence in the ninth. He grounded out in the sixth.

The outburst gave Powell four homers in his last five times at bat and six in five games at D.C. Stadium this season. He has 20 in all.

Milt Pappas of the Orioles allowed only three hits in seven innings as he recorded his sixth triumph in 10 decisions. He left for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The Senators, who now have lost five straight, scored in the fifth on Mike Brumley's two-out double and Ed Brinkman's single following a walk to Don Lock, the only one Pappas gave.

The outburst gave Powell four homers in his last five times at bat and seven in five successive games, tying a record previously shared by Babe Ruth, Jim Bottomley and Vic Wertz. Powell has 20 in all.

Mayville Legion Team Tips Appleton in 10th

Mayville exploded for three runs in the 10th inning and quelled a mild Appleton West uprising in the latter's half of the 10th for a 12-9 Fox Valley Legion League Southern Division victory here Saturday evening.

A triple by Spars and three singles produced Mayville's three runs in the 10th. Appleton jammed the sacks in their half of the inning but failed to score.

Tom Dillie hurled the route on the mound for the winners, fanning eight and walking seven in the process.

Appleton used four pitchers with the loss being tagged onto Ted Olson. Neil Weber worked the first three frames and Gary McIntyre hurled 3 2-3. Lee Kiepke contributed 1-3 of an inning and Olson hurled three frames.

The four Appleton pitchers fanned nine and walked eight.

Bob (Rocky) Bleier's triple was the top effort for the losers. Roger Huebner mustered three hits in five trips and Leon Birkholz, Keith Schroeder and Ron Brinkman added a pair.

Schroeder's single in the first scored three runs.

Mota Hits Pinch Homer

Pirates Rally to Win Fifth Game in Row

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente's two-run double and pinch hitter Manny Mota's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted Pittsburgh to a 4-2 victory over Cincinnati Saturday. It was the fifth straight triumph for the Pirates.

Bob Purkey was sailing along with a four-hit 2-0 lead when the Pirates struck in the eighth. Dick Schofield singled, Bill Virdon doubled, and both came home on Clemente's ground-rule double that bounced over the center field wall.

Bill Henry replaced Purkey and got Willie Stargell on a grounder before Mota batted for Jerry Lynch and hit his second homer to the upper stands in right field.

Al McBean, who relieved starter Steve Blass in the eighth was credited with his third victory without a defeat.

Blass gave up single runs in the fifth and sixth innings. Leo Cardenas led off the fifth with a walk, was sacrificed to second and scored on Pete Rose's single to center. Frank Robinson clouted his 14th homer in the sixth.

Nicklaus Fires 69, Ties Palmer For the Lead

5 Players Are 3 Strokes Behind At Cleveland

BY FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shot a 69 Saturday to tie Arnold Palmer for the third round lead in the $100,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament with 54-hole scores of 202, 11 under par.

The two held a three-stroke edge over their nearest competitors.

Nicklaus and Palmer staged a see-saw battle as they played in the same threesome for the first time this year.

They halved the first six holes, Nicklaus getting a par with a 35-foot putt on the third hole and missing a two-footer on the fourth. He sank a two-foot birdie putt on the seventh to go only one behind. Both birdied the eighth, Palmer with a 20-foot putt and Nicklaus from 12 feet.

Palmer went two strokes ahead with a four-putt birdie putt on No. 12 and then disaster struck. He three-putted No. 13 from 40 feet for a bogey. After driving into the rough and hitting over the green on No. 14, he three-putted for a double bogey six and was one stroke behind the par-shooting Nicklaus.

Birdie Long 16th

They were even again at No. 15 when Nicklaus drove over the short green and failed to reach the putting surface in two strokes. They both birdied the long 16th and the two closing holes to wind up the 54 holes all square.

Deadlocked in third place with 205 totals were Billy Casper, Tony Lema, Gary Player, Don Fairfield and R. H. Sikes Jr., the 1961-62 National Public Links champion appearing in his first PGA tournament as a professional.

Tied at 206 were Don January, Terry Dill and George Bayer. Bracketed at 207 were Fred Marti, Rex Baxter jr. and Al Geiberger, who led opening day with a 64.

Dan Sikes and Bruce Devlin, who had the day's best round of 67, were tied at 208 with Mason Rudolph, Miller Barber, Johnny Bulla and Ed Griffiths, the latter a former Ohio Open champion who does not play the tour.

Kaukauna '9' Handed First Legion Loss

Clintonville Wins With Aid of 5-Run Fifth

KAUKAUNA — A 5-run fifth inning proved to be the margin of victory for the Clintonville Legion nine here Saturday as it outlasted Kaukauna, 12-8.

The loss was the first for Kaukauna in Fox Valley Legion League Northern Division play. Clintonville is now 4-2.

Both teams used three pitchers, with the win going to Jerry Norder. Dave O'Brien was the loser.

Clintonville was led by Marshall Conradt with two doubles and two singles in five trips. He drove in four runs.

Clintonville's big fifth started with a walk to Sam Hogan, a fielder's choice (in which no play was made), and another walk to Gary Tveeten to load the sacks. Conradt singled in a pair of scores, and Jesse drove in one with a single. Don Thompson accounted for the last two runs in the inning with a one-base blow.

Kaukauna got two in the fourth and two in the fifth. Mike Andrews' triple in the fourth plated two runs.

The hosts rallied for four runs in the eighth on a walk to Ed Szozda and six singles; one each by Jim Vandenburg, Dennis Lappen, Jack Capen, Tom VanDrasek, Dennis Hilgenberg and Gary Weigman.

Kaukauna loaded the bases with one down in the sixth inning but failed to score as Norder fanned the last two hitters.

Improvement Reported for Max Alvis

BOSTON (AP) — Max Alvis, Cleveland Indians' third baseman, showed improvement Saturday after being stricken with spinal meningitis.

Dr. Thomas Tierney, team physician for the Boston Red Sox, said Alvis had a comfortable night and was improved.

He said Alvis was more comfortable Saturday, with much less pain. The disease is marked by headaches and painful stiffening of the neck.

Alvis became ill Friday.

He will be hospitalized probably for three weeks, but Dr. Tierney said it is difficult to say when he will be fully recovered.

Schoen Notches Win, With Help From Steffin

LITTLE CHUTE — Tom Schoen, with relief help from Don Steffin in the ninth inning, pitched the Menasha Legion team to a 9-3 Fox Valley Legion League Southern Division victory over Little Chute-Kimberly here Saturday.

Schoen limited the losers to three hits and three runs. Steffin had little difficulty in the ninth. Mark Pawlowski's double in the third was the only extra-base blow for the victors.

Menasha iced the verdict with four runs in the top of the ninth. Three errors, a walk and two hits plated the four tallies.

Schoen fanned eight and walked one. Jim VandenBoogaard was tagged with the loss. VandenBoogaard whiffed 10 and passed three. The lanky LC-K hurler accounted for two of his team's runs with a homer in the sixth inning.

Big Increase Noted in NFL Trading

Eagles, Redskins And Bears Are Busiest Teams

NEW YORK (AP)—Led by the Philadelphia Eagles, Washington Redskins and the champion Chicago Bears, the National Football League already has made more trades this year than they completed in all of last year.

By the end of June, 1963, the NFL was involved in a dozen transactions involving 21 players. Since the finish of the '63 season, the league has had 15 trades involving 38 players.

Philadelphia and Washington have made five each, including one between themselves. The Bears, who defeated the New York Giants in the championship game last December, have been the Western Conference's busiest trading team, with four.

The Eagles have acquired 13 new players and traded away six. The Redskins have added eight new players and dealt off four. The Bears picked up two and disposed of five. In addition, the Bears have picked up two future draft choices while the Redskins have traded away four.

1. Receiver Buddy Dial from Pittsburgh to Dallas for draft negotiation rights to rookie tackle Scott Appleton, Texas.
2. Center Ken Iman from Green Bay to Los Angeles for player to be named.
3. Fullback J. W. Lockett from Baltimore to Washington for a draft choice
4. Defensive tackle Dick Modzelewski from New York to Cleveland for receiver Bobby Crespino.
5. Flanker Tommy McDonald from Philadelphia to Dallas for defensive tackle John Myers, center-guard Lynn Hoyem and kicker Sam Baker.
6. Quarterback Norman Snead and defensive back Claude Crabb from Washington to Philadelphia for quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and defensive back Jimmy Carr.
7. Guard Palmer Pyle from Baltimore to Minnesota for linebacker Steve Stonebreaker.
8. Linebacker Sam Huff and rookie defensive lineman George Seals, Missouri, from New York to Washington for defensive end Adny Stynchula, offensive halfback Dick James and a draft choice
9. Offensive tackle J D Smith from Philadelphia to Detroit for defensive tackle Floyd Peters and fullback Ollie Matson
10. Rookie offensive halfback Dick Drummond, George Washington from Chicago to Washington for a draft choice.
11. Center Jim Ringo and running back Earl Gros from Green Bay to Philadelphia for linebacker Lee Roy Caffey and a draft choice.

Yankees Win in 10th

Tigers' Rakow Walks Home Winning Run

NEW YORK (AP)—Ed Rakow walked Tom Tresh with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th inning, forcing in the winning run, as the New York Yankees nipped Detroit 5-4 Saturday.

Rakow went to a 3-2 count to Tresh before walking him, forcing in Bobby Richardson.

Tiger pitchers Fred Gladding and Dick Egan walked the bases loaded after two were out. Rakow replaced Egan after Roger Maris received the third pass.

Rally for 3

The Yankees rallied for three runs in the sixth inning, tying the game with the help of Larry Sherry's wild pitch on a third strike.

Joe Pepitone's single with the bases loaded drove in the first two runs. Tresh, who had singled, stopped at second on Pepitone's hit but came home a minute later as Johnny Blanchard struck out. Sherry's pitch bounced back to the screen behind home plate.

Mickey Mantle hit his 15th homer for the Yankees in the fourth.

Bill Freehan belted four singles for Detroit, driving in a run in the two-run first and scoring one in the two-run third. Don Demeter knocked in a run in each of the innings.

Detroit starter Dennis McLain had to leave the game during the New York rally in the sixth after suffering an apparent rib injury on the right side of his back.

3 Records Broken

Hayes Pulls Up Lame After Winning AAU Title; Hansen Vaults 16/17 Feet

BY BOB GREEN

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP)—Fred Hansen, a 23-year-old Rice University graduate, rode his fiberglass pole to a 17 foot vault Saturday, but Olympics sprint hopeful Bob Hayes became a casualty after winning the 100-meter dash in the National AAU Track and Field Championships.

Hayes, the 190-pounder from Florida A&M who ranks as this country's prime hope of regaining Olympic sprint supremacy, pulled up lame after winning the 100 in 10.3 seconds.

Hansen glided over the 17-foot height with about four inches to spare after some seven hours of competition. In all, six vaulters cleared 16-4½ while both Hansen and veteran Dave Tork cleared 16-8.

It was the third time in a month that Hansen had cleared 17 feet or better. He was 17-2 two weeks ago in San Diego, Calif.

His performance, along with those of distance runner Pete McArdle and shot putter Randy Matson, set meet records in the bright sunshine at Rutgers University.

"I felt something pull," said Hayes after winning the 100 meters.

He said he may skip next week's Olympic Trials at New York. A physician said Hayes had sustained a slight pull in the upper left hamstring.

Matson, a 19-year-old who has just finished his freshman year at Texas A&M, broke the meet record for the shot put at 64-11, wiping out the old mark of 63-6½ by Gary Gubner. The effort, however, was well off the pending world mark of 66-3½ by Dallas Long, who finished second in this meet.

McArdle, a bald 34-year-old veteran from New York, had little difficulty in his excellent 10,000-meter effort, winning in a meet record in 30:11, but almost two minutes off the world mark.

Limps Around

Limping around the trainer's room with an elastic bandage around his left thigh, Hayes said he might stay out of next week's Olympic Trials in New York depending on the condition of his pulled muscle.

"I felt a slight twinge right at the start when I began pulling away," he said. "I knew it was a pull when I glanced back around 70 yards out and saw someone on my tail. I'm not used to having someone on my tail that far out.

"I felt it for sure with 10 yards to go and it really pulled just past the finish line when I slowed down and turned away from the wall."

Hayes, the only man to run the 100-yard dash in 9.1 and who has done an unofficial 9.9 in the 100-meter, apparently pulled a muscle in his left leg just after the finish of the 100-meter championship.

He was immediately surrounded by about two dozen officials and athletes. He sat down for a while, then left the field under his own power, though still limping.

He built up a two-yard early lead, then held off the closing rush of Charles Green, a Nebraska freshman competing unattached and timed in 10.4. Bernie Rivers, a New Mexico University freshman, was third.

The meet, which drew more than 500 of this country's top athletes, served as a qualifying test for the Olympic Trials next week and as a proving ground for the U.S. team that will face Russia's best in Los Angeles next month.

The first two finishers in both Saturday's and Sunday's event will make up the team for the Russian meet. The first six American finishers who have not previously qualified also become eligible for next week's Olympic Trials in New York.

Frank Covelli, a 27-year-old drafting engineer from Bellflower, Calif., won the javelin with a throw of 253-7. Defending champion Larry Stuart of the Southern California Striders was sixth at 239.

Veteran Hayes Jones successfully defended in the 110-meter high hurdles, but also disappointed on his time. 13.8. Jones, winner of scores of indoor titles who has announced that he will retire following the Olympics, edged Blaine Lindgren by less than a yard.

but also disapp ointe do n his but also disappointed on his time, 13.8. Jones, winner of scores of indoor titles who has announced that he will retire following the Olympics, edged Blaine Lindgren by less than a yard.

"I'm in pitiful condition," Jones said, explaining that his duties as a youth worker in Detroit have interfered with his training. His victory put him on the team for the Russian meet for the sixth straight time.

Dyrol Burleson won the 1,500-meter run in 3:46.1. Jim Ryun, first prep miler to break the 4-minute barrier, ran second in 3:46.3.

State Open Tennis Entry List May Top Last Year's

Tourney Starts July 10 in Oshkosh; Fentress Won't Defend Title

OSHKOSH—Entries are starting to come in for the Wisconsin Open tennis tournament July 10-12 in Oshkosh and Tournament Director Joe Bleckinger said he expects the field to top last year's 130 figure.

The men's open title will be up for grabs as last year's champion. Lee Fentress of Tulane University, has indicated he will not be back to defend his crown. Women's title holder, Barbara Mueller of Mequon, will return as will a number of junior winners, some coming back in older age brackets.

Chuck Bleckinger will be one of the betting favorites to take back the men's crown he won in 1962 and then lost last year to Fentress. Bob Stuckert of Milwaukee, the No. 1 rated player in the state for a number of years, also may play this year, Joe Bleckinger said. Stuckert rarely makes a tennis appearance outside of Milwaukee.

Danny Bleckinger may also have to be reckoned with as he recently upset Fentress in a southern tournament. A junior division entrant is Upton Guiles, Louisiana state high school champion. Guiles and Dan Bleckinger have met twice in tournaments, each winning once.

Play again this year will be split between the various courts in the city with the finals on July 12 on the Menominee Park courts.

Defending junior singles champions include Dean Eisner, Manitowoc, boys 18; Tom Vanderhyden, Menasha, boys 16; Gale Carvell, Evanston, Ill., boys 14; Ted Sprinkman, West Bend, boys 12: Jackie Mueller, Mequon, girls 18: Barbara Wirth, Menasha, girls 16; Alice Kennev, Menasha, girls 14, and Jane Bleckinger, Oshkosh, girls 12.

Defending junior doubles champions are Barry Conway and Pat Kenney, Menasha, boys 18: Jeff Rushton, Appleton, and Tom Vanderheyden, Menasha, boys 16; Jackie Mueller, Mequon, and Ellen Friedlander, Milwaukee, girls 18, and Janet Wulling, La Crosse, and Barbara Wirth, Menasha, girls 16.

Marinette '9' Takes Pair

Held to 2 Hits In Nightcap but Triumphs, 1-0

MARINETTE — The Oshkosh Legion baseball team dropped both ends of an exhibition doubleheader to the Marinette Legion team here Saturday, 6 - 4 and 1-0.

Coach Norm Kumbier cleared his bench in the opener as seven errors proved to be the downfall. Dave Misterek led Oshkosh with a double and single in the opener. Oshkosh garnered six hits to Marinette's nine.

Russ Pettibon started for Oshkosh and was relieved by Rick Voight in the third. Pettibon was saddled with the loss. Marinette scored single runs in the first and second and three in the third. The victors added another in the sixth for a 6-2 lead.

Oshkosh bounced back with two runs in the seventh and, with one out, runners were on second and third, but the bats failed.

The second game saw the visitors strand 12 men on the bases, two in the last inning.

Lynn Peterson worked the first four frames and took the loss. Larry Koplitz relieved in the fifth. The pair limited Marinette to two hits, one off each.

Marinette scored the run in the second when Tom Jackeus survived on an infield error and stole second. Jackeus attempted to steal third and the throw went into left field, permitting him to score.

Oshkosh returns to Fox Valley Legion League Southern Division action Tuesday, playing host to Winneconne.

Sheboygan Held to 3 Hits

Neenah Scores Legion Win Behind Loughrin

NEENAH — The Neenah Legion baseball team combined a 6-run second inning and Gene Loughrin's 3-hit, 17 - strikeout pitching to defeat Sheboygan, 7-2, in a Fox Valley Legion League game Saturday afternoon.

The triumph boosted Neenah's record to 4-2. Sheboygan's dropped to 2-4.

Loughrin retired 16 batters on strikes, while another hitter reached base when the third strike got away from the catcher. The Neenah hurler walked only three, two of them in the ninth. He had three whiffs in the first, fourth and sixth frames.

Neenah combed started Phil Nelsen and Tom Laack for 10 hits. The pair struck out six and walked two. The visitors committed seven errors behind their pitchers.

The big second opened when Tom Walkner was hit by a pitch. It also included singles by Jim Bellin, Loughrin, Joe Muench and Walkner, a passed ball, a wild pitch and three errors. None of the runs was earned.

The hosts added another in the seventh on hits by Walkner and Bruce Menning and a wild pitch. Neenah stranded 11 runners. Sheboygan scored its runs in the sixth on an error, Laack's double and a passed ball.

Don Perry, Walkner and Menning all had two hits for the winners, while Laack accounted for two of the Sheboygan hits.

Wilkinson, Harris Win Davis Award

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Jay Wilkinson of Duke and Marv Harris of Stanford were named co-winners of the Ernie Davis Memorial Award Saturday night at the All-American football game.

Davis, former Syracuse star who had expected to play pro football for Cleveland, played his last game in the 1962 All-American at War Memorial Stadium. He died of leukemia last year.

Wilkinson, son of the former Oklahoma coach, started in the defensive backfield for the East. Harris started at guard for the West. Wilkinson has not signed to play pro ball. Harris will play with the Los Angeles Rams.

The first winner of the award in 1963 was Pat Richter of Wisconsin, now with the Washington Redskins.

Dennis Mannebach pitched a 2-hitter to lead Behnke's over Brettschneider's, 15-0. The Police Department beat Pond's, 12-3, and Grishaber's won a forfeit over Home Furniture.

Jim Schultz tossed a 2-hitter in Major League action as Thiel beat Atwater, 3-0. Behrent dumped Crowe, 9-7; Atwater clobbered Behrent, 13-2, and Thiel toppled Crowe, 1-4.

Bill McPhail Tells Plans

CBS-TV Will Add to Its NFL Coverage

BY ART DALEY

GREEN BAY — CBS television, which shelled out $28.6 million to carry NFL games in 1964 and 1965, doesn't intend to change the game of football.

At those prices, CBS would seem to have power to change the shape of the football but not so says Bill McPhail, CBS vice president in charge of sports.

McPhail, who explained his firm's role and plans for upcoming coverage for press, radio and TV folks in Milwaukee Friday, said that "we don't intend to change the way we cover pro football. We're just going to add to our good coverage.

"With the amount of money we have invested, we have an obligation to the public and our sponsors to provide what we feel will be excellent coverage of the game as well as pregame and post-game coverage."

"The Playoff Bowl (between Packers and Browns in Miami last year) served as a sort of model for our new system."

However, there will be at least one revision at the insistence of Packer Coach and General Manager Vince Lombardi. You'll recall in that game, television went right to the bench and talked to players during the game.

"We'll have a man on the team's side of the field, but he won't be in direct contact with the players or coaches. Not with the Packers, at least, because Vince Lombardi wants it that way. The sideline man will help bring the viewers up to date on injuries, complicated officials' calls, unusual plays and other information."

Lombardi, incidentally, has gone to bat for the press in TV's post-game interviews, insisting that newspapermen be given the same time for interviews as in the past.

McPhail went on: "we've gone from 16 to 18 commercials but we do not intend to interfere with the game itself. Our only request, as in past year, to the officials — if no score or time out occurs in the first 10 minutes of the first or third quarter, then we want a time out, at the official's judgment. That doesn't mean stopping the game if someone's on the 2-yard line.

"There will still be no coach or player on live interview during the game. We're still not going into the dressing rooms, before, during or after the game. We'll have before game tapes, in some cases live, before the game and then after the game. We'll run back downfield plays while the teams go into the huddle and this will be something new. We're going to video tape at halftime and afterward to bring back the best plays."

4 Announcers to Work

On announcers, McPhail said that four announcers (two from each club) will work each game over a single feed. "For example when Baltimore plays at Green Bay, the Baltimore announcers will do the play by play and color from upstairs in the first half. Meanwhile, the Green Bay play - by - play announcer will be in our TV room, in contact with the other games and can be brought in with important developments, and the color man will be on the sidelines in contact with upstairs.

"The announcers will switch jobs for the second half."

McPhail said that the resignation of Ray Scott, Packer play by play man on TV for the past eight years, has been accepted. Scott quit CBS in a disagreement over the network's new program policy.

Packer fans in this area will receive 21 games via WBAY-TV next season, starting with the Hall of Fame game Sept. 6 and ending with the Playoff Bowl Jan. 3. There will be four doubleheader Sundays — Nov. 15, Nov. 22, Nov. 29 and Dec. 6.

Here's the television card for this area:

Sept. 6 — Hall of Fame Game (Pitt vs. Balt.) (1:00)
Sept. 27 — Chicago at Baltimore (12:00)
Sept. 28 — Green Bay at Detroit (7:00)
Oct. 11 — San Francisco at Milwaukee (1:00)
Oct. 18 — Green Bay at Baltimore (1:00)
Oct. 25 — Los Angeles at Milwaukee (1:00)
Nov. 1 — Green Bay at Minnesota (1:30)
Nov. 15 — Detroit at Cleveland (12:30)
Nov. 15 — Green Bay at San Francisco (3:00)
Nov. 22 — Cleveland at Green Bay (1:00)
Nov. 22 — Baltimore at Los Angeles (3:30)
Nov. 26 — Chicago at Detroit (12:00)
Nov. 29 — St. Louis at Pittsburgh (12:30)
Nov. 29 — Green Bay at Dallas (1:00)
Dec. 5 — Green Bay at Chicago (1:00)

Dec. 6 — Los Angeles at San Francisco (3:30)
Dec. 13 — Cleveland at New York (1:00)
Dec. 13 — Green Bay at Los Angeles (3:30)
Dec. 27 — World Championship Game
Jan. 3 — Playoff Bowl

Pond's Scores 2 BRL Wins

Rallies Twice; Also Loses to KP-Legion's Wendt

Pond's scored a pair of victories with seventh - inning rallies in Appleton Babe Ruth League play.

Pond's nipped Fox River Tractor, 4-3, behind Jim Binversie. Al Baier hit a triple. Pond's beat Miller Electric, 11-10, with Dar Griffith the winner. Tom Werner hit two triples, while Griffith and Bill Stroess hit one each.

Pond's also lost a game, being whipped by Knights of Pythias - American Legion, 8-0. Gerry Wendt pitched a 4-hitter and collected two hits. Jim Goehler and Jim Crane also had two safeties each for the winners. Tony Goehler and Jim Binversie tripled.

Jenkel Oil beat Miller, 6 - 5, with Tom Heinritz pitching the win. Jim Krueger tripled for the losers.

Fox Valley Cab edged Fox River Tractor, 2-1. Greg Steinhorst, the winner, allowed four hits.

Peggy Ploor Wins Neenah Tennis Title

NEENAH—Peggy Ploor won the girls 16-and-under tennis singles championship by defeating Mary Asmuth, 6-3, 6-3, in the finals.

Miss Ploor won over Sue Haufe, 6-1, 6-2, in the semis while Miss Asmuth bested Sue Roberts, 8-2.

Jim Ryan and Brian Koehn gained berths in the finals of the boys 14-and-under singles. Ryan bested John Whitlinger, 10-6, and Koehn topped Mike Nabbefeldt, 10-8, in the semis.

Quarter-final winners were Ryan over Allan Sherwood, 10-4, Whitlinger over Bob Wessenberg, 10-0; Koehn over Jim Nault 10-0; and Nabbefeldt over Russ Pollnow, 10-6.

The senior men's singles tournament will be played at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Laudan Park courts. Tourneys next Friday morning include the junior girls doubles at Laudan Park, junior boys singles at Doty Park and boys 12-and-under singles at Washington Park.

NOTES and NOTIONS

John L. Faustian

The 1964 Fox Cities Foxes, who bear more than a little resemblance to the Foxes' 1960 championship team, have two months left in which to make the similarity complete. After scoring a near miss in the first round Midwest League race, which finished yesterday, the Billy DeMars-managed team will shoot for second-round honors and a season-end playoff berth. The going will be unmistakably tough since the Foxes are only one of nine teams striving to break the Clinton stranglehold. The C-Sox won the pennant in both rounds last year (eliminating the necessity of a playoff) and have just won the '64 first-half title. Clinton will undoubtedly be hard to handle in the second round, as well, but part of its experience advantage should be reduced. First of all, the C-Sox started the season with eight returnees from their '63 title unit—an unusually large number, since championship-team members ordinarily move up to higher classifications. The C-Sox still have at least four '63 hold-overs on their roster, including Pat Rigby, Cleo Harris, Angelo Bravo and Rich Severson. Then, too, Clinton has an older group of players than is usually found on a Class A team. At least seven C-Sox are between 22 and 24 years of age—giving them a maturity edge on the 18-19-20-year-olders. Pitcher Willie Hooker is 24, while Harris and Rigby and pitching star Virg DeGeorge are 23; and Curt Mielke, Howard Wood and Al Lopez Jr., are 22. The Foxes proved to be the best young team in the league, and their half-year of ML experience could well neutralize much of the C-Sox advantage in the second half.

DeMars

Winning Percentage, Roster Stability Impressive

The current Foxes team, ably handled by DeMars, are posting the best winning percentage of any Fox Cities club since the '60 glory days of Pete Ward, Boog Powell, Dean Chance, et al. The '64 team is reminiscent of the '60 group in terms of roster stability. The turnover in personnel has been small, with at least 16 of the players who started the season here still on the roster. The Foxes are well protected behind the plate with strong-throwing John Burrows, who also swings a dangerous bat. Foxes' pitching need take a back seat to no team in the league. Bulwarked by starters Tim Sommer, Ed Hawkins, Steve Caria, Ed Petryshyn, Tom Zink and Jerry Glass and rally-stopper Henry King, the Foxes are well fortified in this key ingredient. Around the infield, the Foxes have gone without change at three positions while Stan Walters and Bob Matias have altrnated at third base (both have produced vital hitting streaks). John Matias is as good a glove man at first as the Foxes have ever had, and he has been one of the best hitters in the league. John Sepich and Steve Huntz give the Foxes a steady keystone combination. Huntz' batting average isn't too impressive, but he has made his hits pay off in a husky RBI total. The Foxes' outfield has undergone more changes than any other department. Dave May, who has been battling for the league batting lead, and Fred Rico have come through in a big way. Still being sought is a steady hitter for the remaining post.

Don Bacon, Clinton manager, has gone on record as saying, "I look for Waterloo and Burlington to give us the most competition in the second half." Today's advice to Bacon is: Look out for the Foxes.

George Stewart's death meant the passing of one of the best Foxes' fans and workers the club ever had. Though he retired as clubhouse manager several seasons ago (He had been amazingly active in that job in his late 70s.), he has never been forgotten at Goodland Field. When Pete Ward returned here for the first time since 1960, one of the first persons he asked about was George A. Stewart (or "Gas" as he was affectionately known).

The Braves dared to be different as they extended Bobby Bragan's contract after the team fell catastrophically to ninth place, which (with due appologies to the Mets) is about as low as you can go in the National League. It is refreshing in a way to see this sort of patience on the part of President John McHale and Company — in contrast to the haste of Charles Finley in pulling the rug from under Eddie Lopat. Bragan, the field manager, hasn't endeared himself to fans to the extent that Bragan, the off-season public relations man, has. Bragan has taken the rap unjustly for some of the Braves' troubles. It's hardly his fault that such tried-and-true veterans as Ed Mathews and Ed Bailey had trouble hitting their weights in the first two months of the season or that Warren Spahn has lacked his familiar touch in most starts or that Bob Sadowski hasn't pitched as he did last season. Even so, Bragan's juggling act — which has become so famed that the Ed Sullivan show might be interested—is hard to explain. Even for this era of platooning. Bragan's actions have been too extreme. The Braves are the only players in baseball who don't know what to answer when someone asks, "What position do you play."

Bragan

Joe Torre doesn't know whether to say catcher or first base . . . Felipe Alou doesn't know whether to answer "center field or first base" . . . Lee Maye doesn't know for sure if he's a left fielder or a third baseman. And so it goes. At least seven different players have been used at first base, and the end may not be in sight. I believe the Braves will start moving up — they're too good a club to stay in the neighborhood of ninth place—but they won't make any worthwhile progress until Bragan settles on some sort of a stable lineup. Why doesn't he resolve to start the same team (excepting pitchers) for just five straight games? He might be surprised at the results.

Kaukauna's Dave Bachhuber is being employed this summer at the Chicago White Sox boys camp, near Brothertown. Among his duties are helping with publicity releases and coaching tennis. Tim Verstegen, another Kaukauna High School representative, is also serving as a junior counsellor in the new camp.

Winnebago Archers Slate Club Shoot

NEENAH — The Winnebago Archers will hold their second club shoot of the season at their field course, one mile south of Highway 14, this afternoon.

Registration will begin at 2 p.m. and shooting starts at 3. It will be a buck shoot.

A special meeting will be held at the clubhouse at 6 p.m. Wednesday to get a vote on the relocation of the course to a suggested site. Refreshments will be served.

6 Bear Home Tilts Scheduled For TV Viewing

10,000 Extra Seats Available On 'Closed Circuit'

CHICAGO (AP)—The champion Chicago Bears of the National Football League announced recently closed circuit television at two Chicago theaters of most of their seven FL home games this fall. The two sites accommodate close to 10,000 persons.

The Bears, who customarily play before a capacity 48,500 at Wrigley Field, will show six of their home contests on closed circuit TV at a Northside theater and five games at the Arie Crown theater in McCormick Place.

Tickets will be $5.00 per game at both the 5,000-seat Arie Crown and the 4,400-seat B and K Uptown theater.

Wrigley Field prices are $5.00 for a box seat and $4.00 for grandstand, with a ceiling of 34,000 applicants placed on season ticket reservations.

The Bears first experimented with closed circuit television in Chicago on last December's NFL title game between the New York Giants and Bears at Wrigley Field.

The Oct. 11 Los Angeles-Bears game here, during the World Series, will not be shown at either closed circuit site, while the Oct. 18 Detroit at Bears game will be excluded from the Arie Crown program.

The project will be handled by Theater Color-Vision Corporation, a subsidiary of National General Corporation of Los Angeles. The telecasts will be black and white on big screens.

Owner Coach George Halas of the Bears said the move would answer in part demand for seats above Wrigley Field's capacity.

Irving H. Levin, National General Corporation executive vice president, said the transaction with the Bears was "a precedent certain to be watched closely by otheer NFL owners and executives of other major sports."

All-Church Softball Test Being Planned

An all-church softball tournament is being planned for July 31, Aug. 1 and 2, at Telulah field. The tournament is being sponsored by the activities committee of St. Paul Lutheran church.

The 16-team tourney is open to any church softball team of the area. Teams will be accepted on the basis of the first 16 teams to pay their entry fee. Entry fees are $20 per team and can be sent to the tournament chairman, Harold Oswald, 611 Linda St., Combined Locks. Deadline for entry fees has tentatively been set for midnight July 1.

Besides St. Paul of Appleton, the following teams have entered: St. Bernadette and Zion Lutheran, Appleton, and St. Timothy, Menasha.

Serving with Osward as co-chairman is Norman Schlieweiler. Other committee members are: refreshments, Boyd Potter and Norman Asman; tickets and sound system, Richard Sonnenberg and Kenneth Falk; and publicity, Gene Bellin.

Wendy Whitlinger, Neenah, was runnerup in the Miss Wisconsin Tennis competition held in conjunction with the current professional tennis tournament at Milwaukee. The Neenah High School junior also starred for the Wisconsin team in the recent Junior Wightman cup matches at Detroit, winning four straight singles matches while splitting even in four doubles. Watches 41 Years of Progress

Denney Marvels Over Lawrence's Changes

BY DON LEMKE

"There certainly have been a lot of changes," was the quiet comment of Arthur C. Denney, Lawrence athletic director and coach, as he looked back at his 41 years with the college.

Denney, who has been director of physical education and recreation for the last four years, has announced his official retirement. He will continue with the college on a year-to-year basis, however.

"The gymnasium facilities, the faculty, the fraternities, the dormitories, the student body and the administration have all undergone rather dramatic changes during this span," the friendly veteran coach said.

When Denney first came to Lawrence, the basketball games were held in the old Armory gymnasium. Track and football were staged in a variety of places until the building of the Alexander Gymnasium on the south campus in 1929.

Visit Gymnasiums

"We visited gymnasiums all over the east coast before agreeing upon the plans for the current Alexander gym," Denney recalled. "There was a lot of discussion about the size of the gym, the swimming pool and the handball and squash courts, but we were finally convinced that this would meet the needs of Lawrence for a long time."

"When I came, the faculty was very small," he continued. "There was usually only one or two men in each department. Now we have expanded to well over 125."

Coach Denney also commented on the changes in fraternity and dormitory facilities in the last four decades.

"The fraternities met in houses around town and most of the dormitories were older wooden structures," he recalled. Now each fraternity has a separate stone house built around a quadrangle and dormitories are mostly new structures equipped to house a large number of students.

"In the early 1920s, our student body came mainly from Wisconsin and Upper Michigan," Denney continued. "We would only occasionally have a few students from Illinois, Ohio, Indiana or the east. Today we draw from almost every state in the country and many foreign nations."

"A president, a registrar, a half-time business manager and two secretaries were all the administrative personnel we had back in 1923. The growth of the college necessitated the growth in this area also, "the dean of Midwest conference coaches said.

"Even the tone of the college has changed. Entrance requirements are much stiffer today."

Denney likes to illustrate this point with a story about President Henry Wriston, one of the six Lawrence presidents he has served.

"President Wriston was talking to an alumni group shortly after he arrived. He had already proposed a number of changes directed toward the stiffening of admissions standards.

"'What are you going to do with the athletes?' a former athlete asked.

"President Wriston thought for just a second and then he replied, 'Educate them.'"

The man who has seen this tremendous change in the Lawrence campus, A. C. Denney, himself has been instrumental in making athletics, physical education and recreation become a part of the activity of the entire student body rather for a limited group of students.

Cubs Snap Farrell's Win Streak at 7

Homers by Cowan and Santo Give Ellsworth 2-1 Victory

CHICAGO (AP)—Home runs by Billy Cowan and Ron Santo carried the Chicago Cubs to a 2-1 victory over Houston Saturday and snapped right-hander Dick Farrell's string of seven straight victories.

Farrell, seeking his 11th triumph, suffered his second loss. His only other setback was a 4-1 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers May 6.

Cowan slammed his 10th home run in the fifth inning, breaking a scoreless duel between Farrell and southpaw Dick Elisworth.

Bob Aspromonte, however, tied it in the seventh with his seventh homer. Santo led off the bottom of the seventh with his 12th homer deep into the left-center field bleachers.

Ellsworth boosted his season mark to 10-6 and his lifetime record against Houston to 7-1. He yielded six hits.

'Rivers' Lead At Stake

Appleton, Fremont Softball Teams Meet Today

VALLEY OF RIVERS LEAGUE
(Southern Division)

Faith, Appleton	1	0	St. Paul, Fre.	0	1
Zion, Frem-1	2	0	Bethany, Kau.	0	2

Today's Games:
Zion, Fremont R. 1. at Faith, Appleton.
St. Paul, Fremont at Bethany, Kauk.

The lead of the Southern Division of the Valley of Rivers Softball League will be at stake this afternoon when Faith Walther League is host to Zion Walther League, Fremont R.1.

The game, which will match the undefeated teams in the division, is slated to begin at 1:30 p.m. at the Erb Park diamond.

In the other "southern" action, St. Paul Walther League, Fremont, will invade Kaukauna's Joseph Bayorgeon Recreational Area at 1:30 p.m. to play Bethany Walther League, Kaukauna.

The Zion squad downed St. Paul, 9-8, in its opener and won a forfeit from Kaukauna.

Faith has only played one game, an 8-4 win over Kaukauna. The Fremont - Appleton game set for last Sunday was postponed due to the Fremont water carnival.

If past games are any indication, starting pitchers for today's contests will be Tom Fleter, Appleton; Klemp, Fremont, R. 1; Phil Lewin, Fremont, and Bonnie Borchardt, Kaukauna.

The league also has a northern division, which involves two teams from St. Paul Walther League, Manawa, and one each from St. Mark Walther League, Symco, and St. Paul Young Peoples, Amherst.

Highway and Jenkel Teams Still Unbeaten

George Binek twirled a 1-hitter as his Police Dept. team of the McKinley Division Appleton Little League, blanked the Post-Crescent, 5-0. Mark Thomson homered for the victors and Tom Dorzweiler chipped in with a pair of hits.

Unbeaten Badger Highways nipped Police Dept, 1-0 and Post-Crescent posted a 1-0 win over South Side Athletic Club in the same league. Kelly Tierney limited SSAC to two hits—and fanned nine.

Don Werner was the winning pitcher for Badger Highways. The game went nine innings with the only score being forced in on a walk. Dave Nemeth of the Police Dept. garnered the only extra-base blow of the game, a double in the ninth.

Scott Hansen paced Jenkel Oil to a 13-0 win over Teamsters in the Linwood Division. Hansen went 3-for-4 at the plate. Van Daalwyck struck out 16 for the winners. Dave Nowak homered for Jenkel Oil.

Chuck Olson and Bill Weggel paced VFW to a 5-4 win over Baur Truck. Olson had four singles and earned the mound win. Weggel poled a single, double and triple. Casey Hurley's double and single paced the losers.

VFW also stopped Teamsters, 2-1. Vogt's home run in the sixth won the game, a two-run clout. Kiley was the winning hurler.

Unbeaten Jenkel rolled over Baur Truck, 25-4. Tom Putzer homered for the victors and Casey Hurley rapped a four-bagger for Baur's. Dave Nowak went 4-for-5 for Jenkel.

Monday's schedule (SSAC vs. Badger Highways and Northside Adv. vs. Berggren Bros.) was rained out.

Rick Reichart Played Only One Season of High School Baseball

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The things that have been said about Rick Reichardt are true — but they leave out much of what the people that have known him a long time remember.

Reichardt, a few days ago, signed with the Los Angeles Angels, for a huge bonus.

Rick became a legend in his junior year at P. J. Jacobs High School in Stevens Point. Reichardt, the oldest of eight children of Dr. F. W. Reichardt, made all his high school headlines in football, track and basketball — until his senior year that is. Reichardt, a Babe Ruth League stand-out, had not participated in high school ball until his final year. He probably wouldn't have then if it hadn't been for the high school baseball coach, Gene Cardinal. Cardinal, who also was Reichardt's football coach, probably used a little extra persuasion.

That spring he belted the ball around pretty good, but it wasn't until he joined the Stevens Point entry in the semi-professional Wisconsin Valley League that he started to get good wood on the ball. If he hadn't started to hit then, he probably would have given up baseball, for Rick is a person who likes to excel in anything he attempts.

Reichardt most impressed me when I first saw him on the opposing team on the basketball floor.

Reichard, then only a junior, was reported as being 6-2 and 220 pounds. Nobody that looked at his impressive physique, doubted the report.

Leads Team

I have never seen a man that could do all the things he could and make it look so effortless. He could move so fast and jump so high because of his enormous legs. He led the team in everything, including enthusiasm.

His father, a bone specialist, developed the strength in his legs by being one of the first to use isometric exercises. Reichardt led no soft life though. He worked on farms in the summer — not so much for the money, but for the opportunity to condition himself for football.

The desire to excel, together with the many natural abilities he has, have earned him the chance to prove to many of the skeptics, about being an overpublicized kid, that their contentions are false. He has already done this as an amateur and now he has the chance to do it as a pro.

Caria Retains Midwest Loop Strikeout Lead

Montreuil Leads Batters; May Tied for Third

Steve Caria, of the Fox Cities Foxes, leads Midwest League hurlers with 110 strikeouts, 15 more than runnerup Lou Moore of Decatur.

Dave May, Foxes' outfielder, slipped to a tie for third in the chase for the batting crown with a .321 average. May was hitting the ball at .355 but dropped 14 points in one week.

Al Montreuil, shortstop for Waterloo, leads the ML hitters with a .339 average. Montreuil has the most total bases (109) and homers (11) and shares most-hit honors with the Foxes' John Matias with 65. Figures are for games through Tuesday.

Clarence Stanley took over command of the runs-batted-in lead with 48. Stanley plays for Decatur. Relief ace Jim Garbeff of Cedar Rapids continues to pace the pitchers with a 1.62 earned run average.

The Foxes' Tim Sommer (2.34) and Ed Hawkins (2.76) rank fifth and seventh, respectively among ML hurlers who have worked more than 60 innings.

Billie Jean Moffitt, Nancy Richey Reach Tourney Quarter-Finals

Christian Kuhnke Upsets Santana At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., and Nancy Richey of Dallas, the two seeded American girls, won their way into the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament Saturday, while politics popped up again on the back courts.

Misses Moffitt and Richey were the only survivors of an American entry of 17 in the women's singles.

Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, the defending champion, is the sole U.S. survivor in the men's singles out of 25 who entered. He gained a quarter-finals berth Friday.

Miss Richey won her fourth round match with such dispatch that observers began talking of her chances to dethrone defender Margaret Smith of Australia. The Texas girl won over Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla., 6-2, 6-2.

Has Harder Time

Miss Moffitt, the runner-up last year, had a harder time with Jacqueline Rees-Lewis of France before she won 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Moffitt is seeded third, Miss Richey fifth.

Robyn Ebbern of Australia, the No. 8 seed, knocked out the only other American girl left in the singles, Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-4, 6-0.

Rafael Osuna of Mexico, the reigning U.S. singles champion, sparkled in the sunshine before the largest crowd of the tournament, 18,000, as he defeated Jose Arilla of Spain 6-4, 6-4, 10-12, 6-3 on the center court.

That put Osuna in the quarter-finals, along with McKinley; Christian Kuhnke and Wilhelm Bungert of Germany; Roy Emerson, Bob Hewitt and Fred Stolle of Australia, and Abe Segal of South Africa.

Segal is the South African left-hander—and McKinley's next opponent—who has caused two Communist block players to walk out already.

A Russian and a Hungarian have refused to play him—one in singles, the other in doubles—in protest against South Africa's racial policies.

The movement spread Saturday when Czech players Jeri Javorsky and Vera Sukova pulled out rather than play Ray Weedon and Annette Van Zyl of South Africa in the mixed doubles.

Outstanding Upset

Kuhnke produced the day's outstanding upset, when he knocked off Manuel Santana the artistic Spaniard who was seeded No. 3. The score was 6-3, 7-5, 6-8, 6-4. Sanatana, the fourth seeded men's singles player to fall, had been taking injections all week for a strained achilles tendon.

Bungert beat Jorgen Ulrich of Denmark 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 and Stolle brushed aside little known Greek player Nicolais Kalogeropoulos 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

That left Emerson, No. 1; McKinley, No. 2; Osuna, No. 4 and Stolle, No. 6, alive among those seeded in men's singles.

Kuhnke meets Stolle in the quarter-finals. If the German wins he will play McKinley, if the American gets past Segal. Kuhnke would be the fifth left-hander McKinley has faced in the tournament.

Emerson gets Hewitt in Monday's quarter-finals, and Osuna plays Bungert.

Maria Bueno of Brazil continued her leisurely progress toward the women's crown she won in 1959 and 1960, as she defeated Trudy Groenman of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Bueno has lost only seven games in three matches so far.

She plays Miss Ebbern next, with Miss Richey against Australia's Lesley Turner, No. 4; Miss Moffitt against Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, No. 6; and Miss Smith against Norma Baylon of Argentina, unseeded.

Cleveland Tips Red Sox, 4 to 2

Rookie Siebert Records His Second Victory

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland scored three runs in the first inning with the help of two walks by Boston's Earl Wilson and held on to defeat the Red Sox 4-2 Saturday.

Wilson walked the first two batters, Dick Howser and Vic Davalillo, then yielded a run-scoring single to Leon Wagner. Wilson gave up two more runs when Bob Chance bounced a single off the bag at second into center field.

Wilson then walked John Romano before leaving for reliever Bob Heffner.

Heffner sparkled in his relief role, surrendering only three hits before retiring after the eighth. He allowed a double to Davalillo in the second, then retired the next 16 batters. Bowser broke the spell with a single in the eighth.

Rookie right-hander Sonny Siebert, recording his second victory against three losses, allowed eight hits. He needed relief from Don McMahon in the eighth when Carl Yastrzemski tripled and scored on Dick Stuart's single.

TEE LEAVES

by Jerry Galvin

Golf widows who yearn for the company of their links-loving husbands during the daylight hours may soon lose said mates' company to that crazy game after the sun sets as well.

Night-time golf is rapidly invading the North American continent, with the assistance of artificial lighting, of course.

The warmer climes (California, Florida, etc.) already lay claim to a good number of regulation courses which, thanks to Thomas Alva Edison's invention, prove 24-hour service for links fanatics.

The trend commenced on the West Coast, toured the southern part of country to Florida and then vaulted up to our Eastern seaboard states. Yes, your right, it did skip the Midwest for a time.

Now, that is as of Monday, June 22, the Midwest (via Cedar Rapids, Ia.) can claim a regulation par-36 lighted course. It, according to the Cedar Rapids Gazette, is the first regulation layout equipped with Edison's magic in the Midwest.

Bridgewood's proprietor R. C. Bridges investigated the feasibility, cost of equipment and other pertinent considerations necessary to supplying the people of the Fox Cities area with a regulation layout for use after the sun has set.

Bridges toured a 9-hole, privately-owned lighted course in Sewell, N. J., about 13 miles from Camden—last fall. His findings, however, are, as yet, inconclusive. He has not completely shelved the dream of lighting his Bridgewood course at Neenah but he did admit that it would not come about in the near future

"One of the biggest obstacles is the apparently short, 5-month season," said Bridges. "I do feel though, that in time the people of this area will have courses equipped with lights for night-time use."

Whether Bridgewood installs lights within the next 10, 20 or 30 years or not at all, Bridges is to be commended at least for investigating the possibility of improving golf course service to Fox Cities area residents.

Wisconsin is not without lighted courses. There are at least two par-3 courses equipped with lights in the state, but there are no regulation par 34 to 36 tours. Milwaukee and Madison boast the lighted par threes.

EAGLES TO—Alderman Orv Strutz dropped his second shot on the 395-yard par four ninth hole at the Reid Municipal Course.

Larry Booth canned his third shot on the par five 10th hole at the Municipal course.

A pair of eagles were carded by Bob Derus on Kaukauna's Fox Valley Golf Club fairways. Derus carved out eagles on the par five fifth and eighth holes.

Gene Ploetz stroked his way to a two-under par 33 at Fox Valley for the low round of the week. Ploetz was in a foursome including Lorenz Mayer, Jim Minkebige and Dan Wildenberg

Here's one on me, a former tee-starter at the Oshkosh Municipal Course for three years—

An elderly gentleman was on the first tee one day preparing for his trek down the fairway with a few haughty practice swings.

The tee-starter told the gentleman in a very polite way to please tee his ball between the tee blocks. The gentleman failed to move back the 15 feet or so to the location of the blocks.

After the fifth request by the starter, the apparently irate genetleman whirled around and said in fiery tones:

"Look buddy, it took me four shots to get this far and if you have the gall to think I'm going back there, YOU'RE NUTS."

On-Field Smoking Ban For Coaches Asked

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The American Football Coaches Association went on record Saturday as opposing smoking by coaches and staff members on the playing field or bench during a game.

Alston Names 10 More to NL All-Star Team

Picks Second Choices Plus Burgess, Callison

CINCINNATI (AP) — Manager Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers followed custom Saturday and named all of the second choices in player balloting to help fill out the National League roster for the annual All Star baseball game.

In addition to the second choices, Alston picked catcher Smoky Burgess of Pittsburgh and outfielder Johnny Callison of Philadelphia.

The pitchers for both the National and American League teams will be announced next Thursday.

Those who finished second in the player balloting and who were named by Alston to the All-Star squad include.

Selected by Players

The starters in the game were selected by vote of the players and each must play at least the first three innings unless injured or ill

They are catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee, first baseman Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco, second baseman Ron Hunt of New York, third baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis, shortstop Dick Groat of St. Louis, left fielder Billy Williams of Chicago, center fielder Willie Mays of San Francisco and right fielder Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh.

Callison's selection gave the league - leading Philadelphia Phils their first player on the squad, but Alston's Dodgers and the Houston Colts still are without a representative

It means Alston will have to take from his pitchers to give the Dodgers a required player but that doesn't figure to be hard for him to do, what with the likes of Sandy Koufax around. Dick Farrell of the Colts pitching staff is a likely choice from his team.

Among the selections made Saturday, Aaron is the veteran of All-Star play. He is on the squad for the 10th time—only one appearance is counted for each of those years in which two All-Star games were played.

Newcomers to All-Star play will be Cardenas, Stargell and Flood.

Mazeroski and Burgess were named for the sixth time, while this will be No. 5 for White.

Edwards, Santo and Callison were named for a second time.

This year's All-Star game will be played July 7 in the New York Mets' new Shea Stadium.

Twins Score Uphill Win Over Chisox

Killebrew, Allison Hit Homers Off Wilhelm in the Seventh

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison smashed successive home runs off reliever Hoyt Wilhelm in the seventh inning, lifting Minnesota to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

Killebrew's 26th homer of the season with Tony Oliva aboard shoved the Twins into a 4-3 lead. Allison followed with his 19th homer to chase Wilhelm.

Chicago had led 3-1 after Mike Hershberger doubled home a run in the sixth.

Minnesota narrowed it to 3-2 in the sixth but Wilhelm came on to prevent further damage by the Twins. He got out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam with only one run scoring on Don Mincher's infield single.

Jim Kaat, who weathered troubles largely of his own making, went the distance for his eighth victory against three defeats. Two walks and an error cost him a run in the third, and a balk got the Chicago run in scoring position in the fourth.

Entry Deadline July 10

Fox Valley Softball Meet Starts July 23

The 14th annual Fox Valley Softball Tournament, sponsored by the Appleton Recreation Department, is slated for July 23-26 at Telulah Field.

The entry deadline for the tourney is July 10. Entry fees of $20 must accompany all entries.

The tourney is open to the top 16 teams in the area. Green Bay's Wally Lom's Bar is the defending champion, having won the title in 1962 and '63.

Entries must be in the office of the tournament director, E. W. (Duke) Grover, not later than July 10.

Team and individual trophies will be presented to the champion and runnerup. Team trophies will go to the third and fourth place teams.

Trophies for the most valuable player and pitcher will be awarded. The leading hitter and the top home run producer will also be honored. A coin will be flipped if ties result in the latter categories.

Tournament rosters may not exceed 15 players. A player is eligible to play on one team. Rosters remain intact after a team's initial appearance in the tourney. Players must be properly uniformed.

Official softball rules will govern play. Managers will be informed on ground rules.

Korean Assembly Asked to Restrict Press, Students

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—President Chung Hee Park asked the National Assembly Friday to adopt laws restricting press and student activities before he lifts martial law imposed June 3 on Seoul to halt student riots.

Park's request, broadcast to the nation, was apparently an attempt to win over political opponents who last week rejected government proposals for new legislation, and broke off negotiations to settle the crisis brought on by the antigovernment demonstrations.

Park did not outline any new legislation. But he said new laws should protect the freedom of students to pursue their studies and "regulate" their activities.

Universities and colleges throughout South Korea have been closed since Park proclaimed martial law.

Two State Men Named To Izaak Walton Board

DAVENPORT, Iowa (AP)—Wisconsin men, Bernard Cumming of Manitowoc and Fred Stamm of Markesan, were named national directors of the Izaak Walton League of America at the group's convention Thursday. Burt Brickner of Tiffin, Ohio, was re-elected president.

Flower Gardening Is a full time proposition for Mrs. Charles Kabke of Appleton and trowel in hand is just about normal for her during daylight hours in the summer. The magenta clematis, climbing a trellis arrangement in her back yard, is one of the few flower exceptions to her organized and terraced flower beds which can be seen in the background. Their elevation makes the Kabke back lawn a "sunken green." (Post-Crescent Photo)

From Utility to Pleasure

Ranks of Flowers Fill Family's Sunken Lawn

BY WALTER DOBERSTEIN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Flowers, flowers everywhere scarcely describes the horticultural labors of the southside Appleton woman. The rather unusual flower beds of Mrs. Charles Kabke, 1406 S. Kernan Ave., contain great variety—perhaps the better part of a hundred—but each is regimented in a particular relation to the other for maximum color effect.

What's more, the basic setting—a sunken yard effect—dramatizes the disciplined array of posies in a manner which gets the maximum out of a typical city lot, about 60 by 160 feet. In spite of the great variety of "things growing" in the Kabke yard, it doesn't look cluttered or "busy."

About five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Kabke decided something had to be done about the annual experience of having water accumulations in their back yard. So they fashioned a drainage trench with a tiled outlet. One thing led to another. Today the trench is like an inner moat about a foot below a horseshoe-shaped parapet of concrete block forming a retaining wall for the flower beds which encircle the rear half of the lot. The effect is a "sunken" rear lawn.

Regimented Posies

Mrs Kabke's exacting placement of her various flower varieties exploits the elevated beds to the fullest. Tall species, such as delphinium, iris or lilies, are positioned in the rear echelon. Next in the full sweep of the horseshoe design—more exactly like a child's play magnet in shape—come the flower varieties of medium stature. And so the gradation, ending with short-stemmed blooms like pansies or moss roses.

The attention to detail goes further. Placement of certain flowers is planned both to achieve color contrasts and take into consideration the blooming season of the different species. Late July and August will see the color spectacle in the Kabke yard at its peak.

Although the beauteous encirclement can be enjoyed from a green-tinted concrete patio, say from a relaxer style lawn chair, Mrs. Kabke wasn't happy with not being able to see her flowers from the breakfast table. So several years ago they installed a special picture window at the one rear corner of their home. Now they have an almost unobstructed view of their flower horseshoe with its sunken foreground of cushioned green.

Many Varieties

Listing the many flower varieties Mrs. Kabke has employed is like reading a catalogue, including a few with not so familiar names — salvia, heliotrope, lupine, anchusa, margarite and Jerusalem cross, to mention a few. The reporter also was impressed with how many different kinds of daisies there are. Shasta, English, painted and lavender were just several of the varieties mentioned.

Because she feels her house is too small to properly accommodate them, Mrs. Kabke has very few house plants for cold-weather enjoyment. But she sure makes the most of spring, summer and into the fall with her outdoor cultivation of flower beauty.

Conservation Film Available From State Committee, Museum

MADISON—Three prints of a new 16mm film, "Heritage of Splendor," are now available for showing by local groups throughout the state from the Governor's Committee to Keep Wisconsin Clean and Beautiful.

Two prints will be circulated by the Wisconsin Conservation Department's visual aid library, Box 450, Madison 1. The third print will be circulated by the Milwaukee Public Museum.

Actor Ronald Reagan narrates the 18-minute sound and color film, which shows America's scenic and recreational areas as one of our most important resources. It shows both litter and litter prevention activities.

Two other committee films are also available through the Conservation Department. They are the 15-minute film, "Let's Keep America Beautiful," and Walt Disney's "The Litterbug," eight minutes, both in color.

One print of "Let's Keep America Beautiful" is now being provided to the Milwaukee Public Museum, which is handling committee films for the first time. The Disney film will be added later.

Scores Witness Mans' Plunge From Bridge

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Scores of spectators at a gay, riverside concert in downtown Pittsburgh watched in horror Friday night as an elderly man plunged to his death from a bridge.

The man, identified as Forest W. Car of nearby Emsworth, shouldered his way through a crowd on the Sixth Street Bridge, bonsted himself over the railing and leaped into the Allegheny River before he could be restrained, police said.

More FBI Agents Ordered Into Mississippi for Search

President Acts to Deter Any Racial Violence in State; Number, Location Not Told

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP)—President Johnson ordered more FBI agents into racially-disturbed Mississippi Saturday as the search broadened here for three missing civil rights workers.

The White House announcement did not disclose the number of reinforcements. The President acted in a move to deter racial violence in this state.

Enlargement of the FBI force had been recommended by former CIA Chief Allen Dulle who spent two days this week in Mississippi sizing up the racial situation for the President.

Johnson did not disclose where the new agents would be stationed.

State and federal agents, searching since Monday for the missing trio, turned their attention Saturday to the muddy Pearl River which flows north of here.

The highway patrol ordered dragging operations started. Game and Fish Commission boats were called in from Jackson to participate in the operation as a hundred sailors waded for a third day through muddy swamps.

Gov. Paul Johnson, after a personal visit to this east-central Mississippi hill county, ordered the highway patrol to "double its efforts" to solve what he termed the "mysterious missing persons case."

Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andy Goodman, 20, both of New York City, and James Chaney, 22, a Negro from nearby Meridian, vanished last Sunday night after a spur-of-the-moment trip here to inspect a burned-out Negro church.

Vehicle Found

Their charred station wagon was discovered Tuesday in a swamp 13 miles to the northeast.

FBI agents and highway patrolmen, heavily tanned from six days of intensive searching under a hot Mississippi sun, were instructed to ride the boats with the game wardens.

An FBI spokesman said other streams, small creeks and lakes that dot the hilly, heavily overgrown countryside also would be dragged. "We will take them one at a time," he said.

Another wave of civil rights workers left a training center at Oxford, Ohio, by bus and car for Mississippi. Some of the nearly 300 workers—mostly college students—said they made their cars "bomb proof." They explained they put locks on gas caps to prevent explosives from being tossed into the tanks.

Fearing this racially tense town of 5,000 might be the target, Neshoba County Sheriff Lawrence Rainey appealed for volunteers for an auxiliary police force.

Poles Welcome Bob Kennedy At Warsaw

Cheers, Serenades Greet U. S. Official On a Private Visit

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Hundreds of enthusiastic Poles almost mobbed U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy on his arrival in Warsaw Saturday for a private weekend visit to Communist-ruled Poland. He was cheered, serenaded and kissed.

Poland's official press and radio had given the silent treatment to Kennedy's trip, but the people learned of his visit from the grapevine.

Car Stopped

Two hundred people stopped Kennedy's car at the airport fence to serenade him with choruses of "Sto la," which means "May you live 100 years."

Later, a lively crowd of 400 gathered to see Kennedy's entrance into the Europejski Hotel in downtown Warsaw. Three men in workingmen's clothes kissed him on the cheek in traditional Slavic fashion. Women chanting "Long live Kennedy" thrust flowers at the attorney general, his wife Ethel and three accompanying children.

Better Relations

At the airport, Kennedy talked of better relations between Poland and the United States and between Poland and West Germany.

He departed from his prepared speech to express "hope for a rebirth of trust between our countries and for a peace which is permanent and indivisible."

Reynolds Offers Hand Of State to Nicaragua

MADISON (AP)— Gov. John W. Reynolds announced Saturday he has qritten to President Rene Schick Gutierrez of Nicaragua, proposing development of a sister state relationship between Wisconsin and the Central American nation.

The governor said a number of states have sister state arrangements with South American countries.

He said the program offers an opportunity to develop strong economic and cultural ties between Wisconsin and Nicaragua.

Policeman Beaten, Shot Attempting To Check a Theft

LAKE CITY, Minn. (AP)— A Lake City policeman rested in a hospital in good condition Saturday as Minnesota and Wisconsin authorities hunted a young man who viciously beat and shot the officer as he attempted to investigate theft of an outboard motor.

Authorities of the two states set up road blocks in an intensive search to intercept the man who shot the officer. He was believed driving a 1959 Oldsmobile, green and white, with Wisconsin license plates.

Propane Tank Blast Does $50,000 Damage

REEDSBURG (AP) — The damage was estimated at $50,000 today in an explosion of a propane tank at the Farmers Union Central Exchange Friday.

The 8,000 gallon tank blew up with terrific force, starting a fire that destroyed the truck on which it was mounted, two smaller vehicles, a warehouse and a combination workshop-office building. Firemen from Reedsburg, Baraboo and Rock Springs fought the blaze.

No injuries were reported. The blast occurred while employes were at lunch.

Fire Chief Edgar Fuhrmann blamed the explosion on a faulty valve.

Police Arrest 41 Students At Singapore

Malaysia Officials Crack Down on Red Subversives

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Troops and police arrested 41 Chinese student leaders at Singapore's Nanyang University Saturday in a crackdown on Communist subversive activity.

Home Affairs Minister Dato Ismail Bin Abdul Rahman told a special news conference a militant Red threat against Malaysian federal and Singapore state authority made the arrests essential.

He did not go into detail, but it was understood the action was taken to avert a planned Communist offensive involving student and industrial agitation.

More than 500 men—soldiers and special branch police officers—made the arrests in predawn raids that centered on the university, whose powerful student organizations are known to be hotbeds of Peking-style communism.

Police Inspector General Claude Fenner said the operation "went off with no incidents whatsoever," and added "We are not expecting any serious repercussions at the moment." The operation was timed for the end of term exams for the 2,000 students.

Renk Criticizes Sen. Proxmire

CONOVER (AP) — Wilbur Renk, a Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate, Saturday accused Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., of using taxpayers' money to advertise his recently published book on small business.

In a prepared speech to a Vilas County Young Republican Club, Renk said Proxmire's June newsletter to his constituents includes a photograph of the book "along with a spiel about how wonderful it is."

Renk called the Proxmire newsletter "an advertisement for his book," and said the Senator is "using the public's money for personal gain."

Milwaukee Hit By NAACP Suit On Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Federal Court suit challenging legality of de facto segregation in Milwaukee will be filed next month, officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said today.

A spokesman for Lloyd Barbee, NAACP president in Wisconsin, said the decision to initiate the suit was made after the Milwaukee School Board refused this week to consider proposals made by the civil rights group.

The suit will be brought in Milwaukee in the name of the Milwaukee United School Integration Committee with the legal advice and assistance of the NAACP. Barbee, his aide said, will probably handle the case in court.

The move is in line with a resolution, adopted by the NAACP convntion today, calling upon all units of the association "to wage more vigorously than ever before its nationwide school desegration drive with emphasis in the north and west.

Ripon Society Seeks New Leadership in Republican Party

RIPON (AP)— The Ripon Society, a group of young men interested in attracting "intelligent new leadership to the Republican party," will hold a luncheon meeting here July 4.

John H. Saloma, president of the society and a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will address the group at the Little White School House where the Republican party was founded.

The Ripon Society has not announced in favor of any Republican for the GOP presidential nomination. It has said, however, if Sen. Barry Goldwater were nominated "The Republican party would go down to defeat in every state in the Union but Arizona."

Ike's Son Endorses Scranton Candidacy

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — John Eisenhower, son of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, said today he has endorsed Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania for the Republican presidential nomination.

Eisenhower, a former Army colonel now in the publishing business, said he was for Scranton even before the governor announced his candidacy June 12.

Plans for Lodge

Scranton, Rockefeller Hold Strategy Session

BY JACK LYNCH

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton held a two-hour strategy meeting with Gov. Nelson A Rockefeller of New York and other Republican leaders Saturday in a pooling of efforts to gain the GOP presidential nomination for Scranton.

Scranton said that specific plans have been worked out for Henry Cabot Lodge, who quit his post as ambassador to South Viet Nam to return home and support Scranton's campaign.

Maxwell Rabb, Lodge's national campaign director, and Paul Grindle, also of the Lodge camp, were among those at the meeting at Scranton's executive mansion at Indiantown Gap, 20 miles east of here.

Plans for Lodge

"We came up with some plans for him (Lodge) subject to his return," said Scranton. "He will make a number of speeches for us and do other important work." Scranton did not elaborate.

The Pennsylvania governor said he will confer with Lodge as soon as possible after the former ambassador returns to the United States from Saigon. He said Lodge will not be his campaign manager.

Scranton also disclosed he would appear before the Republican Platform Committee in San Francisco on July 9 to make a pitch for a strong civil rights plank. Rockefeller is scheduled to appear before the committee July 7.

Ike Neutral

Asked if he talked to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower about coming out in Scranton's behalf, Rockefeller said: "I talked to him about it. If the general made a strong statement it would be very, very helpful."

Eisenhower, who lives at Gettysburg, 40 miles south of here, has maintained neutrality in the GOP race. He was in Washington on Saturday afternoon for a speaking engagement and did not attend the meeting.

After the meeting and news conference, Scranton and Rockefeller flew to Scranton, Pa, in Rockefeller's private plane. Scranton got off and went to his estate, Marworth, while Rockefeller continued on to New York.

Labeling Cigarette Packs Won't Help, AMA President Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Labeling cigarette packages with warnings that smoking may cause cancer and other diseases will do little or no good, the American Medical Association's president predicts.

Dr. Edward R. Annis said Friday that "labeling isn't the answer, but education is."

Speaking before the Commonwealth Club in the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, Dr. Annis declared that if cigarettes are labeled as hazardous, as ordered by the Federal Trade Commission, then alcoholic beverages also should be.

He suggested that the answer to the tobacco hazard may be to add an ingredient to prevent cancer rather than attempting to filter dangerous materials out.

Reynolds Calls Rising Highway Deaths Score A 'Statewide Disaster'

Directs State Patrol to Step-Up Law Enforcement

MADISON (AP) — Gov. John W. Reynolds Saturday termed Wisconsin's soaring highway death toll "a statewide disaster" and called for immediate emergency action by drivers and public officials.

The governor said he has directed the State Traffic Patrol to institute a stepped-up enforcement program, asked county and municipal police for cooperation and that he is calling out appropriate National Guard and civil defense police units for assistance in enforcing safe driving practices.

905 Killed

Reynolds noted that 1963 saw 905 persons killed on Wisconsin streets and highways and 36,000 injured. The death toll this year is running about 80 ahead of 1963 and the governor said "We are threatened with a grim new record in traffic fatalities in 1964."

Reynolds said in a statement issued by his office that if an earthquake "were to kill and maim as many people as we do on our highways every year, we could correctly call it a catastrophe."

The governor said the following administrative actions will be taken immediately:

The State Traffic Patrol has been directed to have every available man on duty for the July 4th weekend.

Radar Checks

The patrol will start a stepped up enforcement program to include expanded radar speed checks, double flying hours by the patrol's aerial enforcement and a doubled number of unmarked patrol cars.

The Highway Commission has been directed to survey the entire state trunk highway system to pinpoint hazardous stretches and plan their improvement.

County highway commissioners and town boards have been asked to reduce speed limits on roads inadequate for the general speed limit of 65 miles per hour.

The Highway Commission will add 1,000 miles of pavement edge marking to make night driving safer.

Reynolds also urged Wisconsin motorists to drive carefully and join in an effort to improve highway safety.

Lodge Rules Out Political Office Aims for Himself

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge ruled out any political office for himself Saturday and said he is resigning as ambassador to South Viet Nam solely to help Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania wrest the Republican presidential nomination from Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

"I've lost my lust for office," Lodge told a farewell news conference here. "What I'm doing is not because I want to get a job."

Lodge leaves for the United States Sunday night and indicated, he would make his first U.S. public pronouncement in Scranton's favor at a National Press Club luncheon in Washington Tuesday.

I never saw such dedicated service

As long-time AAL members, we have been served by several different AAL life insurance counselors. They differed as men and as salesmen but all had one thing in common — dedicated personal service. Besides selling us our insurance, they helped us plan for our family's financial security. These men always gave us wonderful service and really knew their business. Often, their visits were purely personal, as close Lutheran friends. The way these AAL men remembered us as members has kept us a 100 per cent AAL family.

Federal Funds Requests for Airports Okayed

MADISON (AP) — The State Aeronautics Commission approved Friday federal aid requests totaling $971,320 for six Wisconsin airports including $561,070 for Madison's Municipal Airport and $219,550 for General Mitchell Field in Milwaukee.

The fund requests now go to the Federal Aviation Agency for action.

Other federal aid requests approved by the commission were $44,750 for Antigo, $23,425 for Cassville, $32,525 for Waukesha and $90,000 for the Rock County airport.

State allocations of $5,500 for Fond du Lac and $1,750 for Kenosha also were approved.

Lake Is Created During Rainstorm

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Something came between Las Vegas and its 11-mile distant neighbor, Henderson:

A lake.

A violent thunderstorm drenched Henderson Friday. Then came a flash flood—turning a 12-square mile patch of desert between the two cities into a lake.

In places, water was three feet deep. It covered the Las Vegas-Henderson highway with bumper-deep water for a mile and a half and set a housetrailer adrift.

The Personality of This House is a blend of traditional flavor and up to date usability. It can contain anywhere from three to five bedrooms, depending on family needs and optional usage of the upper level.

House of the Week

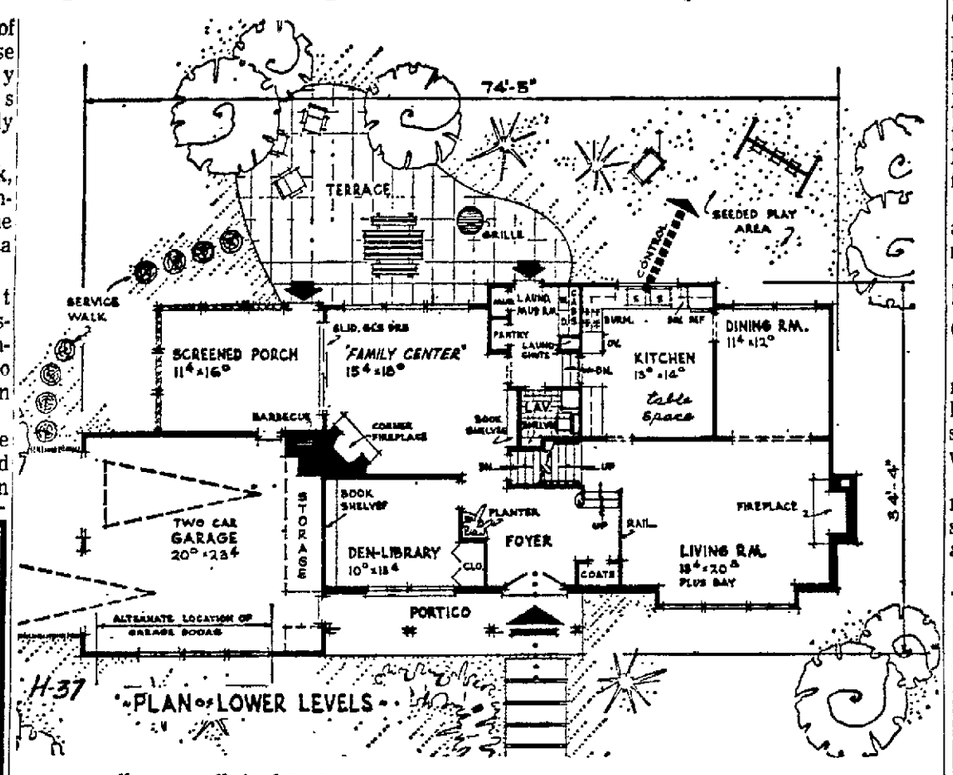

Modified Split Adapts to Family Needs

Traditional characteristics of an old fashioned farmhouse combined with contemporary building techniques give this house a flavor both comfortably old and dramatically new.

Architect Herman H. York, who designed the house as number H-37 in the House of the Week series, describes it as a modified split level.

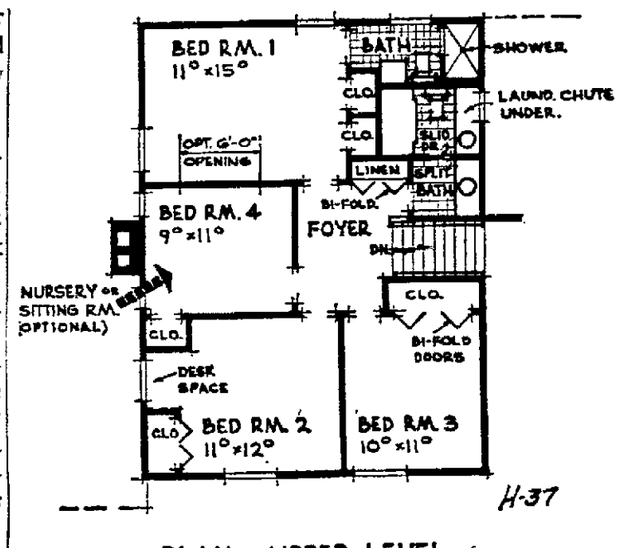

One big advantage, apart from its imaginative and pleasing facade, is that it can contain anywhere from three to five bedrooms, depending on the owners' needs.

This means it is one of those rare homes which can expand as the family expands, then serve equally as well in later years without a lot of wasted space when the children grow up and leave home.

Upper Level

The upper level contains four bedrooms (and two full baths) but one of the bedrooms, if not needed, can be absorbed into the master suite as a sitting room — complete with a fireplace, if desired. An optional six-foot opening between it and the master bedroom also allows it to be used as a nursery.

Downstairs there is another optional bedroom, a 10' by 13' 4" front room designed primarily as a den or library. But the room has plenty of closet space, is convenient to the downstairs lavatory, and thus can be put to use as a guest room or even a family bedroom.

The living area of the house is designed to handle comfortably all the activities a five-bedroom family would need.

Family Center

The kitchen is large enough for a dinette table, there is a separate dining room, and a room which York calls a "family center" — an airy and bright 15 foot 5 inches by 18 foot informal room opening onto a large screened porch.

The basic area of the house, the habitable space on the lower levels, is only 1,390 square feet.

The upstairs is 818 square feet. Over - all dimensions are 74 feet 5 inches wide by 34 feet 4 inches deep. The house contains a full basement.

The long portico, large living room bay window, dove cote and shuttered upstairs windows are the main features that give the home its farmhouse flavor. Architect York feels these should be accented with appropriate building materials.

He suggests vertical boards of random width with a V-joint of cedar or redwood, stained dark to contrast with light colored masonry. Though stone is shown, brick would be an equally attractive masonry material. If either is dark rather than light, the wood then should be painted to preserve the contrast.

Stair System

The stair system in this house leaves the foyer free and open, and also provides an attractive balcony arrangement for the living room, complementing a handsome fireplace on the opposite wall.

The kitchen is especially well designed with a double sink, an excellent view of the outdoor play area, plenty of counter and cupboard space, and a step-saving layout of the work zone.

Between the kitchen and the family room is a true work center for the housewife. It contains the rear service entry, a laundry with large cabinets and a handy clothes chute from upstairs, a pantry, and a large lavatory also with fine shelf space.

A glazed rear wall and sliding glass doors leading to the screened porch add a feeling of spaciousness to the family room, but its chief characteristic is the corner fireplace. The same chimnel serves a built-in barbecue on the screened porch.

In sum, this is a house a family of almost any size can adapt to its own needs, and enjoy for many years.

H-37 Statistics

A modified split level containing four bedrooms, 2½ baths, in a basic area (on lower levels) of 1,390 square feet. Upper levels contain 818 square feet; screened porch is 191 square feet. Overall dimensions are 74 feet 5 inches wide by 34 feet 4 inches deep.

The Lower Levels of the floor plans contain 1,390 square feet of habitable area. Basement extends under the living room, dining room and kitchen and the furnace is located under the living room fireplace.

Cost of Living Steady in May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and housing prices dropped in May, but most other consumer goods increased in price and living costs remained unchanged from the month before, the Labor Department said today.

The consumer price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics stood for the second straight month at 107.8.

The figure means it cost $10.78 in both April and May to buy typical consumer goods that cost $10 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Lower meat and egg prices were the main factors in a two-tenths of one per cent drop in food costs.

Fruit and vegetable prices remained unchanged. Sugar dropped slightly, but was still up more than 6 per cent from a year ago, and coffee climbed another 2.3 per cent, to an over-the-year total increase of nearly 23 per cent.

Compromise Medical Plan Before Belgians

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Belgian Parliament will be asked to approve a compromise national medical insurance plan endorsed by the government and the medical profession.

The plan was announced Thursday after 10 months of dispute, including a nationwide doctors' strike in April.

Commission to Release Water From Superior

WASHINGTON (AP) — The International Joint Commission has agreed to release an extra 10,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Superior into Lakes Huron and Michigan, Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said he was informed Thursday.

The water levels of Lakes Huron and Michigan, Hart said, have been at record lows, ranging from nine to 14 inches below normal.

Under the action of the commission, representing the United States and Canada, the water would be released through the canal at Sault Ste. Marie.

Hart said the commission decided to release the extra water from Lake Superior for a period of six months. It is expected this would lower the level of Lake Superior by two-tenths of a foot and increase the level of Lakes Huron and Michigan by one-tenth of a foot.

Hart said Lake Superior is at about the normal water level now.

Parts of Major Roads Closed in 11 Counties

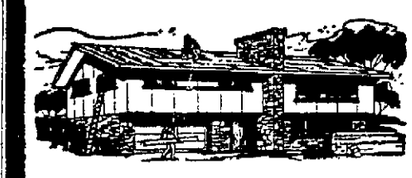

MADISON (AP) — Major roads in 11 Wisconsin counties have closed sections due to construction work, the State Highway Department reports.

The department said the latest report shows the same closed sections as last week. Closed areas by counties are:

Dane—113 in and near Madison; Jefferson and Waukesha—59 east of Palmyra; Racine—11-20 east of I94; Jefferson—18 between Helenville and Sullivan; Washington—33 between Allentown and West Bend; Winnebago—26 southwest of 41; Columbia—33 between 146 and 89; Juneau—82 west of Mauston; Monroe—173 between Valley Junction and Mather; Lincoln—51 north of Merrill, and Pepin—and Maiden Rock.

Appleton Building Continues to Buck Nationwide Trend

101 Residential Units Started In City Since Beginning of Year

Appleton continues to buck the national housing trend with new home construction amounting to $1,716,600 for the first five months of this year.

The 101 residential units started since Jan. 1 represent a 25 per cent increase over the total for the corresponding period a year ago.

While there was a healthy increase in new home building here, the national average dipped by seven per cent.

Last month, Building Inspector Charles Magnette issued 24 permits for homes, the total construction cost amounting to $444,500.

Census Bureau Report

In May of last year, 18 homes were constructed at a cost of $280,500.

That private housing starts on the national level declined last month as compared to May, 1963, was confirmed this past week by the U.S. Census Bureau.

Up to May of 1963 there were 75 homes built at a cost of $1,-888,300.

While residential building in Appleton is up $328,300 over last year, general construction totals are down. A year ago at this time there was already $4,448,-961 in all kinds of new construction in the books. The five-month total for this year is $3,-973,411.

Market Firm

As Appleton continues to spawn new housing, the real estate market remains firm.

Government appraisers say residential real estate throughout the Fox Cities is selling at eight to 12 per cent higher than the Fond du Lac-Oshkosh and De Pere-Green Bay areas.

A local banker said home loan business has been good in Appleton this year, reflected by the increased residential construction.

Totals

New apartment building has tapered off here, a trend noticeable across the country, according to a report of the National Association of Home Builders.

Appleton's monthly home construction totals to date:

January, 12	$177,500
February, 10	190,500
March, 28	465,600
April, 27	438,500
May, 24	444,500
Total—101	$1,716,600

Appleton's overall construction totals for the year compared to

	1964	1963
January	$584,813	$1,708,545
February	286,999	182,860
March	699,935	414,103
April	1,068,115	1,238,462
May	1,333,549	904,991
Totals	$3,973,411	$4,448,961

Your Life Insurance

QUESTION: What are the things about life insurance that differ for farmers compared with city families?

Answer: None. Life insurance applies to the farmer just exactly the same as to the city family — with the possible exception that the farmer always has a business interest involved as he is owner of a sizeable business, whereas only a small proportion of city families have a business involvement.

The farmer, like a sole proprietor in the city, has a going business to leave to his heirs or to arrange for a sale for the benefit of the heirs. Life insurancd is invaluable for this. Most farms have fairly heavy outstanding indebtedness, mortgage, machinery loans, seed loans, etc. Life insurance is widely used to pay these off in case of death. The same family income needs, educational plans, retirement income provisions, all exist for farm and city families alike.

To meet these needs, the farmer uses the same policy plans as any one else, the specific plan being selected to best fit the specific need. It is true that in the past farmers generally did not have as much life insurance as the city families, largely depending on the family taking over the going farm at death. But in the past decade or two a great change has teken place and in some areas today farmers show greater average ownership of life insurance than do families in nearby cities — possible due to the mechanized and highly capitalized nature of the modern farm and partly because farmers have become more expert in family economics.

Shrub to Tree, Evergreens Do Beautify Home

There is not a home property in the United States that can look beautiful all year long without evergreens.

There are evergreens for every location. The foliages vary considerably in relation to form, color and texture. They may be so low as to creep along the ground, or high enough to reach into the sky. They are the most important plants in the home landscape, from the hedge, to the specimen shrub or tree.

Some evergreens have lovely flowers, while others, in the warmer climates bear some of our most delicious fruits.

Advice Needed

Consult with your nurseryman in purchasing these plants. Evergreens grow in many shapes and sizes, according to the American Association of Nurserymen, and one should know what he is doing in buying them. He usually cannot tell just by observing them stacked side by side. One should have knowiedge of how the plant will grow after purchase. Nurserymen have such knowledge.

Every plant should fit its location on the property. You don't want a tall - growing tree near windows, or even too close to the house. The right trees or shrubs planted in the right places should be the goal with evergreens.

Wind Breaks

Evergreens usually are used for hedges or "wind breaks," in order to make the property warmer in winter and cooler in summer. A solid evergreen "wind break" will tone down cold winds for a distance along the ground of 10 times the height of the planting. It should be planted on the side of the property from which the cold winds blow. Plantings also can be made to channel the breeze into your outdoor living room in hot summer weather. The hedges insure privacy.

Actress Mails Her Pet Dog

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gale Gilmore isn't sure how it happened.

She walked up to a Sunset Strip mailbox Thursday with a package to mail in one hand and her black and white mongrel puppy, Snipper, in the other.

"I got confused," she said And she mailed the dog.

Gale, 21, blonde, and an actress, called the dog and cried. Someone else called the newspapers. A passerby called the post office.

"The postal authorities came" Miss Gilmore explained later. "A man in a uniform with a key. He opened the box, and there was Snipper, right down in the bottom. Some lady had dropped a letter on his head."

Snipper emerged without so much as a postmark, and Miss Gilmore got nothing more than a hard look from the postal authorities.

"If this was a Hollywood publicity stunt," said one, "it's the first time in Hollywood history that anyone has mailed a dog."

Questions Answered

Appraiser's Task Difficult, Vital

Who is the residential appraiser? What does he consider in appraising the value of a piece of property? What does the term "value" mean?

The questions and others are answered in the pamphlet, "What Is an Appraisal?", published by the Society of residential appraisers, and distributed in this area by the Fox Valley Chaper, Society of Residential Appraisers.

The market value means the price that would be agreed upon by a typical buyer and seller in the open market, the pamphlet declares.

"An appraiser always should be objective and neutral. It should make no difference whether he is working for the buyer or for the seller, for the condemning agency or for the owner whose property is being taken. Market value is still market value and the appraisal value should be the same.

The appraiser considers not only the physical property but the good and bad aspects of the neighborhood, its conveniences, zoning, taxes and many other factors.

Three Approaches

To estimate the value, an appraiser may approach the problem in three ways. He can consider the prices recently paid for similar properties in the area; he can estimate the cost to reproduce the property less depreciation, and he can also consider the value of income from the property as a rental unit.

"An owner is not necessarily entitled to a profit or even to the return of his entire investment when he sells a property," the pamphlet continues. "Sums spent for repairs or maintenance cannot properly be regarded as sums to be recovered when selling.

"Usually so-called 'improvements' or additions to the home do not increase the value by as much as their cost. . . Appraisers have access to reliable information on sales which the average owner does not have.

"The time element is important and is carefully considered by the appraiser. One owner may have spent a considerable time waiting for the highest possible price before selling. Another may not have been in position to wait so long and his property might have been offered at a price that would promptly attract buyers.

"The rise of construction costs and the real estate market since the purchase of your home might indicate a higher value today. However, the appraiser may find that these increases in value have been offset by depreciation due to age, style changes, natural wear and tear or postponement of needed repairs."

The society urges the appraisal client to make sure the appraiser knows the purpose of the appraisal, the type of report desired, the delivery date and the fee.

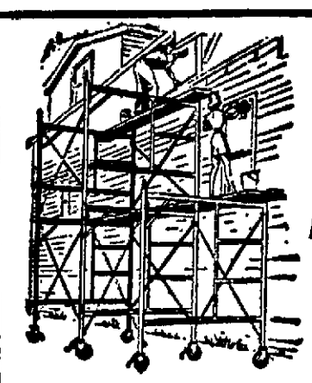

"Do not ask for and expect a certain answer. If you know the answer beforehand, you don't need an appraiser. No responsible appraiser will sign a report which does not reflect his own best judgement."

Individuals most often use appraisals to help them estimate the value of a home they may purchase; set a proper price on a home they have for sale; ascertain a fair return for property taken for public use, and justify inheritance tax and capital gains payments.

Dan Folz, District fish manager, displays one of the bigger largemouth bass taken in the seining operation. The bass would be a prize catch for any fisherman but it's size is dwarfed by 6-foot, 7-inch, Folz. Actually the fish is about 20 inches long. (Post-Crescent Photo)

A Good Fish Population was found during a recent seining operation on Shadow Lake in Waupaca County. Among the lunkers measured were a 33-inch northern and several largemouth bass which ranged up to 20 inches. Dan Folz, district fish manager, recorded the sizes of all fish taken while Ted Schwockert, another department worker handled the measuring. Schwockert measures a large northern. Fisheries Men Untangling Mysteries of Lakes, Streams

Use Seine, Electric Shock In Effort to Classify All Fish Species, Population

BY JOHN SAWALL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

WAUPACA — There are 272 lakes in the three-county bloc made up of Waupaca, Outagamie and Portage They range in size from big lakes covering hundreds of acres to others which are little more than oversized puddles.

How many fish and what species are there in each of these lakes? What is the condition of the fish population? How are reproducing conditions? How is the feed and what type of feed exists? Should the lake be managed?

Getting answers to some of these questions and others will be one of the main projects of District Fish Manager Dan Folz this year.

Folz will not be able to gather all of this information, but he will obtain the basic data on several lakes. Later, the preliminary information gathered by Folz will be used by a lake classification team which is compiling complete "book" on all lakes of the state.

Program Accelerated

Work on compiling information on the state's lakes has been going on for several years but is now being accelerated. Complete files on many of the area lakes are already stashed away in Folz' office but in other instances, no one has an inkling of what kind of fish inhabit a lake, if any at all. Along with doing reconnaissance surveys of lakes of which little is known, data on many of the other lakes is being upgraded.

Last winter many of the lakes were gill netted and now seining and boom shocking is being conducted. Random sampling of this type is fairly reliable, Folz said. Some of the lakes which have been the subject of sein and boom shock checks are Shadow, Kating, Junction, Marl and the Big Falls Pond.

At Shadow Lake, which is located in the City of Waupaca, the fish population was checked along the northwest shore. Using a 2,000 foot sein and following the 22 foot depth contour, which didn't put the nets out too far, it was learned that the lake contained a wide variety and heavy population of fish.

Big Bass

For example, the 29 northerns taken ranged in length from 19 to 33 inches and the 70 largemouth bass, which opened the eyes of many of the area fishermen watching the count, went up to 20 inches. There is an abundance of crappies, Blue gills, perch and even some red horse and suckers. The exact count taken was 29 northern, 70 largemouth bass, 431 crappies, 219 bluegills, 299 perch, and 21 red horse.

No trout was taken from Shadow Lake because they probably were in deeper water, Folz said.

Junction Lake near Rural was boom shocked recently and although the lake is extremely weedy and not adaptable to boom shocking, it was found that it contained northerns of fair size, blue gills, bass, and a few bullheads along with an abundant supply of suckers and redhorse.

Years to Complete

Although it will take several years to get complete information on all lakes, surveys will be made on as many lakes as possible this year. Boom shocking is scheduled for the Chain O' Lakes in August, Folz said. Next fall he will boom shock the north branch of the Little Wolf River to check the trout population. Eventually every stream as well as the lakes will be classified. This information will tell the fish management department what type of fish should be stocked and where.

Lack of manpower is the one thing that will slow the project, Folz said. This is one of the reasons a special crew is being used to make a complete classification. When the classification is completed the information will be compiled, printed and made available to the public.

Big Mayfly Hatch On Rill Drives Fly Fisherman 'Buggy'

Trout Frustrate Angler by Taking Natural Feed, Ignoring Dry Flies

Post-Crescent News Service

WAUTOMA — If a fisherman possesses any degree of latent mental instability, the surest way to bring it to the fore is to go trout fishing during a mayfly hatch.

Through the Wisconsin pickle growing center flow such trout waters as the White River, the West Branch of the White, the Mecan River, the Pine River and Willow Creek. Like many other streams in the state, they hold a good population of some rather awesome-sized brown trout. Unlike other streams, however, they feature a short period when the Mayflies hatch in profusion, the big trout go on a feeding orgy, and the fisherman goes slowly mad.

Makes the Season

These are rich streams with cool, fertile water flowing through meadow and brush, with banks of rich dark muck which provide nurseries for thousands of tiny Mayfly larvae. Annually, as the second week of June approaches, trout enthusiasts in these parts prepare for a week to 10 days of fishing that often makes the season for them.

But this can also be some of the toughest, most exasperating fishing a man can attempt.

This lesson was brought home quite forcefully to this writer a few nights ago on the brushy meandering waters of the West Branch of the White—one of the rare trout streams where natural reproduction naimtains a good population of sturdy pink-fleshed brown trout with no help from the hatchery truck

Things Looked Rosy

In the company of Bob Heding, conservation department area habitat supervisor from Oshkosh, we began working upstream plying the grass-hung banks with a muddler minnow Heding has a reputation for knowing every trout in the country on a first name basis, so when yours truly killed the first fish—a plump 13-incher—on a nymph, things looked rosy.

As evening shadows deepened, Heding recommended we take a stand by a deep hole on a sweeping curve and wait. After a short time, a small white fly was seen fluttering against the dark background of the brush.

Within minutes, the air had been transformed into a whirring mass of white bodies, slapping against face and hat, hovering like thick smoke over a campfire.

The quiet gliding water of the stream, deserted only moments before, erupted to life and first one, and then dozens of trout began a splashing slurping chorus as they sucked the spent flies from the surface.

Nerve Jangling

With caredul forethought, we had bent a close Mayfly imitation to the leader tipped, and now we sent the fly flicking over the darkened waters. It was nerve jangling to aim for one rising fish, only to have one sounding twice as large rise 10 feet behind you.

Time and again, the artificial floated within scant inches of rising fish, only to be refused. Failure led to exasperation, exasperation to haste, and haste to disaster. Misplaced casts snagged on the overhanging brush.

As pattern after pattern went by the wayside, it became more and more difficult to thread the gossamer leader through the tiny eye of the fly Still, the ravenous trout kept their antics up, often barely of the tip of the rod.

In desperation, I finally extracted a small deer-hair frog from my fly box. Designed for bass, this lure had no business on a trout stream, but at least it would float which is more than my other bedraggled offerings were now doing After what seemed like an eternity, using the moon as a background, I finally tied the creation on the line just as a prodigious "slosh" sounded from the far bank.

Calculating Right

Mentally calculating the right length of the cast for once, the frog dropped to the inky surface. There was another heavy splash and a sharp pull on the line. I struck, only to have the hook pull away from the unseen bulk. Thus nicked, the trout did not rise again.

Darkness, mosquitoes, failure and frustration had taken their toll, and I followed my guide through the brush and trees and toward the cars.

He had a fair night—four fish including several 16-inchers, but none of the big ones. On the main branch of the White, we found out later, a six pounder and several four and one-half pound browns were taken.

The secret—any big buggy deer-hair creation that floats well and doesn't look like one of the emerging Mayflies Fishermen, like others, get too soon old and too late smart.

Fondness for Outcast Strains Friendships

Lowly Mooneye Provides Topnotch Sport on A Flyrod, Tasty Table Fare, Angler Learns

BY W. R. DOBERSTEIN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

There are some peculiarities among fishermen that cause even the best of friends, after you've left the room, to look knowingly at each other and shake their heads sadly.

Size exaggerations and similar instances of swaying from the path of hard fact are readily tolerated Lacey thin excuses for why the stringer was light or the creel had considerable air in it — these too scarcely raise an eyebrow.

But admit that you cleaned . . . and permitted your wife to cook and serve . several of the off-beat fish species and the pathetic glances are shattering to your faith in fellow man

First Meeting

In my case, the finny character causing a strain of friendship bonds is the mooneye. Of course my acquaintance with the mooneye goes back a few years too. It's an acquaintanceship for which there's a soft spot in my head. The heart of the matter is something else again.

I blundered into my first mooneye on Lake Winnebago while trolling a small plug about five years ago. I was impressed. The fish burst out of the water in surface-clearing leaps three times on a long line and a fourth time after being worked within 15 yards of the boat. The lean silvery form with its remarkably large eyes and deep swallow tail puzzled me but my companion immediately informed me a conservation department man had told him the species name. The name fit

The opinion, based on superficial analysis scholarly treatise and hearsay, that the fish was unfit for table use did not find acceptance with me. A fish capable of such acrobatics and wearing such a resemblance to popular commercial varieties like herring and whitefish deserved, in my judgment, a first-hand test.

The next evening at the dinner table I discovered—to my unqualified delight—it was one of the luckiest decisions I'd ever made. My wife had baked the 13-inch mooneye in the company of a two-pound walleye. Other than smoking the fish, we could not have found a more preferred way of preparing the species than baking . . slow!

Found Lair

Until I discovered a mooneye lair in the Wolf River—again by accident—we enjoyed only one more such fish, baked, in several years But fishing one evening in a run on the river—don't expect me to name the exact spot—I was bothered by a rash of rises to an insect hatch Fishing for whatever would succumb to my spinning lures and not breaking any records I finally could stand it no longer and hastened back to my car to rig up my flyrod.

I got back in the water at the tailend of the feeding spree. But not too late to find out that the feeding fish were mostly mooneyes and they like a particular kind of dry fly. I took two that time. Since then I have taken a fair number of them, almost always with flies though occasionally they have responded to bait fished in a particular way.

I know natives along the river are familiar with the species and—as far as I know—have a low opinion of them in terms of their food. value. I console myself with the knowledge that a good many fishermen prefer the sport to the eating enjoyment.

Non-Fishy Flavor

My family enjoys fish though we could scarcely be rated as seafood lovers. Some varieties find better acceptance than others at our table. But baked mooneye really rates. Like its behavior when hooked, the fish is in a class by itself for its unusually sweet, non-fishy flavor.

With all the fish varieties we enjoy here in Wisconsin, it's doubtful many will ever be more than casually interested in mooneye. I'm a nut who goes for "hiodon tergisis" in every way. I'll even endure the scathing comments and pitying glances for the sake of my friendship with the mooneye.

Mooneye, Elsewhere Known as toothed herring and a look-alike cousin of commercially smoked goldeye, can be a very gamey fish when taken on a flyrod. These were caught in the upper Wolf River on dry flies, the only lure they'll respond to at times. Though rather soft-fleshed when fresh, mooneye have been found excellent when smoked or slowly baked. (Post-Crescent Photo)

3 Trophies Entered in Fish Test

A northern pike, a smallmouth bass and a German brown trout were the latest additions to the Post-Crescent Master Angler Contest.

A Rapala attracted the three-pound, one ounce bass landed by Jerry Van Ardsdale, Saxeville, on Partridge Lake June 20

Sheldon Klockzien, 123 Daniel Court, Combined Locks, registered the Northern It weighed nine pounds, 12 ounces and was taken on a plug near the Menasha Dam.

Registered in the trout division was a three-pound, 12 ounce brown Richard Zaddack, 1111 Algoma St., New London, took the fish on a night crawler Tuesday.

He declined to pinpoint his fishing hole.

State Trap Shoot Slated July 4-5 At Waukesha

Shotgunners who like to pulverize clay targets for fun and a chance to earn some money against competition in their own caliber will be converging on Waukesha on the Fourth of July weekend.

Following an open registered trap shoot July 4 at the Waukesha Gun Club, the Wisconsin Five-Man Team Championship will be held on July 5.

Any five persons representing clubs, sports shops, taverns, business firms towns, counties, other organizations, of just themselves, if they lack a sponsor, can compete for trophies and cash in a 100-target event. Last year a team score of 481 X 500 won the state five man team for the Class 5 award.

Until last year, the five-man team shoot was held in conjunction with the State Trap Shoot, but entries got too large to handle and it has been converted to a separate event. The State Trap Shoot will be held at the Waukesha Gun Club July 24-26 It is the nation's largest state shoot.

Entries may be made at the club grounds on the day of the shoot All shooters must be Wisconsin residents No advance entries will be accepted.

Catfish Has Restless Spirit; Bass Content

Catfish are travelers while smallmouth bass are content with their home grounds

Smallmouth bass tagged in Lake Michigan in the Door County area, travel rather short distances Distances may range from 10 to 12 miles, but most are caught within two to three miles from where they are tagged. The smaller the bass, the shorter the distance traveled Catfish, on the other hand, are great travelers with one catfish leaving the Sheboygan River and being caught near Gary, Ind.

Just goes to show the "curiosity of a cat".

The Wide World of Fox Cities Women

BY JEAN OTTO
Post-Crescent Woman's Editor

Fox Cities women are among the 'travelingest, workingest, doingest' women in the country. Case in point is the group of 10 who hold important state and national offices in their respective organizations.

The women have risen to leadership through the ranks, serving in many capacities in their local groups. Their intelligence and energy have been recognized by the endowment of increasing responsibility on their very able shoulders. To their positions, whether president of the National VFW Auxiliary or State Monitor for the Catholic Daughters of America, they bring resourcefulness, a willingness to work, fresh viewpoints and the acceptance of service that spell reliability and accomplishment.

Visits Every State

Mrs. William Campbell, 579 Oak St., Neenah, admits she hasen't seen much of her daughter, Mrs. Melvin Rausch, and four grandchildren this year. Her duties as national head of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary have taken her to every state of the union except Ohio—and that's on this week's travel agenda. The busy Mrs. Campbell's journeys have taken her to Germany, Puerto Rico, Washington D. C. and New York City several times, and to Hawaii and Alaska.

Elected to the national presidency last August, Mrs. Campbell has held office during a time that the special program was 'Opportunity for Friendship', a theme carried out through foreign students visiting in the United States. The Auxiliary attempted to show an interest in each of the visitors, creating closer understanding and friendship and promoting peace between all nations.

Admits the Effort

She has devoted almost every minute of the year to her work, and admits it's been tiring. Many mornings she's up at 4:30 a.m. to make a plane connection; other times she gets home in the deep dark hours when everyone else is long asleep.

She arrived home at midnight Sunday from a trip that took her to Arizona, Minnesota and Georgia.

The main purpose of her organization is to assist the needy or hospitalized veteran and his family. The Auxiliary also has special aids for its own members, one of which is a cancer program which gives a financial grant to any woman who has been a member for a year and finds she has cancer. The grant helps defray hospital and doctor expenses and is a unique advantage of Auxiliary membership.

Elected Unanimously

Before her unanimous election as president at the Washington D. C. convention, Mrs Campbell served nationally as assistant conductress, color bearer, patriotic instructor, chief of staff, council member and guard. She served by unanimous choice as conductress, chaplain and junior and senior vice presidents.

Next year she plans to sit home and take it easy. She's earned her easy chair and slippers.

Altrusa's Governor

Mrs. George Hoffer, 536 W. Seymour St., is elbow deep in her office as Governor of District Seven of Altrusa International She was elected April 26 at the convention at Omaha, Neb The District includes seven states and Canada, and, as governor, she will visit all 44 clubs in the district each year. Her duties involve mountains of correspondence, with presidents of all clubs and special chairmen on her letter-list for the six to eight releases she sends out each year. She must see that her main chairmen report on time; relay to each president and specific committee the information sent her by International, attend and supervise all district conferences; be present at the International convention in Dallas in July, 1965; attend International Board meetings—the next is July 13 in Chicago, and present charters to new clubs in the district when they are approved by the International Board.

Option on Time

For the next two years, Mrs Hoffer smiles, her time belongs to the district — when they need her anywhere she must be ready to go. She spends eight to 10 hours a day fulfilling her responsibilities, and still keeps her son, George Jr., 10, aware he has a mother, and her husband from feeling neglected. The two men in the family go along on most of her trips, attending special programs planned for the male contingent.

Altrusa's aims focus on service to both the individual and the community. Thev help foreign students coming to the U. S. through grants-in-aid; women who need to finance a vocation and become self-employed by sponsoring their training, hiring baby-sitters while they learn, and recommending them for jobs.

Their varied membership is assured by permitting only one member from any given category of business or executive position.

Inspired Furnishings for Fall

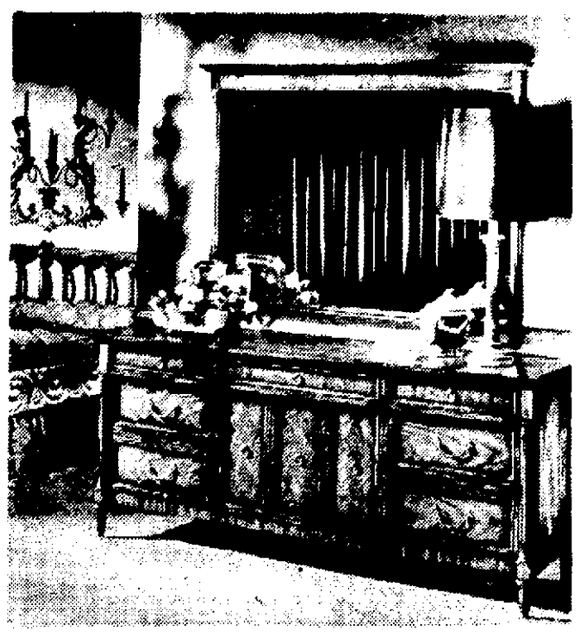

Interesting new focal points in home furnishings were revealed at the summer International Home Furnishings Market this month in Chicago. Designers, trade representatives and members of the press were on hand for the opening exhibit of furnishings that will be offered to the public in the fall.

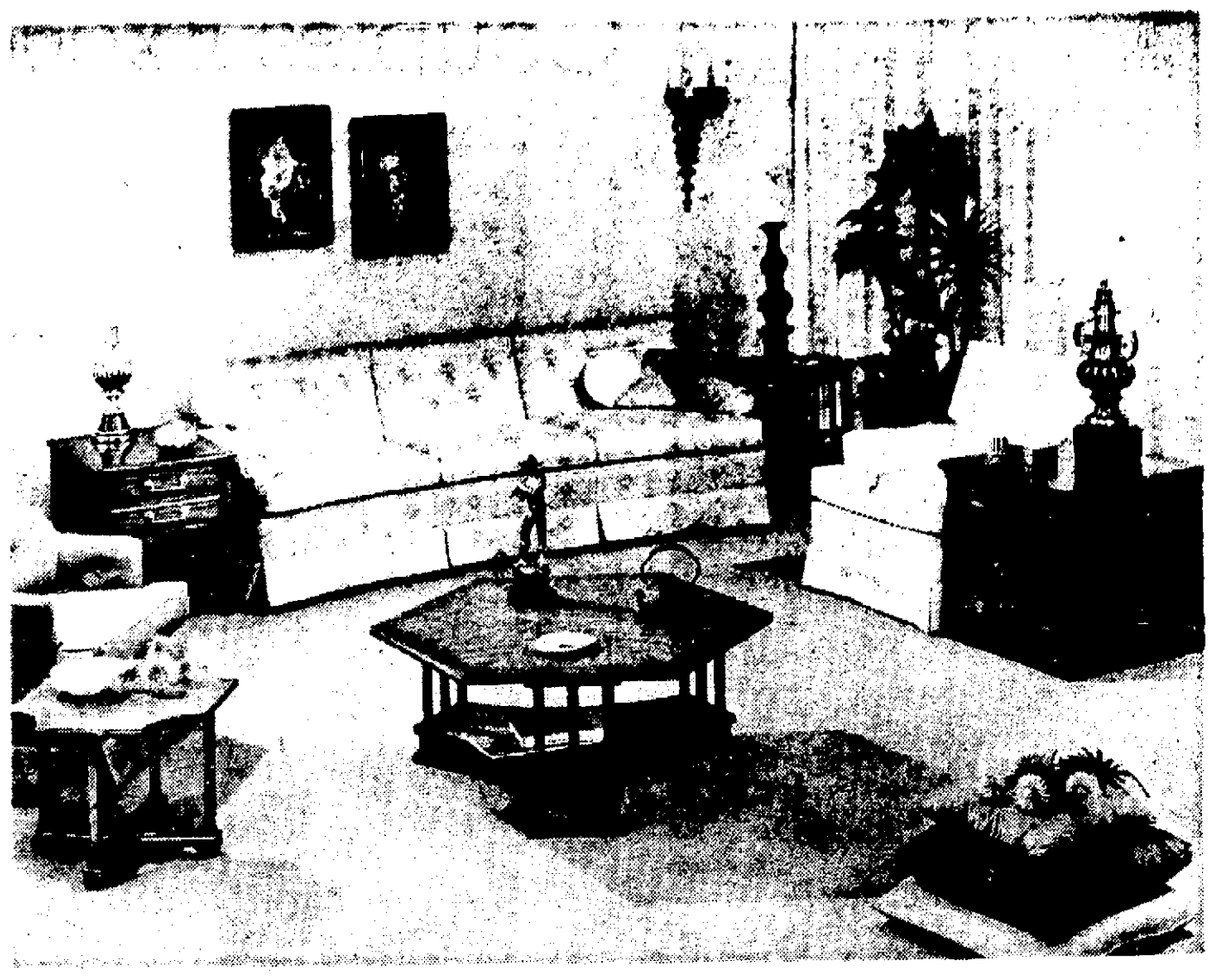

Inspiration for the interior furnishings came from varied sources, including all periods of history and all parts of the world. The Oriental influence is abundant, as is that of ancient Greece and popular French and Italian Provincial.

Whether shopping for a formal living room or a play area, the prospect for fall looms interesting and new in the home furnishings world.

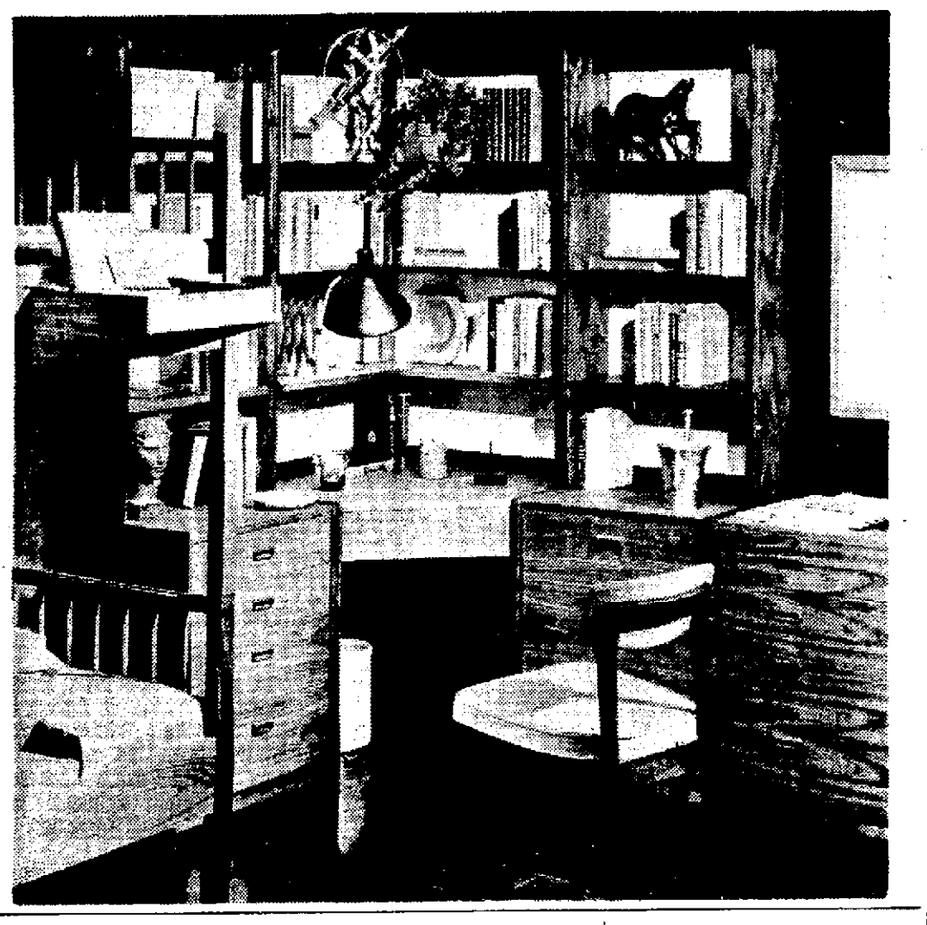

This handsome French provincial piece conceals all its practical storage advantages when closed. The server is part of a dining room grouping shown at the Merchandise Mart Showrooms this month. A lined drawer is a thoughtful addition for silver storage. At right, the days of Louis XVI and Italian classic architecture are the inspiration for a dramatic new collection, which utilizes interesting arches and intricate decorative detailing in a dresser and companion mirror. A complete set includes dresser, chest and bed styles.

A classic feeling is designed to blend occasional tables with contemporary or traditional surroundings. Fine cherry wood is combined with accents of imported elm burl and burnished brass hardware. The wide variety of pieces will permit easy filling of particular needs, with a generous-sized low cabinet commode, a large hexagonal cocktail table, an octagonal chair-side table or small hostess tables fitting wherever needed.

This lamp, with its slim ceramic cylinder is compatible with today's decorating trends in both furniture and fabrics. It harmonizes with contemporary or traditional furnishings and its 38-inch height assures good lighting. At left is part of a collection known as 'portable architecture'. It does things standard furniture won't, such as running under windows and going around corners. The pieces are available in oiled walnut, some with lacquer accents and others with plastic laminate tops.

Pair Says Promises Saturday

MENASHA—The Rev. Carl Towley officiated at 2 p.m. Saturday at the double ring wedding of Miss Sharyn Lea Zimmerman and Norbert Gawlick in St. Timothy Lutheran Church.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Zimmerman, 932 Jefferson St. Mr. Gawlick is the son of Mrs. Jo Gawlick, 137 Gruenwald Ave., Neenah.

A sister of the bride, Miss Judith Zimmerman was maid of honor. Acting as bridesmaids were Misses Judy Chartrand and Lois Zimmerman. Miss Catherine Zimmerman was a flower girl.

Best man was Gerald Gawlick, the bridegroom's cousin. Groomsmen were Robert Hooyman and Robert Gawlick. Ushering duties were performed by William Zimmerman and Thomas Meyer. Douglas Hinahara was ring bearer.

A reception was held at the Marathon Union Hall.

The bride is employed at Geo. Banta Co. and her husband at Gilbert Paper Co.

Musician To Compete In Chicago

BY HAZEL THIEL
Post-Crescent Correspondent

SHERWOOD—"I really would like to try for the world" the young musician said, half dreaming aloud.

Marilyn Gosz, route 1, Menasha, will know if her dream has come true after she plays her accordian in the National Olympics Accordian Contest, in Chicago Tuesday. This is the preliminary test to the world accordian competition to be held in September in Toronto, Canada.

Marilyn has been playing the accordian for six years. She started when she was 9 years old in a makeshift studio in Sherwood conducted by an Appleton music store.

Before that her musical beat had been confined to toy accordians and a ukelele which was a birthday gift when she was six. She strummed the uke until a broken string forced it into retirement. "It's still broken. we never bothered to get it fixed," she laughs.

Always Placed First

Marilyn has placed first in every contest she has entered. In 1961 and 1962 she was state accordian champion and in 1962 was named winner of the Chicagoland Music Festival, her biggest venture to date. She has been a constant winner of the North - Eastern Music Festival held every year in Green Bay, and is the youngest grand champion.

Classical music is the talented teenager's favorite, and one of her goals is to prove that the accordian is capable of producing this music. Tuesday she will play "Danza Latina," "Capriccio Brilliant" and sight read one piece.

Being nervous doesn't seem to be a requirement of contest entrances. Marilyn practices four hours a day during the summer and says, "I just love the audience."

Besides being a talented accordianist, Marilyn shows her versitality by rattling off "Alley Cat" on the piano. She also does her own accordion arrangements and toys with writing music. Ironically her own compositions fall into the boogie woogie class. She hopes someday when not working on contests, to be able to copyright one of her compositions.

As well as aiming "for the world" the energetic young lady, who lives with her widowed mother, Mrs. Irene Gosz and sister Kathleen, wants to go to college, major in music, then probably teach.

....And She Wore White Gloves

The "White Glove Girls" of Manpower Inc. were introduced to a new training project at a coffee hour one Saturday morning in March. The training program enables the women to brush up on office skills. Talking over unusual experiences as Manpower girls, above, are Mrs. Robert Noffke, Combined Locks, Mrs. Michael Hanley, Neenah, and Mrs. N. R. Dover, Appleton. At right, Mrs. Irwin Greene, left, manager of Manpower Inc., discusses an assignment with Mrs. Victor Petersen, Neenah.

BY SENA GRAY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Mary is a woman of many gloves — rubber gloves for housework, canvas gloves for gardening and white gloves for stepping into the business world.

Mary may be a housewife with only a few hours a week available to spend outside her home; she may be a grandmother who fills many joyful moments with her grandchildren, or a college student or teacher home for the summer months.

Whenever she has the chance, she exchanges her rubber and canvas gloves for white gloves as she competes with the career girl in the white glove world.

Wears Her Badge

The sparkling clean white gloves are Mary's symbol — her badge of honor. They prove she is rated by her employer, Manpower Inc., as skilled, courteaus and efficient. And Mary is proud of it, because these gloves are not given to anyone—they are earned. Only women with skill and ability who have passed Manpower's special training course receive them.

Because of the opportunities Manpower affords, women who have not been employed for ten or 20 years have been able to renew and polish old skills. They use these skills at their own convenience.

A Temporary Service

The rewards are great, too, the temporary-help girls agree. They feel a revitalization when once again they are part of a business world they cannot give their fulltime. The new friends and contacts are rewarding and for some, it gives a fresh outlook on life.

A temporary help service, the women must be skilled and over 18 years of age. Some fit business hours in between school hours, other jobs or husbands' shifts.

One Appleton woman was hired to help in a business firm for one week and she has been there 19 weeks. Because the agency is the employer, the white glove girls are not allowed to stay on at a firm as permanent employees. They must wait 90 days after their last day of employment at the firm before they are eligible for permanent work there.

The excitement and challenge are stimulating for the "Girl in the White Gloves" as she travels from job to job. She may be employed as a typist, stenographer, office machine operator, file clerk, receptionist or general office worker. There are opportunities for models, store demonstrating, convention work, survey interviewing or mystery shopping. One Manpower girl was hired to take dictation from John Wayne beside his swimming pool!

A wonderful new 'work-travel' program is available to the women. The company has offices on five continents and has over 110,000 clients. The white gloves girls can work their way around the world if they wish. The home-town office contacts firms in cities to which the girl will travel. She is given immediate employment and works until she has saved enough money to move on to the next city and her next job. Their training certificate and identification card become 'work credentials'. Mrs. Irwin Greene, manager of the Appleton Bureau, said there is always a call for translators in other countries.

Works For Wig

The reasons for the women accepting part-time employment are as varied as the women themselves. One girl is working just to earn enough money to buy a wig! A widow said that it helps her get back into the swing of things and feel a part of this world again.

The husbands have opinions, too. "I don't know how I'd feel about my wife working everyday, but I like temporary work because it keeps her mind alert. Now she has something to talk about besides the children and still the housework doesn't slide.

A couple agreed that the temporary work has helped make their hopes and goals come true.

Miss Nancy Bremmer, a teacher in Beaver Dam, joins Manpower's forces each summer. She is doing temporary service as a dictaphone operator at the First National Bank where she takes a letter from Jerome Captaine, assistant vice president.

Miss Sharon Komp is a student at Wisconsin State College, Oshkosh, in the winter and an employee of Manpower Inc. in the summer months. She is serving as a switchboard operator at I. Bahcall Inc.

Mrs. Lloyd Siewers delights in doing a variety of jobs. She is working at a calculating machine at Appleton Wire Works at the present time. She also does product demonstrating.

Your Problems

Give Children Genuine Love With 'Don'ts' and 'Musts'

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word to the parents who signed themselves "Failures?" Welcome to the Club. It's one of the largest in the world.

Landers

My husband and I raised two sons and three daughters. There were times when we thought we had done a miserable job with every one of them. Somehow—as if by a miracle—our children grew up to be well-adjusted, successful, happy adults. As I look back on those trying years we did a great deal of needless soul-searching and hand-wringing.

I'm not much of a writer, Ann, but please print this inadequate letter, then go on to tell parents who consider themselves "Failures" what I am saying so poorly. Thank you.—Blessed

Dear Blessed: You said it just right. I only wish you had stayed with the subject a bit longer.

Growing children inevitably disappoint their parents at times. Introspective parents often view a child's disappointing behavior as their failure. They beat their breasts and cry, "What did we do wrong?"

In a great many cases the parents did nothing wrong. The child is merely giving vent to his natural rebellion, his normal hostility. Nobody likes to be told "You can't do that. You can't go there. You must do this."

There are times when all children hate their parents, even if only for a minute, and parents should remember it—from their own childhood.

If you give your children genuine love (not just hugs and kisses) a sense of personal worth, discipline generously seasoned with justice—outlining the firm and definite boundaries, so they'll know precisely how far they can go—your children will grow up straight and strong and they will rise to call you "Blessed."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband passed away two years ago so I went back to work at my profession. I am a registered nurse.

Mother lived with us until six months ago when she moved to Phoenix to be with her sister who was recently widowed. I then hired a young woman to keep house for my daughter and myself. I prefer night cases so I need a dependable person at home at all times.

My daughter, who is an alert 5-year-old, told me yesterday that Miss Violet, the housekeeper, has men friends who visit often. She said, "They stay all night and eat breakfast here." I questioned Miss Violet and she denied everything. She insists the child has a vivid imagination and cannot separate fairy stories from reality.

I'm beside myself, Ann. I need a housekeeper desperately and Violet is a good one. But I can't tolerate what I suspect is going on. Can you guide me? —M.M.M.

Dear M.M.M.: Do you ever pop in at home unexpectedly? I recommend it.

Lutheran Ceremony Performed

OSHKOSH—Wedding promises were exchanged by Miss Donna Jean Nelson, and Juris Meimanis, Menasha, in a 2 p.m. ceremony Saturday at Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran Church chapel. The Rev. Paul Lueders officiated at the double ring rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Nelson, 520 Pleasant St. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Meimannis, 411 Pine St., Menasha.

The bride chose Mrs. Konrad Schodorf as her matron of honor, with Konrad Schodorf serving as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. Meimanis is employed at Drucks Electric, Menasha.

When they return from a honeymoon trip to Canada, the couple will reside at 343½ Fifth St., Neenah.

24 Versions of Life in Paris Coming From Les Voyageurs

Twenty - four different impressions of France are crossing the Atlantic to Appleton homes. Sights and sounds and feelings are all recorded for the parents of 'Les Voyageurs', spending 47 days in a land whose language they have studied since grade school.

For most of the group, the jet flight from Chicago to Montreal to Paris was a first, and all sent their feelings as they crossed the ocean.

Alice French writes,

"Quite a bit of turbulence over the ocean so we had to change altitudes. Then beautiful sunrise over Shannon, Ireland. We could see green patches, hedges and small cottages — all appeared so small from 33,000 feet. Finally, France, and a bird's eye view of the Seine and Eiffel Tower. French highways are simply unbelievable. All people go when, where and at whatever speed they wish. In town people stop cars where they wish and get out if parking is not to be found as we did much to the dismay of the 'agents de police', but they didn't say much as they were busy with others who were backing up in the middle of traffic."

Miss French, staying in Montmorency, a suburb north of Paris, with Sue J. Miller and the Piskine family, describes the town as quaint and old, and her new mother as "quite old, wonderful and kind".

Staying in Eaubonne

Ted Kloehn is living in Eaubonne, as are six other Voyageurs. He says of his family,

"They knocked themselves out for me. The mother is so kind and helpful. She's the only one except the daughter who can speak any English. They have a son, 15, and a cute daughter, 16. The grandparents have a car and are fun to be with. We spent all day today (the first day) at their house. In World War II they concealed an American aviator from the German gestapo. They're very interesting to talk to. Everything is in French. They speak slowly to me and I stumble around with them. I'm having a ball!"

Deb Baker tells about her new 'hometown':

"Eaubonne is a fascinating town. Most of the houses are stone with red tiled roofs. As you look out from the balcony of this apartment there is a forest of red roofs pointing in all directions banked by all sorts of trees."

Visit French School

Of her first trip to a French school, she says:

"Everyone was so nice to me that I felt like a real celebrity. I had conversation about everything from jets to French expressions I shouldn't use. That afternoon we went to a French finishing school in a nearby town for our gouter, which is the little lunch you eat about 4 p.m. We had cakes and cookies and drank vittels delicieux, a soft drink of fruit juice and carbonation which everyone drinks like water. A choir of little uniformed girls with bows on their sleeves sang and were magnificent. A teacher was retiring and a bunch of other teachers gave speeches about her, and she was crying into her vittels delicieux. She finally decided not to retire when the school needed and wanted her so much. Everybody clapped and whistled at this statement."

Miss Baker tells her sister to advise 'Mom' she's gained 10 pounds. "The thing I really get fat on is the bread. It's the long kind, and you just tear it and gobble it with every course. You don't put bread on your plate, you put it at the side and just grab at it. I eat about half a four-foot loaf a meal! I've also tried tomatoes, eggplant, salad with oil and vinegar, soft, mushy cheese, mustard, potatoes with oil and vinegar, bird fat, pate of pork, fat sausage, uncooked bacon, peas with oil and vinegar, marvelous French fries, beans with oil and vinegar and oil and vinegar with oil and vinegar."

In a practical vein, Jane Robinson tells her parents:

"I've had to wash all my clothes by hand, hang them out and then iron them. It's not so bad. The food has been a lot better — more American — the first few days it was difficult to accustom myself to hard crusted bread, cold packaged toast (very hard), wine (not so hard) and several plates a meal.

Jo Slezak, living in Paris with a family that has two small youngsters, tells her parents:

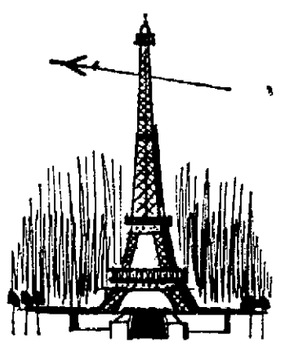

"You should see this apartment. The building is very old, just like in our paintings by Utrillo. But this apartment is just darling. 1886 was the date of the construction. It's near the Champs Elyssees. They have beautiful antiques and the apartment fits the furniture.

"I'm very tired. I'm very lonesome. I wish I was home and could eat some of your food, Mom, and just sit around and have a soda. I'm so sick of wine, it's terrible, real bitter. I'm dying for some mashed potatoes."

In large letters at the bottom of the page, she scrawled, "I'm lonesome. Come and get me."

Beth Borsum describes dinner at the home of her family's friends in Paris:

"It began at noon — we arrived at the apartment — two girls, husband and wife. I loved them from the minute they shook my hand. Well, I began eating. First, French hors d'ouevres, then little pizzas, then dinner, first a vegetable salad with eggs, tomatoes, etc. one thing at a time, then salmon (cold, very good) then roast beef, then lettuce salad, then something very delectable (I don't know the name — it looked awful), French bread throughout the whole meal, then fruit, then cheese, then coffee, then chocolate — how do you like that? Then I danced the hully gully and the twist with the father.

John Mumme is keeping a diary of his experiences and sending it to his family every week in place of letters. He, Ginny Logan and Kay Shearier are staying with the Verquin family, parents of Danielle, an exchange student here two years ago. He writes:

"Every time we say 'hi' we must shake hands and the women kiss each others' cheeks."

"The people in Paris are not what you might think. They are very poor and the men have long, uncombed (to an extent) hair."

True to boy fashion, he and Terry Maves, who was with the Verquins before moving to his own family, were constantly hungry.

We bought a family-sized bottle of coke and Fanta for about 45 cents, two large bags of potato chips for two francs and a big candy bar and had a banquet."

Jane Otto, in Eaubonne, informs her family:

"Yesterday the seven of us took the train into Paris. From there we took the Metro. It was all very exciting and we felt so independent of our French families and rather dependent on each other. We saw les Halles, la Louvre, les Tuilleries, la Seine, Notre Dame and the Tour Eiffel. No one could believe it! We went to the top of the Eiffel Tower. The view is breath-taking. We walked all day and my feet were killing me. They still hurt today. We hit the rush hour on both the Metro and train going home. I've never seen so many people in my life! Everyone was packed like sardines."

Craig Zelie says of his new home,

"It is not a very rich family but modest compared to our standards. So I think they were especially glad to have the presents. All the family gave me kisses on both cheeks."

Helps With English

Craig goes to the English classes at school, and answers questions put by the students. French schools do not dismiss for the summer until July 1. He is at the stage, he says, where he thinks only in French.

"We have just located the 'Dag's' of Paris," Susy Nock writes, "and we make it a point to stop here whenever we're in the city. Do you think it will disturb the balance of French-American relations if I refuse to smile when being charged 50 cents for a coke? Seriously, Paris must indeed be the most cosmopiolitan city in Europe. It sparkles with life and I am quite frantic to explore it all.

"I have accompanied my French mother to the market quite often and am beginning to enjoy fresh vegetables. What an experience! On one aisle there is meat (hanging up), across from that, shoes, slips, purses, etc., then more food."

Every one of the students has expressed in many 'beaucoups' his appreciation of the opportunity the trip has given and with eagerness and excitement is learning all he can about the city and the people that are his for the summer."

Newlyweds Honeymoon In New York

HILBERT — Honeymooning in New York City are Miss Rose Rolf and Cletus Dickrell who exchanged marriage promises at 10 a.m. Saturday at St. Mary Catholic Church, Stockbridge. The Rev. William Willinger celebrated the nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Regina Rolf, route 2, Hilbert. Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Dickrell, route 2, Elkhart Lake, are the bridegroom's parents.

An uncle of the bride, Harold Beil, escorted her to the altar. Miss Janet Beil, a cousin of the bride, assisted as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Luke Rolf and Miss Dianne Mytko.

Donald Dickrell, a brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Luke Rolf and Dennis Rolf. Guests were seated by Joseph Mytko and Daniel Beil.

Dorn's Twilight Zone, Charlesburg, was the setting for a wedding reception.

Mrs. Dickrell is employed at Marathon Division of American Can Co., Neenah. Mr. Dickell is engaged in farming at route 2, Elkhart Lake, where the couple will live.

Vows Said In Catholic Nuptial Rite

MENASHA—Mrs. Doris M. Junion, 725 Appleton St., and Robert P. LaSalle exchanged marriage promises 10 a.m. Saturday in a double ring ceremony at St. Gabriel Catholic Church, Neenah. The Rev. Lawrence Stingle officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Noskowiak, 308 Oak St. Mr. LaSalle is the son of Mr. C. R. LaSalle, 955 Adams St., Neenah.

Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan served as the couple's honor attendants.

A dinner was served at the Falcon Hall. The newlyweds will visit the New York World's Fair on their wedding trip.

Project for Unemployed Is Proposed

Nelson Bill Wants $1 Billion for Conservation Work

WASHINGTON (AP)— A $1 billion program to put the unemployed to work on conservation projects was proposed Friday by Sen Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis

He said this would be a second line of attack in the war against poverty and significantly reduce the nation's backlog of conservation work

Nelson proposed the establishment of a National Conservation Council. The council would have authority to finance up to 90 per cent of new federal, state county or municipal programs that would give jobs to unemployed men on priority conservation projects

"Today," he said, "America faces twin crises Through sheer failure to act we are wasting our natural resources at an ever increasing rate, at the same time there are millions of men who want to work but cannot find jobs who are wasting their lives in poverty

"I propose that we face both crises boldly and that we begin a massive program to put men to work to conserve our natural resources"

Nelson said that under his proposal up to 125,000 men would initially be employed on projects to conserve and develop timber, water and recreational resources.

LaCrosse Man Charged With Murder in Alaska

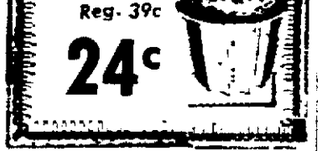

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)— Air Force Sgt Wayne F Conley, 29, of La Crosse, Wis, will go on trial Nov 9 on first degree murder charges.

Conley, stationed at Ft Wainwright, is charged with the Feb. 10, 1963, shotgun slaying of his wife, Erika, 23, mother of five.

He has pleaded innocent and is free on $20,000 bail.

en's Club roster of officers. Presently treasurer, she'll be running for third vice president at the Federation convention in Detroit in July.

Business manager of Crane Engineering, Mrs. McClanahan has been spared by her employer to fill these duties, as he feels the work is an educational program that gives her a broader view and increases her knowledge.

The Business and Professional Women's Club is composed of working women. Membership is not confined to any special profession or kind of work. Members feel their strength lies in their diversification. The goals are elevating the standards of all working women, in both business and professions; promoting their interests; extending their educational opportunities through the organization and regular educational systems, and attempting to establish a spirit of cooperation between all women's organizations.

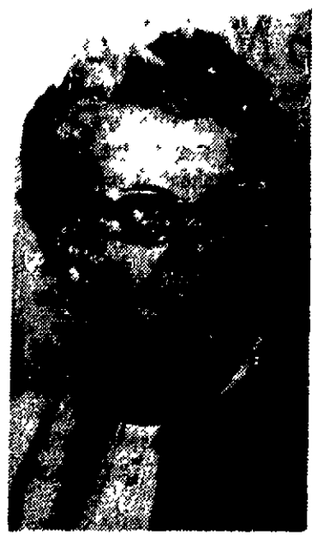

National Advisor

A member of the Valley BPW Club since 1946, Mrs. McClanahan joined because of her own interest in bettering the role of women and improving their opportunities. This spring she was national advisor at state conventions in Michigan, New Hampshire, Texas and North Dakota. She was in Washington, D. C. twice, for a budget conference of the Federation and for the Equal Pay Conference June 11.

The travel is worth every inconvenience, she says, noting that one cannot help become more tolerate of others' differing viewpoints with a close-hand observation of their special problems.

Mrs. Warren Dewey, Kimberly, is Grand Guardian of Jobs' Daughter's Bethel 24 and Grand Guardian of the International Order of Job's Daughters in Wisconsin.

Miss Evelyn Ecker, a member of the Appleton Business and Professional Women's Club, was recently named treasurer of the Wisconsin Federation.

Mrs. Edward Arndt has held all major offices in the Johnston - Blessman Post of the American Legion Auxiliary and is now serving as Department historian.

Mrs Robert Rossmeissl was elected state Monitor of the Wisconsin Court of the Catholic Daughters of America at the May convention.

Before her election as national treasurer, Mrs. McClanahan served as recording secretary and national finance chairman. On the state level she was secretary, vice president, president, members hip chairman and convention chairman.

Poppy Chairman

Promoting the poppy program across the nation is the specific duty of Mrs. Stanley Staidl, 704 S. Locust St., serving the American Legion Auxiliary as its national poppy chairman. She will hold the position until after the National convention Sept. 18 and 19 in Dallas. At that time she will run unopposed for central division vice president, which includes nine states. The new position is not necessarily a step toward the national presidency, she says. Whether or not she will work toward that goal is something she has not decided this far ahead.

A member of the Auxiliary for 35 years, Mrs Staidl has held all local officers and is in firm accord with the major purposes of the organization. This is service to the veteran, his family, the community and the nation. The carrying out of aims takes many forms, from working with youth to community drives. Included are Badger Boys' and Girls' States and Girls' Nation; rehabilitation programs in hospitals, and the Christmas Gift Shop and Birthday Corners which are little known but give the veteran a chance to give to his family, rather than be the recipient. He chooses gifts and has them wrapped and mailed without charge.

All Worthy Aims

Child welfare is a big part of the Auxiliary program, with assistance carried out at local, state and national levels. There are many facets to her organization, Mrs. Staidl says, and it deserves all the time and energy she can put into it. She couldn't begin to estimate the hours it takes. Letter writing alone averages about three days a week.

The charitable works of The International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons throughout the Fox Cities is carried on by 11 circles. In the state, there are 700 members in 30 circles, under the presidency of Mrs. Palmer McConnell, 324 Park Drive, Neenah. The president of the Wisconsin Branch has been a member of the Service Circle of Neenah-Menasha for 14 years, and has held almost all local offices, including the presidency.

Controlling Council

The control of the International Order rests in a Central Council, Mrs. McConnell says. As a member of that Council she attended its meeting in May, held just before the International Convention in Kansas City. Under its supervision are 2,000 circles in the U.S. and 72 outside the country. As with other state organization presidents, a large part of Mrs. McConnell's work is in correspondence with the groups under her jurisdiction. She is at the call of each circle whenever they request her help or presence.

The King's Daughters' purpose is three-fold: educational, philanthropic and religious. It is nondenominational, and religious in the sense that women are given the opportunity to fulfill their Christian purpose of loving and helping the poor and suffering. In this area they have carried out their goals by contributing to blood centers, retarded children, guidance centers, service emergency funds, hospitals, the mentally ill, Christmas baskets, shelters for the handicapped, the VNA, scholarships, Goodwill Industries, foreign missions, community funds, city homes, the North American Indian and a host of other projects.

In the Fox Cities, membership is invitational. It varies across the U.S., but there are few areas where The King's Daughters' charity has not touched many, either personally, through assistance to specific organizations, or the myriad events sponsored for their benefit.

Mrs McConnell says she finds the work personally rewarding. When she took it on she thought it would be a labor, but she has found it a gift.

Another state organization with leadership in the Fox Cities is Lawyers' Wives of Wisconsin. Mrs. Walter Brummund, 310 River Drive, was elected president at the June 11 state convention in Eau Claire. The organization is open to every wife or widow of every member of the Wisconsin State Bar Association.

Mrs. Brummund was one of the founders of the Outagamie County group, served as its first president, is a member of National Lawyers' Wives, and active in a host of other civic and women's organizations.

As president she will attend a meeting in New York City in August, will be in Sheboygan next week, attended the Fond-du Lac meeting in the spring, and will speak to the Milwaukee organization in October. She has an open invitation from all 10 affiliated groups.

A Paper World

Like other state and national officers, Mrs. Brummund lives in a paper world, keeping in touch with all local presidents and project chairmen. It is also her responsibility, and pleasure, to present the Portia Scholarship awards to women law students at Marquette University and the University of Wisconsin, given on the basis of scholarship, need, character and contribution to the life of the school. Lawyers' Wives maintain a memorial loan fund for students with the non-interest-bearing funds available to worthy law students at both Wisconsin law schools. They work on special programs for the observance of Law Day each May 1, giving talks in schools, on TV and to civic organizations.

When the restored Pioneer Law Office is dedicated at Stonefield, Wis., in September, Mrs. Brummund will be on hand to help do the honors.

The International Order of Job's Daughters is the organization into which Mrs. Warren Dewey, 223 W. Kimberly Ave., Kimberly, has thrown her efforts. Elected Grand Guardian of the Wisconsin group recently, she faces the happy prospect of officially visiting the 70 Bethels in the state. She will also call schools of instruction, helping each Bethel function efficiently within the framework of the organization.

Fun Jobs, Too

It's not all work, she smiles. Much of her responsibility involves the fun part of 'Jobies', such as installation and crownings of Honored Queens. She promotes good will and serves as a link between the Bethels and other Masonic organizations.

She's been active for six years, starting when her daughter Donna was a member. She affirms the organization purpose of promoting better respect for parents and elders, to the flag of the country, to God, and to the purpose of helping the girls become better adults and stronger individuals than they might otherwise be.

In August Mrs. Dewey will attend the world convention in Denver, carrying the Wisconsin flag in the flag ceremony.

Through the Ranks

In her rise to the presidency of the Wisconsin organization she has served as State Marshal, Guide, and vice Grand Guardian Her daughter Wanda, who will be a Kimberly High School Senior in the fall, is now a member of the group that does charity work for crippled children's hospitals, helps maintain the Masonic home at Dousman and assists Masonic groups in many capacities.

There is 'oodles' of correspondence and about 17,000 miles ahead of her before next May, Mrs. Dewey says with an eye to the months ahead.

Miss Evelyn Ecker, 317 E. College Ave., a member of the Appleton Business and Professional Women's Club, was recently elected Wisconsin Federation treasurer. She is a cost analyst and heads the Cost Accounting Department at Valley Iron Works.

Miss Ecker calls state office a full time commitment, involving being available whenever needed. She's just getting her 'leadership' feet wet, and is becoming acquainted with many facets of the organization that are completely new to her. She has stacks of mail to open and says she's really spending these first weeks finding her bearings.

As treasurer, she is responsible for all the bookkeeping of the Federation, involving 50 clubs and 2800 members. Obviously, some previous knowledge of accounting is a prerequisite.

In her local club, Miss Ecker has held all offices and several chairmanships. She helped organize the Oshkosh and Fond du Lac BPW Clubs and is presently working with an organizational group at Chilton.

Writing History

Mrs. Edward Arndt, 313 W. Winnebago St., is American Legion Auxiliary Department historian. She has completed a term as chaplain and will run for Department vice president at the July Convention at Wausau. In the Johnston-Blessman post she has held all major offices and chairmanships, and served as county and district president. As state historian she will write the year's Wisconsin history to compete with other histories at the national convention.

The personable Mrs. Arndt says she has no ambitions for national office but has thoroughly enjoyed every phase of local and state work, including her work as legislative chairman and as a counselor at Badger Girls' State.

Ritualistic Duties

When the Catholic Daughters of America held their state convention in Appleton in May, delegates named Mrs. Robert Rossmeissl, 1611 N. Superior St., as Wisconsin Monitor. Her duties are primarily ritualistic and concerned with state meetings and conventions. This is Mrs. Rossmeissl's first 'go' at a state office, although she has served Court Ave Maria 1011 as Grand Regent, Vice Regent, Prophetess and Lecturer.

The Catholic Daughters' purpose is mainly charity, although they do branch into other fields. On the local level the women contribute to Catholic education, giving each parochial school money for books each year, providing a scholarship to a senior Xavier High School girl, supporting a Xavier student at Badger Girls' state and helping support Catholic libraries. They also contribute to the American Field Service, and in some courts, do much for the migrant worker.

She hasn't decided if she wants to go on in the state organization, although she will attend the National Convention at Hollywood-by-the-Sea, Fla., in July.

Mrs. Rossmeissl says she chose this group as the one to which she would give her time.

Choose to Serve

This matter of choice is true of all the women who have risen to positions of prominence on the state and national levels of their respective organizations. The aims and goals are ones in which they can believe and for which they are willing to work unstintingly. Their success is evident in the cognizance of their abilities and the ever-widening influence exerted by these Fox Cities leaders.

New Help for Women Who Must Undergo Breast Surgery

Each year thousands of women are faced with the problem of how to look and feel after breast surgery and the sooner they are able to resume their interests and activities, the happier and healthier they will be both physically and mentally.

But now new relief is here for them since a scientifically designed breast form is available . . . an incredibly life-like breast form with its fluid motion and balanced weight presenting the first basically sound approach to flawless compensation after breast surgery. The name "Identical" is appropriate since these forms closely simulate the actual breast in every way. Made of skin-like plastic film, they are filled with a liquid which not only gives the equalizing weight to re-establish body balance but also molds to conform to the shape of any well-fitting bra. Being supple and fluid in motion, "Identical" breast forms automatically assume body temperatures and follow the normal breast motion. Most doctors and the hospitals will give you circulars and information. If you have had surgery, you should check on these immediately. They're scientifically fitted and sold by Gloudemans Department Store in Appleton.

WE DON'T CLAIM TO CURE ANYTHING

No, of course, we don't claim to cure anything, but we do know that people from all walks of life are discovering for themselves the wonderful values from pure fruit and vegetable juices. In fact nothing in the history of man has appealed so widely to every member of the household as the discovery of the values of these sun-enriched pure live juice foods. When you consider that these juices have been naturally enriched, that they contain precious vitamins and minerals from the earth in nature's natural proportions, is it not logical to assume that, if we take the juices from the cells of fresh fruit and vegetables and assimilate them into our bodies, our physical well-being will be benefited? Every part of the body, muscles, bones, and organs, is in the process of being worn and rebuilt. The rebuilding is done with the foods we eat. Obviously then, adequate nutrition is necessary to help build better bodies and also obviously fruit and vegetable in their natural form would be a logical, simple, and inexpensive way to increase our supply of vital nutrition. An excellent source of nutrition for children who will not eat green and yellow vegetables and fruits, and for the older folks who have problems chewing and digesting hard-to-eat fruits and vegetables. For more information about the value of juices in their natural form, send for a color booklet

Golden Anniversary for Amateur Radio Operators

Choosing Career Simply Matter Of Selecting Favorite Interest

Method Worked for Chilton Man Now Radio Engineer at WHKW-FM

BY MARK E. OLIVA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

CHILTON—Ken Bastian, route 2, decided 23 years ago at high school graduation time that the best way to pick a career was to sample his interests and choose a favorite.

Seven years later, when he received his license as a first class radiotelephone engineer from the Federal Communications Commission, he knew his decision had paid off. He became a radio engineer at WHKW-FM here.

If Bastian hadn't enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1941, he might have missed the training in electronics that eventually led to his career.

Bastian was graduated from Brillion High School in spring, 1941. He decided to take welding instruction, and in the fall took a job in the shipyards at Sturgeon Bay.

On Dec. 7, when Pearl Harbor was attacked, Bastian enlisted in the Army Air Corps and was trained as a mechanic, bombardier-navigator and pilot. He was discharged in 1945.

After leaving the service, Bastian returned to his search for a career. For two wears he sampled a number of jobs — working at a cheese factory, tree surgery, trucking.

Prior to entering the Army Air Corps, Bastian says his electronics experience was limited to "listening to the radio quite often and turning on light switches." But radio controls and electronics communications were two of the subjects Bastian was trained in while in the service.

Return to School

So, after completing two years of "sampling," Bastian returned to school. In 1947, he enrolled in a radio service course at De-Forest School, Chicago. He then transferred to Central Technical School, Kansas City, where he received final training and his FCC engineer's license.

Returning to Wisconsin in 1948, he applied for employment with the state, then in the process of building a new statewide radio network to expand the educational service of the University of Wisconsin radio station, WHA.

On Dec. 31, both Bastian and WHKW-FM, Chilton, entered the radio field. Since that time, the State Radio Network has grown to a loop of 10 stations, including WHA-AM and FM, Madison, WHKW, six other FM stations and one other AM station. WHKW is the "feed" station on the network for all the other stations except the two in Madison and a third in Delafield.

Split Shift

Bastian and an assistant are in charge of all operations at the Chilton station. The two split shifts every day Monday through Friday and take turns working from 12 noon to 11 p.m. Sundays. The station is off the air Saturdays.

Bastian's duties include maintenance and operation of the station and monitoring on the station give local weather observations. Between programs, the engineers play tape-recorded station identifications. All other programing comes from WHA.

WHAD-FM, Delafield, receives the network signal from WHA-FM and restransmits it. WHKW then tunes Delafield and retransmits that signal, and the retransmission continues throughout the network. Bastian also is in charge of maintaining the broadcast tuners.

Main Duty

His main duty at the station is keeping the transmitter in operation and logging the electical readings taken from the transmitter each half hour, as required by the FCC.

Until this year, Bastian also operated a part-time radio repair service, but a growing family of six children forced him to put his sideline aside and devote that time to building a new home, now almost completed on State 57 south of here.

SENSATIONAL NEW INVENTION

HEARING AID

- Developed by Mr. Endel Are, World Famous Electronics Scientist!
- So tiny it is hidden entirely in the ear, without cords, tubes or wires!
- Prescription made. It is made for you alone to correct 100% your own particular hearing loss!
- Least expensive aid on the market because there are no batteries to buy—ever!
- NEVER NEEDS BATTERIES
- HAS NO CORDS
- HAS NO TUBING
- NOT WORN IN YOUR GLASSES
- NOT WORN BEHIND THE EAR
- NO BUTTON THAT STICKS OUT OF THE EAR
- EXTREMELY SMALL
- AMAZING PERFORMANCE
- TROUBLE FREE
- Volume controlled automatically. Absolutely no scratchy, unpleasant sounds — only wonderful hearing!
- Made to last a lifetime, it is unconditionally guaranteed!
- Brings you normal, natural hearing, so that you can enjoy life again!
- It must work perfectly for you or you don't pay one cent!

Mile-Long Art Fair Planned

The renaissance in the interest in art will be saluted on July 22 when the College Avenue merchants stage their annual sidewalk sale. One of the main attractions of the Chamber of Commerce Retail Division promotion will be a mile-long art fair.

From 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. July 22, College Avenue from Walnut Street to Drew Street will be closed to motor traffic and be turned into a pedestrian concourse, gay with special displays, events and what promises to be the greatest art exhibit ever staged in Wisconsin.

O. Reynold Steinert, in charge of the art fair arrangements, has contacted artists throughout the state inviting them to display their wares during the promotion. It is expected more than 100 artists and thousands of pieces of artwork will be in evidence.

Purchase Prizes

Nominal entry fees required from the artists will be used to purchase artworks to be displayed in public buildings in the city. A selection committee to make the purchases will be named at an early date. It is expected that the committee will have at least $300 to spend in making the purchases.

In addition to the art fair, the sidewalk sale will be marked by individual attractions and events in each of the blocks involved. Although the exact nature of these attractions is being kept as a surprise, block planners for the promotion promise that they will be exotic, comic and altogether exciting.

The entire length of the sidewalk sale promenade will be used for the art fair. Stalls constructed of snow fencing fastened to parking meters, lamp posts and water-filled oil drums will be interspersed between the sales displays. The stalls will be extended 15 feet into the street on both sides of the block.

Demonstrations

Artists have been offered 20-foot units for display on the fencing and additional space will be provided for those craftsmen who will be demonstrating their skills during the day.

Order out of the expected confusion of July 22's early morning hours will be achieved at the art fair headquarters established in front of the Appleton State Bank. Steinert also will have "block captains" posted in the sundry areas to assist the visiting artists.

Steinert says that early returns indicated considerable interest in the fair. Several art clubs have suggested that all of their members' works be grouped together. Of local interest is the entry of the 25 members of the Artskeller workshop.

All Media

Eligibility requirements are wide, Steinert said. The entries must be original works of professional, amateur or student artists and they may be in any art medium or any of the crafts. There will be no commission exacted on the sale of any artwork during the promotion.

Although art shows in the area have been drawing a growing number of visitors each year, the thousands of people who are drawn to College Avenue during the sidewalk sales will be many times greater than the attendance of any individual art fair.

Special efforts are being made to bring the work of high school art students into the fair. The inclusion of these young artists in the Appleton Gallery of Arts' mid-winter exhibition revealed the high caliber of work being done in the schools.

Growing Interest

The Fox Valley as well as the entire state has become increasingly interested in art fairs and exhibitions. Attendance records have been broken at each year's exhibitions.

The current fifth anniversary show at the Bergstrom Art Center in Neenah composed of artworks purchased by Fox Cities residents out of exhibits at the center during the last five years is evidence that there is a considerable market for art in the area.

The Appleton Gallery of Arts' City Park show last summer resulted in the sale of more than $800 worth of artworks.

Attendance

Even threatening weather during last year's Winnebagoland Art Fair at the Oshkosh Public Museum failed to cut into the attendance and this year's edition of the annual affair next Sunday is certain to draw more than the record-setting 4,000 attendance of last year.

As a service to artists in the Fox Cities area, the Post-Crescent has published an entry blank on this page. The blanks are to be mailed to the Appleton Downtown Retail Association, Box 955, Appleton, Wis., ZIP 54910. Entry fee checks should be made out to the Appleton Downtown Retail Association.

The artist is expected to supply his own equipment.

Plays St. Joan

Menasha Girl Wins Stage Troupe Role

On July 27, a dream will come true for a former Menasha girl. She opens in a professional stage production to start a six-month tour of the United States and Canada.

For Renee Rozanski, the Tennessee performance that night of "Saint Joan" by the Bishop's Company with her in the title role will climax seven years of single-minded struggle and sacrifice. It is hoped that the 14-state tour will finally establish her in the work she has been preparing for since leaving Menasha High School in 1957.

Shortly after her graduation, Renee headed for California and abbreviated her name to Renee Rozan. Theatrical jobs paying living wages were impossible to find, but there were many opportunities to appear on the stage in "independent" productions for experience.

30 Roles

She made the most of those opportunities and appeared in some 30 plays on the little theater circuit in and about Hollywood, playing good roles in warmed-over Broadway hits and the classics with well trained directors and other dedicated thespians. The hard work never paid any money and at times Renee and the other actors even paid their own share of the expenses to put the shows in the boards.

To sustain herself during this apprenticeship, she held many kinds of jobs; office work, usherette, clerking and even working as a governess. On one occasion she landed a job as an extra in a movie, but the hours of sitting around doing nothing, even if she were paid for it, were not for Renee and the one experience was her last. "It was a waste of time I could spend doing more important things," she explained.

The Bishop's Company may be the turning point. The tour will cover Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Iowa Montana, Dakota, Utah, Wyoming, Washington, provinces of Canada and back to headquarters at Burbank, Calif., by Christmas. The troupe will make at least five stops in Wisconsin with the possibilities of further state bookings.

The company was founded 12 years ago by Phyllis Beardley Broker to produce plays in a Presbyterian church in Burbank whose pastor's name was Bishop. Since that time it has toured the nation playing churches, colleges, prisons and service bases.

The "Saint Joan" Renee will be featured in has a cast of three, two men and Renee. The Shaw masterpiece has been adapted for the company and will tell the story in a prologue and five scenes.

It's been a long time since Renee brightened the Menasha High School stage with a sensitive portrayal in her class play "Curious Savage," but it mustn't be overlooked that seven is considered a lucky number.

MENASHA — The Kiwanis-sponsored power boat races will take place Sunday, July 5, and not Saturday, July 4, as stated in an article in today's VIEW magazine. The races will be held in the river off Jefferson Park.

Iowa Artist to Judge Art Fair in Oshkosh

OSHKOSH—Judge for the seventh annual Winnebagoland Art Fair on the grounds of the Oshkosh Public Library next Sunday will be Ray Fredericks, the Iowa artist whose paintings are being featured in a one-man show currently at the museum.

The Fox Valley Artists Association sponsored open air exhibit is one of the most popular art exhibits of the area. Last year despite threatening weather and showers it drew 4,000 visitors.

The 100 artists exhibiting their wares will be competing for some $300 in cash prizes and merchandise prizes. One of the major awards is the annual Niles Behnke award offered by Mrs. Behnke as a memorial to her husband who was one of the state's finest watercolorist and served as the long-time director of the public museum.

Selecting the recipient of the Behnke award this year will be Mrs. Virginia Brown, a well respected Fox Valley professional artist and proprietor of Collector's Gallery North of Oshkosh.

John Kuony, museum director, said judging will be done in the morning and the winning pictures will be hung in the museum's galleries and prizes distributed by 2 p.m.

Frederick, 37, is an instructor of art at Community College and High School of Marshalltown, Iowa. He received his training at the University of Iowa.

Texture Work

The 23 paintings on display at the museum reveal Frederick as an artist interested in the geometry of man's impressions in nature. He works in oil over an impasto underpainting which gives considerable texture to his works.

While his palette tends to range in the gray and white scales, the representational basis for his geometric impressions lends impact and interest to his canvasses.

The Frederick show will be replaced next Sunday by the Winnebagoland winners' show.

Ray Frederick of Marshalltown, Iowa, will be the judge for the 7th annual Winnebagoland Art Fair at the Oshkosh Public Museum next Sunday. His works, of which "Residential Arrangements," above, is typical, are on display at the museum's galleries currently. The one-man show will be replaced next Sunday by the winning pictures from the art fair.

Kandinsky Collection Goes to Auction Block

LONDON—(AP)—Private collectors get a rare chance Tuesday to buy works by Vasily Kandinsky, a pioneer in abstract paintings. Fifty of his works go on sale at auction at Sotheby's.

Most of the Russian-born artist's works are in Soviet museums, the City Gallery of Munich, in New York's Guggenheim or in the hands of his widow, Mrs. Nina Kandinsky.

Estimates of what the 50 paintings will bring range around 500,000 pounds ($1,400,000). They were put up for sale by the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation of New York, which lacks space to show its entire collection of 170 Kandinsky paintings.

Kandinsky was born in 1866 and died in 1944. With Paul Klee, Lyonel Feininger and others, he was a leader of the Bauhaus group in the Post-World War I years in Germany. The group was dissolved after Hitler took power in 1933 and Kandinsky went to Paris. His first abstractions appeared in 1911 and created a furore.

Memories of Artistic Giant

Collectors' Meeting Recalls First Showing of Tiny Glass Paperweights

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Sunday Editor

NEENAH — The Paperweight Collectors Association convention that ended here Saturday was something of an anniversary for one of America's authentic artistic giants. It was at a similar convention some years ago that Charles Kaziun of Brockton, Mass., displayed his first miniature and sub-miniature paperweights.

"The little weights," he recalled, "took off like birds and I've been making them ever since."

The acceptance isn't surprising. Kaziun weights can be described as nothing less than gems of color, care and skill. The Bergstrom Art Center and Museum, at whose invitation the some 130 paperweight collectors from most of the states of the union came to Neenah, has several of these Kaziun masterpieces in its world renown collection of weights.

Paying Hobby

Despite his obvious mastery of the art, Kaziun calls his activity a "paying hobby" which evolved from his profession as a maker of scientific glass vessels and devices.

He moved into the paperweight art along the avenue of magnum weights. "A friend of mine liked magnum weights and I thought all collectors did too," he said. His first attempt at a miniature weight was in the form of a tiny button which he now wears as a tie stud.

Even this first attempt bears the hallmark of his work. It contains a beautifully fashioned, bright flower no bigger than a man's thumbnail. He has perfected a glass formula that provides the vivid colors that shine from the depths of his weights.

Refractions

Additional interest and beauty are added to his weights from the refractions and reflections caused by the shape, grinding or cutting of the weights' surfaces. Sometimes these ingenius, apparently magical refractions and reflections have caused Kaziun some trouble.

"Quite often," he laughed, "a person who has ordered a weight containing a single flower will return his weight because he sees more. I show him that it is merely the way he's looking at it and tell him that the other flowers that he sees are free of charge."

Kaziun is a mountain of a man and, despite the obvious success of his tiny weights, it is a matter of curiosity to know why he works in such dainty detail. The answer is quite pragmatic. The investment in time is considerably less than in a larger weight and when the occasional, although inevitable, spoilage occurs, the investment can be borne better.

Many Layers

A paperweight is made from a central glass creation either achieved in a form or created directly by working individual pieces of glass. The central creation is then coated many times with clear or colored glass by dipping the central piece into molten glass. At each dipping there is the danger the entire piece will crack or disintegrate because of a miscalculation of the heat of the glass or its cooling.

Kaziun, working after the fashion and design of the great 19th century French glass houses, creates his weights directly from individual pieces of glass. He works from a general idea of its results but without a strict, presketched design. Besides weights and buttons Kaziun makes vases, perfume bottles and other vessels with characteristics of paperweights.

Patent Designs

At the major gathering of the convention, the banquet Friday night at North Shore Golf Club, A. Christian Revi of Dallas, Texas, one of the world's foremost authorities on late 19th century art glass, showed slides and spoke on patented paperweight designs and techniques he found while researching the patent offices of England.

The earliest patents in his lecture, about 1854, entailed transparency scenes of the Crystal Palace which were meant to be inserted as bases for weights.

He also showed the patent designs for an English glass house's "lion" pattern. This weight was manufactured in the pressed glass techniques formulated in America. The patent was issued in 1874 and Revi contended that it must have been the prototype the Gillinder and Sons glass house of Pittsburgh used for its extremely collectable "lion" pattern glass first maunfactured in 1875 for the Centennial Exposition.

Revi also said that the "hand" design popular during the Victorian period was inspired by the dainty hands of the reigning Queen Victoria.

The convention closed Saturday after a tour of the Ernst Mahler home which houses an exceptional collection of antique European glass and other art treasures. During the tour the collectors had the opportunity to discuss the origin of weights brought from their own collections with the experts present.

Democrat Entry to Announce Candidacy Later This Afternoon

BY MARK E. OLIVA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

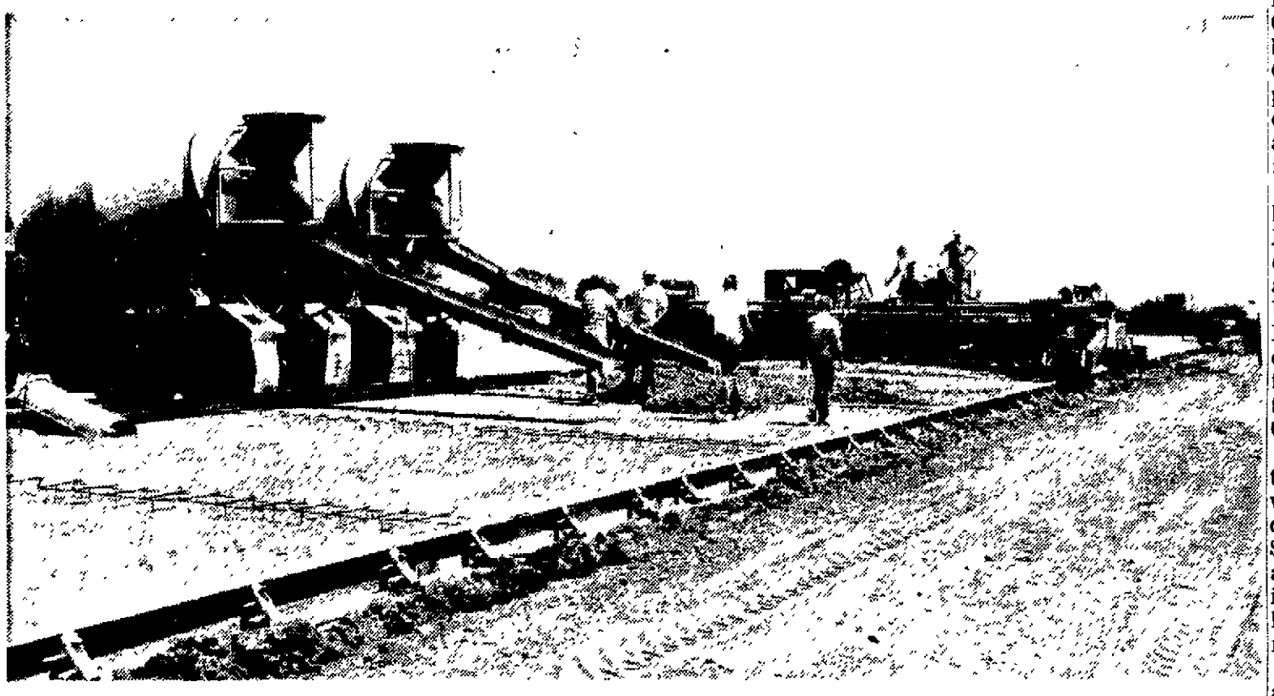

OSHKOSH — The announced entry of Edward Weber, 42, as a Sixth District congressional candidate later today threatens to bring the statewide Democratic Party split to the district level in a hard nomination battle.

Weber began his campaign for office at the High Cliff State Forest Park dedication Saturday and said he would make a formal announcement of his candidacy at 4 p.m. today at the Sheboygan County picnic.

The announcement follows a Turn to Page 3, Col. 7

FOND DU LAC — Several Fox Valley residents, including most of the members of his editorial staff, are beneficiaries of an estate of over $250,000 left by the late Charles F. Coffman, an owner and editor of the daily newspaper and radio station here.

Coffman, whose career as a newspaperman spanned 60 years, died June 12, less than a month after making out his will which was filed for probate in County Court June 16.

Blind for nearly 20 years and semi-retired at the time of his death, Coffman was vice president of the Reporter Printing Co., which publishes the Fond du Lac Commonwealth Reporter, and had been its editor since 1926.

He was also vice president and part owner of the KFIZ Broadcasting Co., on the second floor of the Lange Building above the newspaper.

As a result of the terms of the will, controlling interest in the newspaper will be assumed by Louie A. Lange, Lake DeNevue, who inherited the major share of Coffman's assets. Lange is president of the Reporter Printing Co.

Coffman left Lange all of his stock in the newspaper and radio station, which are operated as separate companies. The value of the stock was not given, but it is believed that Coffman was a one-third owner in both firms.

Coffman, along with the late A. H. Lange (father of Louie) and Emery Martin, were the three major stockholders in the Commonwealth Reporter and Radio Station KFIZ. Each was associated with the newspaper for 40 to 50 years and died within the past three years.

At the time of his death, Coffman was 78 years old and played a daily role in the operation of the newspaper until just a few years ago.

Coffman left no immediate survivors, his wife, the former George Anna Birge of Manitowoc, preceding him in death. The couple had no children.

According to his will, Coffman's only known relatives are cousins.

And, the whereabouts of Jessie Coffman LaBrush and Lois Coffman are unknown, and there may be possible unknown heirs in the armed forces.

Atty. Roy Thiel Jr. Fond du Lac, is the court-appointed guardian ad litem for the possible unknown heirs and attorney for the persons who may be in the military service.

The attorney for Coffman, who filed the petition for heirship and probate, is S. Ted Hitzler, Fond du Lac.

Named by Coffman to be executor of his estate is Henry J. Borne, a longtime friend and stock broker who many years ago worked in the Commonwealth news room. Borne, now associated with the Marshall Co. investment firm, is a local resident.

The Coffman residence at 14 Champion Avenue was bequeathed to his cousin, Mrs. Johnana Donahue, who stayed with him after the death of his wife.

The third biggest bequeath was to St. Joseph's Catholic School, which will receive $5,000 from Coffman's estate. He was a member of the parish for many years. His wife had be-

Seek 2 Who May Have Found Jewelry

Appleton police are looking for two teen-age youths who it is believed found a watch, charm bracelet and ring in Lutz Park Saturday.

The items belong to Linda Langley, 408 W. Seventh St. She took off the items and left them on a ledge on a pavilion when she went to model for a fashion photographer.

After she realized she had left the items, she returned to the park to search for them, police said. A woman who was there said two youths about 14- or 15-years-old had found the objects and had asked her if they were hers.

When the woman said they weren't, the boys left the park. They apparently were seen later in Alicia Park

The watch is valued at $85. The gold bracelet contained two charms, one of them given to Miss Langley for being a runner-up in the Miss Appleton Pageant.

The ring is a Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh ring.

Two Autos Damaged in Collision at Neenah

NEENAH — Cars driven by Neenah and Appleton men collided on Main Street at 5:12 p.m. Saturday causing damage to both cars of more than $100.

Floyd M. Syring, 29, 1122 County Trunk U, was passing a car driven by Orville V. Kelpinski, 34, 1808 S Oneida St., Appleton, when they collided, police said.

35-Year Dream Ended as High Cliff Made State Park

200 Swelter At Rites, Hear Talks

BY MARK OLIVA

SHERWOOD — A sparse crowd of 200 persons sat through 90-degree temperatures under blue skies Saturday to witness the final phase in the culmination of a 35-year dream, dedication of High Cliff Forest Park as a state park.

Speakers related some of the significant details and interesting points of the park. Giving talks were Gov. John W. Reynolds, Gordon A. Bubolz, founder and chairman of High Cliff Forest Park Association, and Charles Smith, Wausau, member of the State Conservation Commission, who dedicated the park in place of chairman Guido Rahr, forced to cancel his appearance because of a death in the family.

Among points of the park outlined for special interest were Indian effigy mounds, discovered by Dr. Chandler Rowe, archaeologist and dean of Lawrence University; the Old Military Road; Limestone deposits and outcroppings, the park's educational values as a reminder of the Ice Age and the statue of Chief Red Bird.

"The idea of conservation is to conserve for the future what we have today, and here, today, we have High Cliff Park," Smith said. "It does credit to all the other state parks, and it does credit to the local public officials and citizens who made today possible.

"I hope we value this park as much today as it will be valued by people 100 years from today," Smith concluded.

Reynolds cited High Cliff as an example of what purchase of lands on time can accomplish and renewed his call for a bonding program to accelerate state purchase of recreational lands.

Referring to recreational land acquisition, the governor said, "A dark cloud looms. Land values are increasing at such a rapid rate that we are unable to make all the purchases needed." He said it would take 21 years to purchase all the recreational lands the state should purchase under current plans, and this could be done only if land value did not increase.

Reynolds said a bonding program "will not only preserve land, but also will save money." Last year he proposed a bill to put the $50 million land acquisition program on a bond basis and to use cigarette tax money financing the program to pay off the bonds.

Among the Speakers at the dedication of High Cliff Forest Park Saturday were, from the left, Charles F. Smith, who substituted for Guido Rahr, chairman of the Conservation Commission; Gordon A. Bubolz of Appleton; Adam C. Remley, former president of the High Cliff Forest Park Association, and John H. Stumpf, current association president. Behind them is a view of the park's modern marina. Problem of Bridge Traffic Attacked

Possible Solutions Set for Holiday Tie-Ups on U. S. 41 Near Oshkosh

BY JIM GREINER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Traffic volume Sunday, July 5, at the U.S. 41 bridge over Lake Butte des Morts is expected to reach 1,600 to 2,000 vehicles per hour during the peak period in late afternoon, according to Lt. Donald Kennelly, commander of Wisconsin State Patrol District 3 headquarters at Fond du Lac.

A total of six to seven State Patrol men and four members of the Winnebago County Sheriff's Department will be on hand in the bridge area to assist in moving the expected heavy traffic Sunday, according to officials of both agencies.

The State Patrol plans on using their newly formed airplane patrol system in the area during the weekend, Lt. Kennelly said. There are two marked areas in Winnebago County, two in Fond du Lac County, and in the near future, one area will be used in Outagamie County for the aerial clocking of vehicles on U.S. 41.

In addition to the aerial checking of vehicles, Lt. Kennelly said radar and unmarked cars will be used extensively during the weekend period, as part of a statewise strict law enforcement program by the State Patrol during the Fourth of July weekend.

The bottleneck is mainly caused at the bridge by the narrowing of the southbound lane of U.S 41 as it approaches the north end of the two-way bridge. Traffic, which had been traveling on two lanes in one direction, must merge into one lane of traffic at the bridge.

Two other factors cause jamups at the bridge — the opening of the bridge for water traffic and the merging of traffic from State 110 onto U.S. 41 just north of the bridge in the southbound lane.

Earlier this summer, the State Highway Commission, in cooperation with the State Patrol, the Winnebago County Sheriff's department and Oshkosh city police, built detour signs which could be used to reroute State 110 traffic which would normally enter U.S. 41 at the bridge into Oshkosh and back to U S. 41 on State 21, just south of the bridge.

Closing State 110 Helps

This closing of State 110 traffic at the discretion of the State Patrol has done much to ease the jamming at the bridge, both State Patrol and sheriff's department officials said.

In addition to the detour routing of State 110 traffic, the State Highway Commission recently has installed a new system of traffic signs on both approaches to the bridge, which serve to merge the U.S. 41 traffic down to one lane before it gets to the bridge itself.

These signs, which consist of overhead suspended types and standard roadside types, are located starting about one mile from the bridge, with the sign reading "Lane Closed, 1 Mi." A half-mile from the bridge, an overhead sign reads "Single Lane Begins, One-half Mi." Then comes another overhead set advising drivers to form a single lane. Immediately before the bridge two overheads inform drivers that the inside lane is closed. On the bridge, signs advise drivers to "Maintain 45 mph When Traffic Permits."

"There is no question but that the new signs will help the

NLRB Postpones Vote At Scolding Locks

Acting on a petition filed by the labor relations council of Scolding Locks Corp., the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) has postponed an election on a petition by the United Steelworkers Union to act as a bargaining agent for Scolding Locks labor employes.

The election had been scheduled for June 30, but has been postponed until further notice.

A Heavy Duty Bulldozer does preliminary leveling at the Outagamie County Airport site, spreading soil dumped by a caterpillar. After the bulldozer finishes preliminary work, a road grader does the fine leveling.

Airport Land Got Careful Manicure Before Concrete Pouring Began

New Outagamie Facility in Greenville Has Myriad of Heavy Construction Gear

Crews began pouring concrete for the runways of the new Outagamie County Airport last Thursday—but only after the sight was given a careful manicure by heavy-duty earth-moving equipment during previous weeks.

Kluck Construction Co., Stevens Point, brought several caterpillars, heavy-duty bulldozers, road graders and smaller equipment to the Town of Greenville port site to begin leveling land. Most of the heavier equipment was brought in on lowboy trailers.

The huge "cats" begin clipping the rough spots and dumping their shavings in low areas. Heavy-duty bulldozers followed them and did preliminary leveling. The road graders did the final machine work, with ground crews putting on the finishing touch.

Interesting Machines

The caterpillars are interesting machines. In the center of their pivotal frame, between two engines, is a huge bucket. When in resting position, the bucket remains partly open, exposing a wide blade at ground level that slices the earth and forces it into the bucket.

With a slight tilt, the bucket closes, and the earth can be transported. The operator takes the machine to an area needing fill, tilts the bucket in the opposite direction and deposits the earth he just collected in a spot needing fill.

The bulldozer comes in and with its hydraulic lift shovel evens out the widely-scattered earth deposited by the caterpillar. Then the road grader, with its wide midsection blade, levels off the bulldozer's work.

Valley Construction, Appleton, brought its own portable concrete plant to the site. The firm transported several large water tanks and a hopper to the airport on trailers and added wheels to its aggregate bin and cement tube, using them as their own trailers.

Aggregate Bin

A crane deposits sand, gravel and water in the aggregate bin, which mixes them in proper proportions, cement is added and then poured into mixer trucks used to pour the runways.

While Valley Construction crews mixed cement, Valley Equipment Co. began setting up rails along the runway strips and placing its finishing machinery on the tracks.

The first finisher spreads the concrete, the second corrects its horizontal level and the third its vertical level. Most of the machinery requires skilled, trained operators. All operators live in the Fox Valley area and are regular employes of the construction firms.

Amberg Girl Named To Head Eighth District Young Democrats Club

GREEN BAY — Marion Mattison, 19, Amberg, has been named Eighth District Young Democrats chairman, Lyle Cudahy, state chairman of the organization, said Saturday.

Hofacker said Miss Mattison would fill a vacancy which exists because Young Democrats still are being organized in the Eighth District. She will serve until July when other district officers will be named.

Miss Mattison, daughter of Marinette County Sheriff Raymond Mattison, is a 1963 graduate of Wausaukee High School and a student at Marinette County Teachers College.

Young Democrats have chapters in Brown, Outagamie, Oconto, Marinette and Manitowoc counties and at St. Norbert College.

Elevator Bought With Hardship Saves Life Of Invalid Youth

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—The Jan Starcevics scrimped and saved for years to get an elevator in their two-story home here for their son, George, 16, confined to bed and a wheelchair by muscular dystrophy.

A fire spread through their home Friday night, but the youth escaped by riding the elevator down from his second-floor bedroom minutes before it burst into flames.

"We had to save a long time for that elevator, but every penny was worth it," said Starcevic.

Little Chute Youngsters Learn Problems of Owning Rabbits

LITTLE CHUTE—Youngsters of the Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Williamson family, 535 S. Wilson St., Little Chute, are getting an early lesson in the care and raising of rabbits.

The family owned a large white rabbit which was kept as a pet and until recently, when the rabbit moved under the front porch to prepare a nest for a litter of young. The family observed the mother rabbit from time to time, but about five days after the birth of the bunnies the mother rabbit disappeared.

Realizing the bunnies could not feed themselves, Mr. Williamson was forced to tear some boards from the porch to permit the children to get at the young rabbits. For the past week the children have been feeding the nine tiny bunnies a mixture of canned milk and baby formula.

Doll Baby Bottles

Since the rabbits are so small, it was necessary to use doll baby bottles for feeding. They are fed twice each day, kept in a warm box in the playroom, and seem to be doing well.

Youngsters pitching in with preparation and feeding of the formula are Jay, 8, and Debbie, 10, along with a neighbor, Betty Marsh, 12. Since it is a slow feeding process, Mom, Dad and Grandpa are recruited to help.

Despite the nine new arrivals, the youngsters would still like to have their old pet come home. They don't know if it was stolen or killed.

Elderly to Get Aid Starting July 1

Wisconsinites 65 of Older to Have Help Paying Medical Bills

Financial aid to assist Wisconsin residents 65 years or older in meeting their medical and health care payments becomes effective Wednesday.

On that date, the county welfare departments in Outagamie, Winnebago, Waupaca and Calumet counties, as well as in all other counties throughout the state, will begin taking applications from low income aged persons who need financial help in paying their medical bills.

The aid has been made available under the Health Assistance Payments (HAP) Act, a version of the Federal Kerr-Mills program of medical aid. Wisconsin is one of 38 states adopting a form of the K-M plan.

Fill Out Application

Those interested in receiving the aid must fill out an application form which can be obtained from the Welfare office of the county in which they live.

None of the Fox Valley welfare directors contacted last week were willing to estimate how many persons would apply for aid or what proportion of the state allocation would eventually be used to aid persons in their counties.

County welfare offices do not actually give out money. They merely process the application and determine eligibility, they said.

60 Per Cent Eligible

However, according to Wilbur Schmidt, the director of the State Department of Public Welfare, about 60 per cent of 432,000 Wisconsin residents 65 years or older will be eligible on the basis of income levels.

Of this 60 per cent, or 259,200, only about 159,000 are actually expected to be given aid under the HAP program, he said

The reason for this, Schmidt said, was because a "good percentage" of the lower income families will be covered by existing old age assistance plans.

The system, as described by the directors, works this way:

An individual requests the aid by filling out an application. If his county welfare office determines that he is indeed eligible, he is given an eligibility card.

Shows Card

When the person needs medical attention from almost any vendor of medical services (physicians, hospitals, drugstores, and so forth), he shows the vendor his card.

The vendor then files his bill with a private insurance company which is contracted to the State Department of Public Welfare and is paid by it.

Basic eligibility requirements that the applicant must:.

—Be a resident of Wisconsin 65 years of age or older.

—Not be receiving old age assistance payments.

—Has an annual income of less than $1,800, if single, or 2,700 if married.

—Has personal assets less than $5,500, if single, or $9,000.

Details for Welfare Office

There are other requirements, but details can be obtained easily from the welfare office.

Benefits from HAP include hospitalization, nursing home care, physician's, surgeon's or dental services, hospital out-patient services, visiting nurse's services, diagnostic x-ray and laboratory procedures and drugs.

Applications can be processed faster if applicants bring with them verification of birthdate, life insurance policies, list of health and accident policies, bank books and any real estate property and description if other than homestead.

Eligibility cards are good only for a year or less. When they are expired, reapplication is necessary.

Persons certified to receive benefits have free choice of physician, hospital, nursing home or other medical service vendors.

Reimbursement of benefits is not expected (except in cases of fraud in making the application), but the HAP act provides that on the death of the person receiving the benefits and of the surviving spouse, the total amount of benefits shall be filed as a claim against the estate.

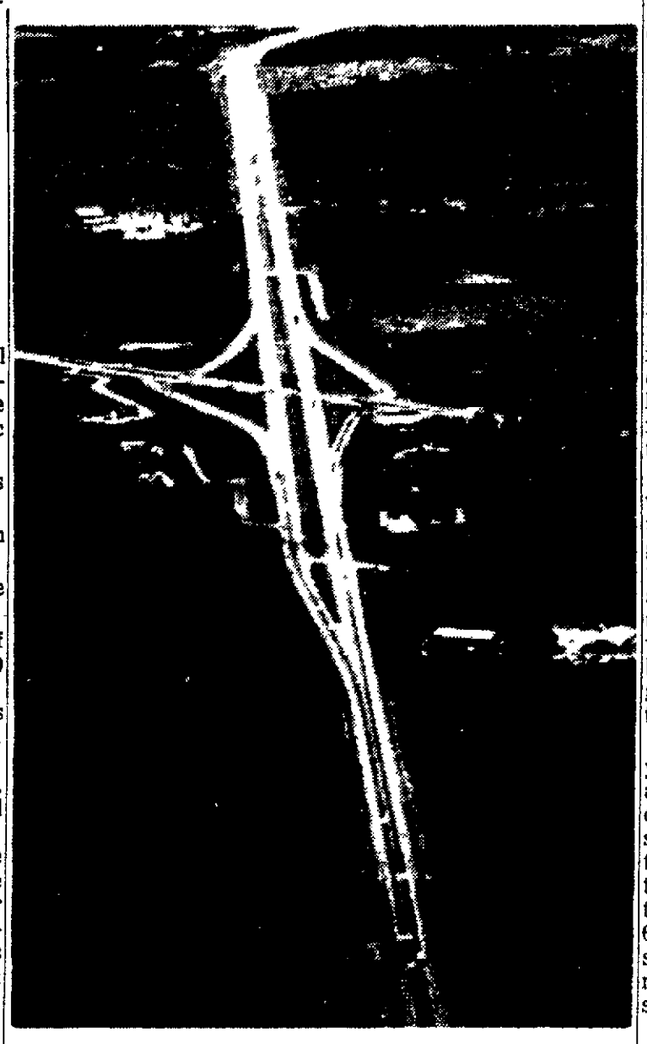

Those unable to apply in person at the county welfare offices may request to apply by mail.

Drum, Bugle Corps Enter First Contest Of Summer Season

The Appleton Americanos Drum and Bugle Corps left at 7 a.m. today for the first competition of the summer season.

The 40-man corps will compete against units from Wisconsin and Illinois in the annual cedarburg fire department-sponsored contest.

The Appleton unit also will take part in a parade in the early afternoon.

Traffic Over the U.S. 41 bridge at Lake Butte des Morts is expected to be as busy as 2,000 vehicles per hour next Sunday during the Independence Day Holiday weekend. Possible solutions to the vehicular problem will be tried by the Wisconsin State Patrol. (Post-Crescent Aerial Photo)

Democrats Present Show of Patching Up Party Wounds, Split

BY DICK LYNEIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

During their state convention last weekend in Milwaukee, Wisconsin Democrats made a strong "on-the-surface" show of closing wounds and splits within the state party's structure.

Both factions of the state party had good and bad moments, but most observers felt the "Nelson-Hanson side" got the best of it.

The state Democratic Party's leadership has been divided for a long time in a struggle for control of the organization.

Biggest Setback

One side has U. S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson, the former governor, and party chairman J. Louis Hanson of Mellen. Gov. John Reynolds and Patrick Lucey make up the other faction. Lucey, the party's candidate for lieutenant governor, is former party chairman and has two months left as the state's national committeeman

The biggest setback for the Reynolds-Lucey side was the defeat of Milwaukee Ald. Mrs. Vel Phillips in her bid for reelection as national committeewoman. Mrs. Phillips was acknowledged as the choice of Reynolds, and Lucey made an impassioned convention speech in support of her.

The margin of victory for Mrs Jeanette Swed of Milwaukee for the national committee job was regarded by several political observers as "grass roots" repudiation of Reynolds and Lucey.

"Eleventh Hour"

The vote was 725 for Mrs. Swed, 549 for Mrs. Phillips and 102 for Mrs. Janet Lee of Madison, a sister of Sen. Nelson and an "eleventh hour" entrant into the contest. Mrs. Lee, however, refused to address the convention and actively seek the job.

There was no evidence of Sen. Nelson having anything to do with Mrs. Lee's candidacy.

Lucey was the only candidate for the remaining two months of the unexpired term of U. S. District Judge David Rabinovitz as national committeeman. However, despite the fact that 1,376 votes were cast in the Swed-Phillips contest, Lucey, who had no competition, attracted only 823 votes.

May Use Job

One of Sen Nelson's closest friends, David Carley, president of Continental Mortgage Insurance Co of Madison, was elected to a full four-year term as national committeeman. The national committeeman's job is regarded by many as an excellent political stepping stone which Carley may use two years hence in an attempt to become governor.

The party split has noticeably spread into the Outagamie County Democratic unit which has its leaders divided into the two camps

On the Nelson-Hanson side is Lester Balliet, county chairman: Mrs William (Shirley) Cherkasky, state vice chairman, and William Cherkasky, county

New Era Opens Wednesday as OSC Becomes State University-Oshkosh

Changing School's Name Results In Problems in Many Areas

BY ALLAN EKVALL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH—With proper ceremony as befits the occasion, Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh, better known as Oshkosh State College and to many old-timers as 'the Normal School," Tuesday afternoon will retire the banner which has served the educational institution since 1949 when it underwent another name change.

It will open Wednesday with a "university breakfast" at the Reeve Union Lounge to inaugurate the first day as Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh.

Changing a name requires more than just retiring a banner and holding a breakfast. It requires that the school have university characteristics.

Three Schools

It has three schools—a school of education, a school of letters and science and a graduate school. It will award its first master of science degree in education on July 30. Only one of its more than 200 graduate students in the summer school will have completed the requirements leading up to that degree this year.

Besides this degree, the university-to-be also is authorized to grant master's degrees in guidance and in music education. Previously, the college had a cooperative arrangement with the University of Wisconsin where work could be taken at both schools for a master's degree which would be granted at the latter school.

Catalogs for the coming school year were printed last winter and will bear the name of Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh, since it was only a month ago that the name change was authorized. The new catalog goes to press this winter for the 1965-66 school year. It will be extensively revised and will show the new organization of the university and its expanded programs.

July 1 was selected as the time for the name change since on that day a new state fiscal year and budget begins. Already changed, though, is the name of the faculty organization for the state colleges which has adopted Association of Wisconsin State University Faculties as its new name.

Supplies Depleting

Much of the college's supply of letterheads and envelopes has been exhausted, so professors and secretaries are using left-over supplies since new stationery will not be available until after July 1. All present record forms, brochures, pamphlets and anything else containing the present "college" name of the school will be used until exhausted. All new forms ordered will have the university designation.

New signs put up early this year in front of each building have as an insignia in each corner the capital letters "WSC" inside a large "O" Enough matching paint is on hand to paint out the "C" for college and replace it with a "U" for university.

Planned for the corner of Algoma Boulevard and Elmwood Street, where a new 246 bed dormitory is to be built, will be an artistic sign This will stress that OSC is now a university.

Information almanacs, dictionaries and school directories will still include the Oshkosh institution under its college name since many of these already are printed Publishers will be notified of the name change for succeeding issues.

It will take about a year to complete the name change, Garner Horton, coordinator of public information for the school, estimated.

Keepsake Items

The book store manager in Reeve Union did not anticipate any problem in disposing of many of the varied items which carry "college" as the school's designation. Many alumni members who attended when it was a college may seek such items as keepsakes since they no longer will be available.

Other items will be just as practical and usable with "college" written on them rather than "university." This includes notebooks, sweat shirts, jackets, T-shirts and similar clothing and paper items.

That new school seal will not be immediately available since university officials plan to give considerable thought to the insignia for the new seal.

Athletic jackets just mention "Oshkosh" and do not indicate the type of school, so no problem is encountered there. Jewelers have called already for information as to what to put on rings and pins or other jewelry the university students might want.

Legal Changes

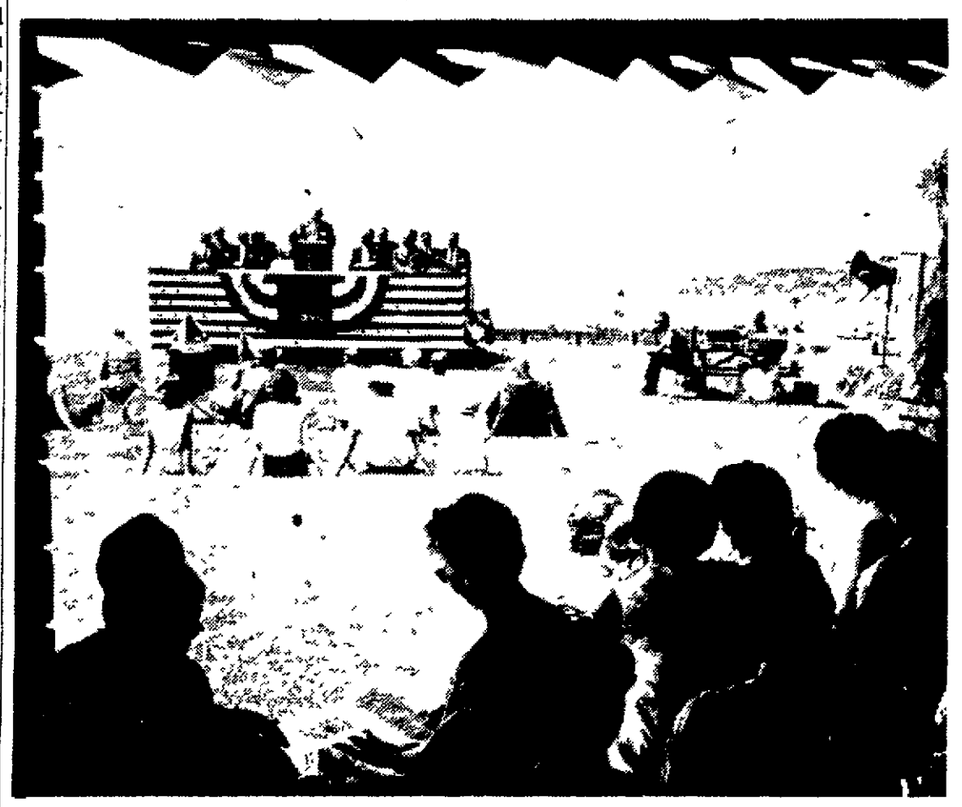

Legal changes will be needed for both the Alumni Association and the Oshkosh State College Foundation to comply with the new designation of "university." They are legally incorporated.

As for the regents who voted the name change a month ago, they must continue to operate as the Board of Regents of State Colleges and as such administer the new state universities.

The regents must go to the Legislature to have their board name changed.

The Brillion High School had one of the better spots to watch the dedication of High Cliff Forest Park Saturday. The cool shadows of their retreat under a facility at the modern marina frame the speakers' platform. The sparse crowd of about 200 other participants found little relief from the sun and temperatures in the 90s. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Aid. Ayers Wants Council Members to Tour City Departments

Alderman John P Ayers (12) has suggested city council members make a tour of all departments so they could gain knowledge of the working structure of the city.

He suggested the council tour the city garage, water department, sewage disposal plant, Golden Age home, police station and fire department.

The tour could be given in one day, and the heads of each department could give a report on each operation, Ayers said.

Chilton's First Exchange Student Returning to Thailand Schools

CHILTON — This community's first American Field Service student will leave the city today to return to his homeland, Thailand.

Chersak Choomnoom, 18, for the past nine months has lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Heine, 414 Reed St.

Now an honorary graduate of Chilton High School, he will return to school in the fall in his home country and study to be a secondary teacher.

The oldest of seven children, Chersak said he looks forward to seeing his family again. He quickly added, however, he will miss the many friends he has made here.

School in the United States and in Thailand is not quite the same. The only comparative subject taught in both is physics, although Thailand schools have some mathematics classes, he said.

English is taught in three phases in Thailand, Chersak said — grammar, translation and essay.

Instead of the semester system characteristic of the U.S., schools in Thailand run for three terms each year, with about a 10-day vacation between each, and a two-month summer vacation coming in March rather than June.

Americans Friendly

He said two things impressed him most while in the United States One was snow, something people in a warm climate country never see. The other was the friendliness of the people Particularly impressive was the way the people in this country and in Chilton greeted him and immediately accepted him as part of the society. People here are also very industrious, he added.

Teenagers here seem to be more mature and have more of a desire to be independent than in his home country, he said.

While here, the Heines took Choomnoom into their home and treated his as one of their own children. The difficult part, they said, was correcting him.

Trust Realized

This problem was solved, however, when Mr. and Mrs. Heine realized that unless they did, they would be letting his parents down. "After all," Mrs. Heine said, "his parents had entrusted him to us for nine months, and thereby expected us to do what they would have done."

The Thai youth was more exposed to the American way of life than expected. Just a week ago he came down with the German measles and was confined to the house.

When he returns to his home province of Surin in the northeast part of Thailand, he will enter college to study education and eventually teach, as does his father.

Boys and Girls To Compete in Play Program

It's boys against girls on Appleton playgrounds Monday as the recreation department summer program goes into its third week of activities.

pete against girls in team games. A rock and roll party is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Erb Park.

A new event on the playgrounds is scheduled for Tuesday: a stuffed animal contest and display in which ribbons will be awarded in 12 classifications.

Wednesday's featured event is a boys and girls hair contest.

The trip to Milwaukee is scheduled for Thursday. Youngsters who are going on the all-day affair will leave from various playgrounds at 7:45 a.m.

Playgrounds are closed Friday.

Founding Date Uncertain

Oshkosh Brewing Firm Has Centennial

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — If King Gambrinus and the Menominee sachem named Oshkosh were to meet in this year of 1964, they would either celebrate or quarrel about the Oshkosh Brewing Company which this year announces its centennial.

Gambrinus is a mythical Flemish king who is credited with the first brewing of beer. Oshkosh, who became chief of his tribe in 1827, was a notable quaffer of things liquid.

And Gambrinus, who is always pictured with a foaming glass in his hand, is credited with being the first brewer of beer, and a devotee of his discovery.

If the meeting would be one to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the progressive brewing company, there would be joy of course, for a celebration is invariably a cause for two-fisted drinking.

Birth-Date Uncertain

If the meeting were scholarly, however, there would be trouble. And the trouble would rise from the birth-date of the Oshkosh Brewing Company which was founded either in 1864 or 1866.

It was in one or the other of those two years that a Bavarian mason August Horn, joined with a German-born brewer, Lenhardt Schwalm, and founded a little company which they called the Brooklyn Brewing Co., named for the part of Oshkosh where it was located.

The first building to house their efforts, a two story frame structure, was a brewery on the bottom and a family-type boarding house at the top. Both the Schwalms and the Horns lived upstairs and took turns boarding their help.

An economy measure it was, for the workers were paid in cash, in room and in "found," and the arrangement helped the young brewers to grow and to develop.

It did, too, despite a damaging fire in 1879 which burned the burgeoning brewery to the ground. Undaunted, the partners erected another building on the same site—the same, indeed, which the present brewing company occupies in part. It is the bottling plant and general offices.

Merger Occurs

By 1894, however, when the Brooklyn Brewing Company was 28 (or 30) years old, the competition was such that a merger seemed the proper course to take. Thus, in that year, whichever it was, the Union Brewing Co. and—wonder of wonders!—the Gambrinus Brewing Co merged with the Brooklyn organization. The Union had been operated by John Glatz and his son; the Gambrinus company was owned by one L. Kuenzl.

The tripled brewing company changed its name to the one it bears today, the Oshkosh Brewing Co., and it said farewell to the others, even Brooklyn.

Some time in the brewing company's history, the Menominee sochem who had given his name to the city of Oshkosh had been photographed in an outlandish costume, complete with a plug hat. The picture was so quaint that the company adopted it as a trademark and called its product Chief Oshkosh beer.

Three Different Breweries merged in 1894 to become the Oshkosh Brewing Co., which last week observed its 100th anniversary. Antecedents of the present brewery date back to 1864 wehn the oldest of these three separate breweries was founded. The present brewery plant was built in 1913 while the bottling house and office dates back even farther.

Stylized Trademark

Recently, however, the old sachem has been replaced by a stylized arrowhead considered to be more suitable to modern advertising techniques.

By 1911, the company had grown to such proportions that it required more space, A new building was erected, tall and imposing and towered, with jutting angles and castle-like parapets. "It looks the way a brewery ought to look," said David Uihlein, president since 1961. And it does.

It functions as a brewery should, also. Since his arrival here after purchase of the controlling interest in the brewing company, Uihlein has brought an almost unbelievable amount of energy to the plant.

A powerful expansion and rebuilding campaign was launched to the tune of some $100,000 to improve the facilities, to meet modern brewing methods and to fare well, as it has, with rugged competition.

Uihlein, a hard-working, forever-stimulated, former Milwaukeean is dark-haired, blue-eyed and dedicated to the development of the 98 (or 100) year-old company which he has pushed into a 7 per cent sales increase in a three year period.

Devoted to Principle

He is devoted to the principle that he must work hard on a state-wide basis, and that "selling beer takes lots of shoe leather." The philosphy was his grandfather's, he said,

Uihlein, who holds a master brewer's license, is a cousin to Robert E Uihlein, president of the far-flung Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. He is not otherwise associated with the Milwaukee firm.

Vigorous promotional activities, and intensive community enterprise and spirit has marked the immediate past growth of the Oshkosh company which now produces some 55,000 bar- of beer annually.

Gifted with a sense of the common touch, Uihlein is generally called "Dave" and is friendly and informal.

Proud of Brewery

"If anybody wants to come in and look at our brewery, we take them around. We don't have regular visiting hours. We're proud and we like to show it and we think that people who come in to see it will feel proud of it, too"

An avid hunter-fisherman, Uihlein seldom finds time for such fun, but his firm is extremely active in promoting skill-competitions in fishing and hunting

There's a big buck contest sponsored in the autumn, a sturgeon spearing contest in the summer, a walleye contest in the spring and fall.

"Some day," Uihlein said "I'm going to take some time off and try to win one of those contests. If my deer's antlers are big enough to take a prize, or any of my fish can win, you can bet your life that I'm going to claim the prize. Then won't there be hell to pay?" he asked, grinning at the thought.

The brewing company has reconstructed an old river boat, "The Paul L." which once shuttled up and down the Fox and Wolf Rivers delivering the Chief Oshkosh beer to purveyors of the beverage. The replica of the old stern-wheeler is a fantastic-winner" for the brewing company, for it is often put to use to aid community endeavors, such as the recent Venetian Night promoted by Fremont.

Gambrinus would have approved of the effort put forth by the Oshkosh brewer.

Gambrinus, though a mythical being who acts as a sort of patron "saint" to the brewing industry, actually is a facsimile of a real man—Jan Primus (Jan I) a duke of Brabant who lived between 1261 and 1294. It is he who is credited with being the first brewer of beer and thus holds his place of honor among all brewers.

Whether he would or not quarrel with a fellow toper, Oshkosh, is not known of course; for two years are not much in a century. The years 1864 and 1866 are long gone.

It would seem more logical for Gambrinus and Oshkosh to applaud the coming of a cause for celebration, and if the founding year is really 1866, the pair should get a two-year head start.

And if the year for celebration is this one, they would relish the occasion of the centennial which is ample reason for serious quaffing.

At any rate, the celebration is "on." In a huge tent adjacent to the Oshkosh Brewing Co., all of the world has been invited to "free lunch and free beer".

"Thousands of people" have come for the treat, said Miss Bernice Howlett, assistant secretary.

Among the thousands would be of course, Gambrinus and Oshkosh. In spirits, that is.

Illinois State Police Expected to Stage Raids on Bingo Games

Sheriff Kirk S King, Winnebago County, said information on possible raids was "picked up through the grapevine from a downstate captain of the state police." It was not an official notification, he said

King said he has advised Winnebago County law enforcement agencies to act before the state police.

Games were stop?ped at Durand and Pecatonica.

Bingo games at a civic celebration were closed in Davis by Sheriff Donald Scofield. Stephenson County, who said he heard of state police plans a week ago vice chairman. Reynolds-Lucey backers are led by Dean Lewis, county vice chairman, and J. W. Barnstable, an Appleton chiropractor, who is a county party executive committee member.

The rift was exhibited two weeks ago at the dinner for Gov. Reynolds at the Darboy Club. Some of the Democrats seemed to work as hard at keeping people away from the dinner as others did trying to get people to attend. In fact, neither the Cherkaskys or Balliet bothered to attend the dinner because they had "other committments"

Democrats in this area have become so politically active that the Republicans are becoming curious

Reports that Kaukauna Mayor Joseph "Doty" Bayorgeon is considering running as a Democrat against Rep. John Byrnes, the incumbent Republican, have at least one member of the GOP skeptical.

Art Lauer, president of the Heart of the Valley Republican Club and Kaukauna chairman of the "Volunteers for Byrnes," doesn't believe Bayorgeon will run.

"Doty is a lot smarter politician than some people realize," Lauer said, "and he didn't get where he is today by being a loser. If he ran against Byrnes and lost—as past congressional elections indicate he would have been labeled a loser

"However," Lauer said, "by having his name tossed around as a possible candidate he has nothing to lose and he stands to get some favorable publicity locally as the man Outagamie Democrats tried to get to run for Congress."

However, Lauer admitted Bayorgeon would be one of the strongest candidates that Democrats could run because of his popularity.

One of the pet peeves of the Outagamie County Democratic unit, the spending of party funds by Eighth District chairman Robert McCormick of Green Bay, was aired again last week during the Eighth District caucus at the state convention

Protests Spending

Robert Swanson, secretary and business manager of the Fox Valley area's Wisconsin Council of County and Municipal Employes, protested what he termed "the excessive spending habits" of McCormick.

What Swanson was refering to was a $140 phone bill turned in by McCormick for the past three months Swanson made a motion to deny payment, but the motion lost for the lack of a second smooth flow of traffic at the bridge during the weekend," Lt. Kennelly said.

Heavy Traffic

Traffic is expected to be heavy at the bridge northbound Thursday and Friday evenings, Lt. Kennelly predicted. This will be caused by numbers of residents of southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois driving north for the July Fourth weekend.

But the main problem is expected to develop late Sunday afternoon or early Sunday evening, as great numbers of motorists head south.

The standing plan of the State Patrol for the jams at the bridge is ready for action. Traffic officials are hoping drivers will have the patience necessary to make the bridge area accident free.

10,000 Enrolled at Milwaukee Campus; Predictions Includes New Four-Year Schools

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—The University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee is likely to grow from its present 10,000 enrollment to about 25,000 students during the next decade in spite of the projected creation of new four year state supported institutions of higher learning during that period, the state building commission has been told

The testimony came from state university officials in connection with the commission's approval of the purchase of the Milwaukee Downer College campus adjacent to the UW-M at a price of $10,000,000

Building commission members expressed mild skepticism about the claim that the Milwaukee branch university would reach the 25,000 student total in the predictable future Would not the planned authorization of new four year schools elsewhere in eastern Wisconsin, including the Fox River Valley and the Racine-Kenosha area, serve to slow the expansion at Milwaukee?

University Vice President Robert Clodius and J M. Klotsche, UW-M provost, replied that they assumed the establishment of the new schools when they estimated the 25,000 student total for Milwaukee.

Klotsche also said under questioning that the UW-M blueprint includes the expansion of curriculum into new fields, including an engineering college.

The Coordinating Committee for Higher Education has proposed the creation of a new four-year institution in the lower Fox River Valley in 1969 and another in the Racine-Kenosha area, and will bring such an enabling bill into the 1965 legislature

The Downer acquisition adds 43 acres to the campus of the Milwaukee branch university, although there was some grumbling about the price of the land involved J. Curtis McKay, a Republican assemblyman, warned that the prices of land for expansion at Milwaukee and at Madison would utimately force the provision of facilities for additional students at new locations in the state He noted that the state paid $225,000 an acre for expansion space at Milwaukee, without taking into account demolition costs.

State Delays Plans for Lake At Dodgeville

Engineers Believe Dam Would Cause A 'Stinkhole'

MADISON (AP) — The State Building Commission decided Thursday to delay plans for a $350,600 dam in Governor Dodge State Park near Dodgeville.

The Conservation Department's engineer said plans for the dam would create a "stinkhole."

The flood control dam on Mill Creek was planned by federal Soil Conservation engineers.

The State Conservation Commission forwarded a request for funds to the building commission in order that the flood control project could be combined with a 148-acre recreation lake in the park

Analysis Incorrect

However, Conservation Department engineer Laurence Motl said the federal engineering analysis was not correct and there was not enough water in the stream to "build a credible lake."

He said a flood control dam provides an empty lake for use in impounding water during heavy runoff conditions, and its engineering requirements are not consistent with a recreation lake.

Assemblyman Curtis McKay, R-Mequon, said it would be "a lake without water in it except at a time of flood."

Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Milwaukee, said feasibility of the dam should have been considered by the Conservation Department before it "gave out all this tremendous publicity about the lake."

New Lake

He said Iowa County residents are excited by the possibility of a new lake and if the commission rejected it "representatives of the Conservation Department will be in Iowa County telling the people the building commission killed their dam."

One reason for the Conservation Commission's request was that nearly $204,000 in federal funds for the dam will lapse on June 30 if the project isn't carried out.

Gov. John W. Reynolds inquired why the project was brought before the building commission if it is not feasible.

Howard Koop, commissioner of administration, termed it "a typical play of the Conservation Department—they've done it a lot of times."

Assemblyman Paul Alfonsi, R-Minocqua, described Koop's remarks as "unfair" because the department had relied on federal recommendations.

It was decided to send the project to a subcommittee for further study.

Said Alfonsi: "We'd better send it back or we'll be a laughing stock for building a hole in the ground."

Operating Ratio Of 95 Per Cent Maintained

Trucker's Appeals For Higher Return Rate Turned Down

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The new intrastate truck charge schedule put into effect by the state public service commission will maintain the traditional operating ratio of about 95 per cent, in spite of the appeals of the trucking industry for a more generous rate of return on their operations.

An operating ratio of 95 per cent means that the typical carrier is expected to realize a gross profit of five per cent, before payment of taxes.

Below Level

The upward rate revisions authorized by the commission were below those sought by the carriers operating within Wisconsin—interstate rates are controlled in separate orders—but were calculated to cover contract wage increases to drivers, others during the next three years Without such rate revisions, the truckers said, their operating ratios would have reached 100 per cent or more as a result of the mandatory wage cost disbursements.

The truckers had asked for increases in minimum shipping charges of 50 cents, 30 cents and 40 cents for the next three years, plus a two per cent rise in all rates other than the minimum charges.

10 Cent Increase

The commission granted instead an increase of 10 cents on minimum charges and a general increase of 3 per cent for all other rates, which it said will produce sufficient revenues during the next two years to cover wage costs already contracted. It authorized also an increase of 40 cents minimum charge shipments starting on January 1, 1966, which it said will be sufficient to offset the prospective cost increases in that year as far as they can now be estimated.

The carriers have agreed to general hourly wage increases during each of the next three years, plus increased weekly contributions during the three year period for health and welfare and pension funds for employes.

Far Ahead of the New Recommendation for courtroom construction being recommended by the Federal Court system are the court rooms in the new Calumet County Courthouse Annex which have been in use for over a year. The design has the judge's bench angle-wise in the corner so that everything is in plain view of the jurors. Shown here in the County Court room are, from the left, Florence Keuler, deputy clerk of courts, Judge D. H. Sebora on the bench and Jean Hoffmann, court reporter, at the right. In the foreground at left is the bailiff's table, center tables for legal counsel, and at the extreme right is the jury box. PostCrescent Photo)

Calumet Court 'Scoops' Time Magazine Story by 13 Months

Brief 'News' Article Old Stuff For County Citizens, Attorneys

BY ALICE SEBORA

CHILTON — A brief account in last week's issue of Time, a weekly news magazine, reported about a new type court room being tested (and recommended) by a federal district court in Tacoma, Washington.

But to Calumet County citizens and Fox Valley area attorneys the "news" was not new! In fact, it was 13 months old.

A court room identical to that pictured in the national magazine story has been in use in Calumet County since May, 1963. There is one marked difference, however, — the Calumet County court rooms are more tastefully appointed than those depicted in Time.

The new courtrooms have put into obsolescence the placement of the judge's bench squarely in the middle of the front of the courtroom, with the judge, the clerk, court reporter and witnesses "backed to the wall" with no one in clear view of the jury.

The tradition of this type of court room arrangement has had little, if any, variance since the establishment of the English courts several hundred years ago.

Court Re-Organization

When Wisconsin court re-organization went into effect in 1960, it became apparent to the Calumet County Board of Supervisors that additional court room facilities were needed.

As the decision was reached to construct an annex to the existing courthouse, it was also concluded to "up-date" the courtrooms design so that the judges, both sets of lawyers, the witness on the stand, and the jury each would have an unobscured view of the entire court proceedings.

There are few existing courtrooms where this is possible. At best, the judge sees the back of the neck of the witness, often the counsel tables for the attorneys are set so far to the right or left as to make them part of the "outfield". The jurors, generally, can see only part of the witness and a portion of boards erected for exhibits.

Built in Corner

The modern court rooms now in use in Calumet county have the judge's bench built angle-wise into the corner, with the door from the judge's chambers opening directly to the steps going up to the bench.

The clerk of courts is stationed, unobtrusively — but very visibly — at the right of the bench. The witness box, within plain view of the jurrors and the judge, is located at the left.

The court reporter is set directly beneath the bench where she is within easy hearing of all testimony. Counsel tables are located in the center of the room — again adding to the general visibility of the proceedings.

At the extreme left is the jury box situated so that everything which occurs during a trial is within a direct line of vision and audibility of the jurors.

Pew-Type Benches

Pew-type benches for spectators remain in the back of the room.

The modernized arrangement of both the county and circuit court rooms, which are almost identical in lay-out, has done much to ease the strain of a trial for everyone concerned — judge, jury, witnesses, lawyers and court attendants.

The reason is simple: now all persons pertinently involved in a court action can both see and hear what is happening, literally eliminating a portion of the "blindness" attributed to justice.

State Drafts Final Plans for OSC Building

Move Made in View Of Anticipated 2,000 Student Hike

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — In anticipation of an enrollment jump of nearly 2,000 at the institution during the next two years, the state building commission has granted authority for the drafting of final plans and the construction of a major new classroom building on the crowded Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh campus.

The $2,200,000 building is expected to be completed and available for use by the fall of 1965, when the institution probably will have more than 6,000 students, according to E. R. McPhee, director of state colleges.

The school now has an enrollment of about 4,200 and expects to have a total of about 4,900 for the fall term. By fall of 1965 the number of students registered there may increase by another 1,000 to 1,200, the building commission was told.

Crowded Campus

College officials said the campus is extremely crowded from the standpoint of general classroom space, and that some buildings intended for demolition to provide clearing for new facilities have been used for faculty offices, instructional space and music practice rooms out of necessity.

They argued that state policy has approved a standard of 66 square feet of assignable instructional space per student, but that the actual figure at Oshkosh is now slightly under 24 square feet per student enrolled.

Because the new structure will not have specialized laboratories, the facilities will be interchangeable among the principal academic departments of the college, officials said

Winnebago 4-H Events Planned

Picnic, Food Revue, Contest Participation In Week's Line Up

OSHKOSH — Junior 4-H leaders of Winnebago County will have their annual picnic at 7 p.m. Tuesday at Court Park at Winneconne.

Set for 1 p.m. Tuesday at Grace Lutheran Church Winchester, is a goods revew which is under the direction of Miss Marjorie Zibell, home management agent.

A second foods revue is planned for 1 p.m. Thursday at Sunset School on State 110 near here.

The Junior 4-H leaders group plans an educational trip to Milwaukee on July 15 and those going are to submit reservations to the county extension office by Wednesday, Clarence Westfahl, county 4-H agent, pointed out.

Adult project and organizational leaders will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the courthouse.

Dairy Judging

Also planned for Wednesday at the Fond du Lac fairgrounds is an area dairy judging contest. Expected to participate from Winnebago County are Nile Beck of Enterprise 4-H Club Daniel Carpenter and Michael Haedt of Smile A While Club and Ed Ihde and Le Roy Luebke of the Beaver Valley 4-H Club.

Bruce Bondow of the Beaver Valley 4-H Club will represent Winnebago County in the state tractor operators' contest at the University of Wisconsin Thursday. He placed first in the county contest at the county fair last fall.

Entries for the 4-H demonstration contest, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, July 7, at Winneconne Central School, must be submitted by Tuesday to the county extension office, Westfahl reminded members.

Missile Sites Reported in Cuban Hands

Castro Forces Are Warned Not to be Trigger-Happy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is reported to be handing over the operation of its antiaircraft missiles in Cuba to the Castro military forces--but with a warning against trigger-happy firing at U.S. reconnaissance planes.

The transfer of the missile operations from Russian to Cuban hands is—according to information obtained by the United States—going on as the Russians near completion of their troop withdrawal.

The information indicates 600 to 800 Soviet officers and men left Cuba last month and about 1,200 more are still to be withdrawn. The Soviets will leave behind, however, what is described as a permanent training mission of 800 to 1,000.

Missile Crisis

At the height of the "eyeball to eyeball" missile crisis in October 1962 the Russians were believed to have 22,000 or more troops in Cuba.

The 24-base network of surface-to-air missiles — SAMs— the Russians are turning over is believed still capable of shooting down the American high-altitude reconnaissance planes that are patrolling Cuba.

The information here is that the central command governing the SAM sites is still under control of Soviet officers. Also, officials have given support to published reports that the advanced Soviet radar installed in the missile system has been dismantled and withdrawn. This would reduce the effectiveness of the missiles and their ability to knock down the swift American jets.

Call Meeting

In another development Friday, the Organization of American States voted 17 to 0 to call a meeting of hemisphere foreign ministers here July 21 to consider breaking all diplomatic and economic ties with the Castro government. Mexico abstained in the vote.

Under the Inter - American Treaty of Mutual Assistance, Venezuela has asked the OAS to adopt sanctions against Cuba —the severing of diplomatic ties, a halt in economic relations and suspension of sea and air communications.

The 200-Inch Telescope at Palomar Observatory will be dwarfed by future "big eyes" to discover secrets of the universe, these two leading star-gazers agree. They are Dr. Ira Bowen, 65 (front), who retires June 30 as director of Mt. Wilson and Palomar Observatories in San Diego County, Calif., and his successor, Dr. Horace W. Babcock, 51, associate director who will succeed him. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Report on Era

Big Eyes Get New Head As Star Studier Retires

BY RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)— The boss of the world's largest telescope steps down June 30, after 16 years which have seen astronomy make its greatest strides in modern times.

His successor already envisions new instruments up to twice the size of the almost magical looking glass which has proved the universe is vast beyong mortal dreams.

Dr. Ira S. Bowen, white-haired, slender and still whip-tongued at 65, is retiring as director of the Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories — the sites, respectively, of 100-inch and 200-inch telescopes, each the largest when built.

Replacement

His replacement is Dr. Horace W. Babcock, 51, a tall and taciturn scientist who resembles the late Gary Cooper and has as little use for words.

Bowen, onetime physics instructor at California Institute of Technology, has been director at Mt. Wilson since 1946. He became chief of both observatories when Palomar opened two years later.

Babcock, associate director the past year, has been on the observatory staff since 1946— but he had been climbing around Mt. Wilson's giant scopes since his astronomer father, Dr. Harold D. Babcock, first took him up that mile-high peak north of here at the age of 2.

Star Gazing

Like most astronomers, Bowen and Babcock spend much of their lives gazing at stars while the rest of the world sleeps.

Bowen concedes that under his guidance Palomar's 200-inch "big eye" has looked deeper into space than any other instrument, and intercepted light that left distant galaxies four to six billion years ago.

But he insists: "All the work was done by others--I was primarily an administrator."

Similarly modest, Babcock says firmly: "This is not the time to discuss anything I may have contributed. Any public attention should be directed to Dr. Bowen."

But the record stands in reports the 16-man staff makes annually to Caltech and the Carnegie Institution of Washington, which jointly operate the observatories.

In the years since World War II the eight telescopes of various sizes and uses on Mt. Wilson and Palomar Mountain in San Diego County have enabled astronomers to—

1. Rewrite textbooks about the cosmos. "We've learned it's so big we don't know how big it is," says Bowen. "We need new yardsticks to measure it."

2. Determine that as far out as we can see ,the universe is about the same as it is near by —systems of large and small stars wheeling away from us at speeds increasing with distance until they approach the velocity of light itself.

Radio Signals

3. Identify some of these giant systems as the sources of incredibly powerful signals picked up by dish-shaped antennas which "see" radio waves as the human eye sees light waves. These are the brightest and most distant objects yet discovered. Astronomers expect to find others even farther and brighter which may give some hint as to whether the universe is endless or curves back on itself in some unfathomable pattern.

4. Establish that there is a need for more giant telescopes, and that instruments with light-collecting mirrors up to 400 inches in diameter are technically possible to build.

"I am sure that significant contributions will be made both by land-based radio telescopes and optical telescopes in orbiting satellite observatories," says Babcock.

Future Needs

"I am also convinced there is a great need for many more land-based telescopes in the 100- to 200-inch range, and possibly up to 400 inches, especially in the Southern Hemisphere.

"Numerous surveys are being made by various groups around the world to look at the southern skies, which lie below the horizon for most of the large telescopes."

A-1 SUBURBAN LIVING
With City Advantages
Located just a short distance outside Appleton city limits on a beautiful 100' X 400' wooded lot, this modern 1½-story home offers the type of quiet living you've always wanted — yet it's within 15 minutes of downtown. It has a beautiful yard is nicely landscaped and has many wonderful shade trees.

The lady of the house will truly enjoy the spacious, well-arranged kitchen. The whole family will appreciate the comfortable 12' X 18' living room, the attractive tiled bath and the two airy bedrooms. This convenient room arrangement is all on the first floor. An enclosed stairway leads to the unfinished upstairs, which has ample space for two additional bedrooms and a powder room.

This is a well - built home, with a poured concrete divided basement. Enjoy the comfort and convenience of oil heat and electric hot water heater. You'll truly appreciate the cool, sweet water from the deep well.

All of this for only $16,500 because we (the owners) are moving and must sell. We'll be happy to show it to you by appointment

Bubolz Outlines Growth, Development of High Cliff Park

SHERWOOD — "Preservation of High Cliff assures us of a continuing stand of several hundred acres of trees in one of the finest outdoor forestry laboratories," Gordon A. Bubolz, said here Saturday.

Bubolz, founder and general chairman of the High Cliff Forest Park Association, addressed a sparse crowd of about 200 at park dedication ceremonies here Saturday.

"Without forests, our recreation and nature appreciation opportunities would be greatly diminished. One of the greatest purposes of forestry is to enable as many people as possible to study its values and human benefits," he said. High Cliff Forest offers this opportunity, according to Bubolz.

Bubolz outlined the park's development. The first insight to the potential of High Cliff as a state park was realized in 1929, by George Schaefer, a Calumet County Board member, and John Stumpf, Sherwood, now president of the High Cliff Forest Park Association, Bubolz said.

Allot Funds

He said a meeting called by the two in 1929 stimulated the public interest that finally aroused the state legislature to allot funds for the development of High Cliff.

The next significant move in the park's development came in 1953, when members of the State Conservation Commission visited the site and agreed it had great potential as a scenic and recreational area, Bubolz said.

Although the commission concurred in the park's value, the legislature still would not appropriate funds, so residents of the Fox Valley area had to decide for themselves to conserve High Cliff, the former state senator said.

At a second meeting with the Conservation Commission a month later, Bubolz, on behalf of area residents, agreed to raise $25,000 to get the project moving, he said. This led to the drafting of articles of incorporation for the High Cliff Forest Park Association, according to Bubolz.

Organizational Meeting

Bubolz said the group had its organizational meeting in December of 1953, and, within a few months, had raised $26,000. On May 5, 1954, the Conservation Commission authorized the Conservation Department to proceed in securing options for acquisition of the site. This ultimately led to today's park, Bubolz said.

Bubolz concluded by citing service organizations for their work in promoting development of the park. He said over an 11-year period, $247,000 were contributed voluntarily, with the money used to build the park's bathhouse and marina and provide the incentive for acquisition of an additional 288-acre land tract.

Bubolz gave special recognition to Dr. Chadler Rowe, then a Lawrence College archaeologist and now Lawrence university dean; Dr. A. M. Read, Lawrence geologist, George Banta Jr.; Clyde Smith, area supervisor of forests and parks, and Adam C. Remley, former president of the High Cliff Forest Park Association.

Scranton Group Encouraged by Early Response

Dennis Herrling, Appleton co-chairman of the "Wisconsin Committee for Scranton," Saturday announced a statewide committee formed to help bring about the Republican presidential nomination for Pennsylvania Gov William Scranton.

Herrling said initial response to the newly formed group has been "most encouraging.

"In the few short days we have been functioning," Herrling said, "we have managed to put together a cohesive and effective organization. We are urging individuals from throughout the state to write Gov. Scranton in Scranton, Pa., and offer their encouragement."

Heading the list of 17 names given by Herrling are State Sen. Earl Leverich, Sparta; Assemblyman George Borg, Delevan; Harry C. Moore, president of the Beloit Corp., and A. F. Copeland, president of the Coca Cola Bottling Co., Madison. Another member is Gary Yakes, an Oshkosh attorney.

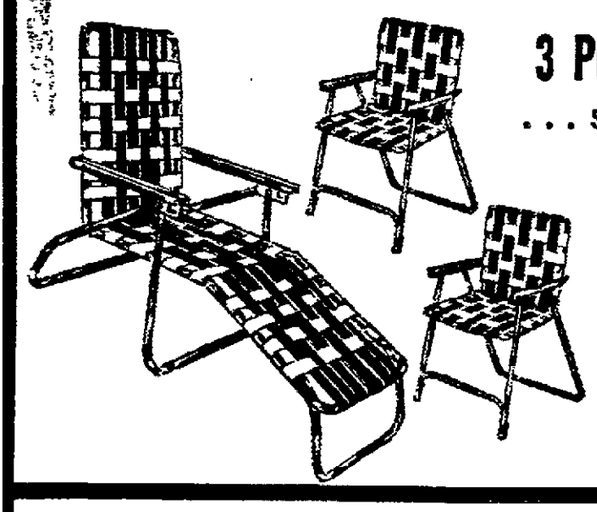

Mrs. Peter Nelson, Appleton, is the other co-chairman of the Wisconsin Committee for Scranton, and Allan Blank, Cedarburg, is executive secretary.

State Open Tennis Entry List May Top Last Year's

Tourney Starts July 10 in Oshkosh; Fentress Won't Defend Title

OSHKOSH—Entries are starting to come in for the Wisconsin Open tennis tournament July 10-12 in Oshkosh and Tournament Director Joe Bleckinger said he expects the field to top last year's 130 figure.

The men's open title will be up for grabs as last year's champion, Lee Fentress of Tulane University, has indicated he will not be back to defend his crown. Women's title holder, Barbara Mueller of Mequon, will return as will a number of junior winners, some coming back in older age brackets.

Chuck Bleckinger will be one of the betting favorites to take back the men's crown he won in 1962 and then lost last year to Fentress. Bob Stuckert of Milwaukee, the No. 1 rated player in the state for a number of years, also may play this year, Joe Bleckinger said. Stuckert rarely makes a tennis appearance outside of Milwaukee.

Upsets Fentress

Danny Bleckinger may also have to be reckoned with as he recently upset Fentress in a southern tournament. A junior division entrant is Upton Guiles, Louisiana state high school champion. Guiles and Dan Bleckinger have met twice in tournaments, each winning once.

Play again this year will be split between the various courts in the city with the finals on July 12 on the Menominee Park courts.

Defending junior singles champions include Dean Eisner, Manitowoc, boys 18; Tom Vanderhyden, Menasha, boys 16; Gale Carvell, Evanston, Ill., boys 14; Ted Sprinkman, West Bend, boys 12; Jackie Mueller, Mequon, girls 18; Barbara Wirth, Menasha, girls 16; Alice Kenney, Menasha, girls 14, and Jane Bleckinger, Oshkosh, girls 12.

Defending junior doubles champions are Barry Conway and Pat Kenney, Menasha, boys 18; Jeff Rushton, Appleton, and Tom Vanderheyden, Menasha, boys 16; Jackie Mueller, Mequon, and Ellen Friedlander, Milwaukee, girls 18, and Janet Wulling, La Crosse, and Barbara Wirth, Menasha, girls 16.

Mrs. Henry Felker Becomes Third Member of Family to Fire Hole-in-1

BY TIGER BROOKS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"I didn't believe it until I looked in the cup — and then it didn't hit me until I tried to play the next hole." That's the way Mrs. Henry Felker, 903 Dove St., described her reaction to her first hole-in-one.

Mrs. Felker, who has played golf for over 19 years, struck it rich Tuesday when she fired her ace on the par 3, 133-yard sixth hole at Lake Shore Municipal Golf Course. She used a 5-iron and, "didn't see the ball go into the cup. The girls I was playing with said it was in the cup but I didn't believe it until I looked in. I knew it was inside the circle (used to determine who is closest to the pin in 'Guest Day' play.)"

Mrs. Felker, who admitted she was "a little shaky after I realized what I had done," becomes the third member of the Felker family to accomplish the golfers' dream. Her husband fired a hole-in-one quite a few years ago at Lake Shore, and her 21-year-old son, Ronald, aced the 17th at the Brown County Course in Green Bay last year.

The hole-in-one feat was duplicated later Tuesday by Doug Wenzel, who used a 7-iron on the same hole.

Cub Scout Little League manager, Don Wyman, reports that the league's "All-Star" softball game will be played July 12 at Menominee Park. The two best players on each team in the Blue League will battle their counterparts in the Gold League.

Trophies will be awarded to players on the winning team and a new traveling trophy will be presented to the city champions.

Standings, as of June 16 (some games were rained out this week) in the Blue League were: Smith, 5-0; Trinity and First English Lutheran, 5-0; St. Peter's, 3-2; Roosevelt, 2-3; Sacred Heart, 2-3; Read, 1-4; Washington, 1-4, and St. Vincent's, 1-4.

Gold League standings, through June 16 were: Merrill, 4-1; Emmeline Cook, 4-1; Sacred Heart, 4-1; St. Mary's, 3 - 2; South Park, 3-2; Franklin, 1-4; Dale, 1-4, and Read, 0-5.

The Cub Scout softball program in Oshkosh is completely voluntary and has no official connection with the scout office.

Beach and pool officials here haven't quite decided what to do if anyone shows up in the new topless attire. One official said "If a person paid an admittance fee to swim, I suppose we'd have to let her swim." Another official said he would have to investigate the situation further.

What with the change in name from Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh to Wisconsin State University - Oshkosh Wednesday, sportswriters are going to have to re-arrange their thinking this fall.

Both the old and new official names are a bit too long and awkward to use in writing a story and impossible in a headline. In the past we usually cut the name down to Oshkosh State College, or, to make it even shorter, to OSC or Titans.

If we reduce the new name to Oshkosh State University or to OSU, readers may get confused with Ohio State.

Garner Horton, college public relations director, has suggested using "Wisconsin University Oshkosh" or "WUO." Someone else suggested using the abbreviation "OU" for Oshkosh University. This would be a headline writer's delight. Thus, the Oshkosh University Titans would become, in a headline, OUT.

Sheboygan Held to 3 Hits

Neenah Scores Legion Win Behind Loughrin

NEENAH — The Neenah Legion baseball team combined a 6-run second inning and Gene Loughrin's 3-hit, 17 - strikeout pitching to defeat Sheboygan, 7-2, in a Fox Valley Legion League game Saturday afternoon.

The triumph boosted Neenah's record to 4-2. Sheboygan's dropped to 2-4.

Loughrin retired 16 batters on strikes, while another hitter reached base when the third strike got away from the catcher. The Neenah hurler walked only three, two of them in the ninth. He had three whiffs in the first, fourth and sixth frames.

Neenah combed started Phil Nelsen and Tom Laack for 10 hits. The pair struck out six and walked two. The visitors committed seven errors behind their pitchers.

The big second opened when Tom Walkner was hit by a pitch. It also included singles by Jim Bellin, Loughrin, Joe Muench and Walkner, a passed ball, a wild pitch and three errors. None of the runs was earned.

The hosts added another in the seventh on hits by Walkner and Bruce Menning and a wild pitch. Neenah stranded 11 runners. Sheboygan scored its runs in the sixth on an error, Laack's double and a passed ball.

Don Perry, Walkner and Menning all had two hits for the winners, while Laack accounted for two of the Sheboygan hits.

Wertsch Can Clinch Tie For Crown

Must Win Pair Of Games in Classic League

OSHKOSH — Wertsch Motors can clinch at least a tie for the first half championship in the Recreation Department Classic Open Softball League with a pair of victories this week.

Wertsch's has a 2-game edge over the second-place Rail on the loss side and has four games left in first half play. The Rail has only two games remaining.

The motor team plays fifth place Cowan's at the south side lighted diamond Monday and the sixth place Klinger team at the north side lighted diamond Wednesday. The Rail is scheduled for only one game this week, against third-place Club Oasis at the North Side diamond Monday.

Thursday Commercial Loop co-leader Oshkosh Merchants take on third place Piggly Wiggly in the top contest Thursday night. Raddatz & Meyer, which also owns a share of first, meets fifth place Oregon Clothing.

Most of the other league leaders face second division opponents this week.

Peggy Ploor Wins Neenah Tennis Title

NEENAH—Peggy Ploor won the girls 16-and-under tennis singles championship by defeating Mary Asmuth, 6-3, 6-3, in the finals.

Miss Ploor won over Sue Haufe, 6-1, 6-2, in the semis while Miss Asmuth bested Sue Roberts, 8-2.

Jim Ryan and Brian Koehn gained berths in the finals of the boys 14-and-under singles. Ryan bested John Whitlinger, 10-6, and Koehn topped Mike Nabbefeldt, 10-8, in the semis.

Quarter-final winners were Ryan over Allan Sherwood, 10-4, Whitlinger over Bob Wessenberg, 10-0; Koehn over Jim Nault, 10-0; and Nabbefeldt over Russ Pollnow, 10-6.

The senior men's singles tournament will be played at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Laudan Park courts. Tourneys next Friday morning include the junior girls doubles at Laudan Park, junior boys singles at Doty Park and boys 12-and-under singles at Washington Park

Marinette '9' Takes Pair From Oshkosh

Held to 2 Hits In Nightcap but Triumphs, 1-0

MARINETTE — The Oshkosh Legion baseball team dropped both ends of an exhibition doubleheader to the Marinette Legion team here Saturday, 6 - 4 and 1-0.

Coach Norm Kumbier cleared his bench in the opener as seven errors proved to be the downfall. Dave Misterek led Oshkosh with a double and single in the opener. Oshkosh garnered six hits to Marinette's nine.

Russ Pettibon started for Oshkosh and was relieved by Rick Voight in the third. Pettibon was saddled with the loss. Marinette scored single runs in the first and second and three in the third. The victors added another in the sixth for a 6-2 lead.

Oshkosh bounced back with two runs in the seventh and, with one out, runners were on second and third, but the bats failed.

The second game saw the visitors strand 12 men on the bases, two in the last inning.

Lynn Peterson worked the first four frames and took the loss. Larry Koplitz relieved in the fifth. The pair limited Marinette to two hits, one off each.

Marinette scored the run in the second when Tom Jackeus survived on an infield error and stole second. Jackeus attempted to steal third and the throw went into left field, permitting him to score.

Oshkosh returns to Fox Valley Legion League Southern Division action Tuesday, playing host to Winneconne.

Koplitz Leads Oshkosh '9' In Hitting

OSHKOSH — Veterans Larry Koplitz and Hal Malnory are leading the Oshkosh American Legion Baseball team in hitting through the first six games of the season.

Excluding Friday and Saturday's games, Koplitz had a lofty .466 average on seven hits in 15 at bats. Malnory, who led the team last year with a .352 average, is hitting at a .428 clip with 9 hits in 21 at bats.

The team as a whole is batting a solid .296 with 60 hits in 203 trips to the plate. Coach Norm Kumbier's squad has made its hits count as they have scored 61 runs in the same period.

Jim Stromske Low With 70

Qualifying Continues For Oshkosh Golf Test

OSHKOSH — Oshkosh golfers have until next Sunday to qualify for the Oshkosh City Golf Tournament and the opportunity to unseat two - time champion Roger Schuhart.

Schuhart beat Butch Baerwald for the title last year and also won the city crown in 1962.

Schuhart is exempt from qualifying for the tournament.

Lake Shore Golf Course professional Jock McLaren said pairings and flights would be set up as soon as qualifying was completed and that match play would probably start the following weekend.

The finals will be played sometime in August with the exact date still to be selected.

Oshkosh High School golf star Jim Stromske leads early qualifiers with a par 70. Other low early qualifiers include Maney Flegler, 72; Mike Malone, 75; and Bob Leary, 76.

McLaren said the bulk of the golfers would be qualifying this coming weekend.

Ed Meredith won the city tournament under the present organization in 1959. Other champions since then include Bob Oaks, 1960; Al Kleveno, 1961, and Schuhart in 1962 and 1963.

In addition to the regular flights, the number of which will be decided at the conclusion of qualifying, there will be senior flight for men 50 years and older and a special senior flight for men 60 years and older.

Henry Miller is defending senior champion and Ed Schrank is defending special senior titlist. McLaren said both would be back to defend their titles.

Summer's 'Cool' at Pollack Pool

BY JUDY RUSSELL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKSOH—One of the most popular places for youngsters during the hot and humid days of summer is Pollock Pool. It's also a popular place, employment-wise, for some 16 high school students and college graduates who work as life guards, attendants and cashiers under the guidance of manager Ralph Nielsen and assistant manager, Richard Schoenberger.

Four of the 16 are girls who handle regular life guard chores, keeping a close watch on the younger set's water shenanigans. The girls—Pamela Dohrman, Luanna Meyer, Mimi Gengler and Julie Guelig — agree on three points: the work is enjoyable and the suntan benefits are good, kids can think of more things to do that they shouldn't be doing, and those topless swim suits better never show up in Oshkosh!

With Over 2,000 Noisy Youngsters sometimes on hand, a megaphone and whistle can be handy objects to help a lifeguard maintain order and safety. Julie Geulig, a native of Green Bay, will graduate in July from Wisconsin State College. She will teach at West DePere in the fall. Pool manager Ralph Nielsen reported that lifeguard uniforms are "on the way." The boys will wear red and white trunks and the girls will be attired in red suits. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Will Teach in Fall

Pam, a 1964 graduate of Wisconsin State College, is in her second year of Pollock Pool employment. "I enjoy my work although it can get boring. It goes together with my major field, physical education." Pam will teach phy ed in the elementary schools at Appleton in the fall.

When the pool is crowded and there are many kids to keep track of, the major problems are caused by youngsters who run on the decks and those who push others into the pool. "We ask the kids to leave if they give us too much trouble," Pam commented.

Sitting in the sun all day can be troublesome. "I use baby oil or some type of lotion," Pam stated, "but the problem is the back of my legs. They remain white from sitting in the lifeguard chair." When the sun is too scorching umbrellas can be attached to the chairs. The guards also wear sun glasses and white, wide-brimmed "helmets."

Not For Her

What does Pam think of the latest attire (or lack of) in the swimwear world? "I don't think I'd wear a topless suit myself. A lot of girls have nice shapes and look attractive, but they can be appealing for what is not showing too — it leaves more to the imagination."

Luanna has just been working at the pool for two weeks, but she admits, "It's amazing the things kids can think of to do that they're not supposed to do!" This is the first time Luanna has worked with little children at pools and she likes her job "very well."

The Wisconsin State College, Oshkosh, sophomore, who lives at 929 Jackson St., is majoring in French and plans to become a teacher. When the topic turned to topless, Luanna commented, "I don't think we'll see topless swim suits in Oshkosh for a while. The other day we were discussing what we would do if someone actually showed up with one."

Enjoys Lessons

Mimi enjoys giving swimming lessons more than guard duties and she feels there are not many problems on the job. The first-year pool employe had a "no comment" on the topless suits.

Mimi, a sophomore at St. Teresa College at Winona, Minn., lives at 1401 Wisconsin St. Her future goal is to enter the nursing profession.

The fourth regular, Julie, is a native of Green Bay and will graduate from Wisconsin State College, Oshkosh, in July. She resides at 215 W. Parkway Ave. In September, Julie will teach physical education in the West De Pere elementary schools. "This is my first year here but I worked at the Fisk Park Pool in Green Bay for two years," Julie declared. Her favorite sport, of course, is swimming.

Hefty Help

Julie feels that "some of the older boys act like smart alecs at the pool, but the guys employed here are around to help if we have any problems."

"I hope topless suits never come to Oshkosh," Julie remarked. "I don't see how people have the nerve to wear them!"

Manager Nielsen, who has been in charge of the pool for two years, reports that the young employes "average 40 hours a week." If they are unable to work a certain time, they arrange for their own substitutes. Attendants have to be 16 years old, while lifeguards have to be 18 and have to have WSI, water safety instruction.

The workers assist in giving swimming lessons from 9 a.m. to noon Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Maintenance work on the pools, which includes vacuuming, back washing, and disinfecting dressing areas and decks, is handled on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Full Day

The pool is open from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m., with five or six guards on duty during the day (depending on the crowd) and four in the evening. Junior and senior lifesaver classes are held at 9 a.m. Wednesday mornings. This Wednesday the Oshkosh Fire Department will give a resuscitation class.

The pool, opened four years ago, had an attendance last year of 70,942. The biggest single day's attendance in 1963 was 2,483.

The 2,000-mark was hit Thursday when 2,017 swimmers were at Pollock Pool. Manager Nielsen expects that mark to be broken again this weekend.

Mr. Nielsen, an Oshkosh native, will teach at Lourdes High School in the fall. He will handle algebra, geometry, general science and do some coaching.

Other students earning their keep at the pool this summer are Larry Didlo, 1255 Jackson St.; Tom Curly, 1030 Algoma Blvd.; Jim Wills, 1302 Monroe St.; Bob Nowacki, 307 Fulton Ave.; Tom Keefe, 1237 Main St.; Steve Schumerth, 443 Church Ave.; John Anderson, 3262 Shorewood Drive; Dave Schrader, 420 N. Lark St.; Carol Rosanski, 1418 Oshkosh Ave.; Wendy Loots, 934 Monroe Ave.; Frank Metz, 773 Algoma Blvd., and Walter Krecklow, 1333 Bowen St.

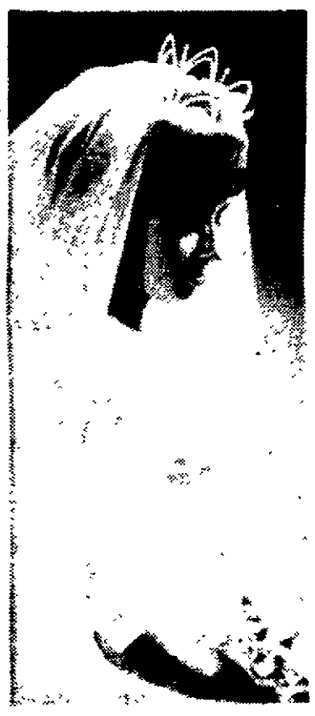

Dishing Out a Little Tender, loving care at the Pollock Pool is just part of the duties of lifeguard Pamela Dohrman, 765 Elmwood Ave. Here Pam gives motherly advice to two-year-old Sean O'Donnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Donnell, 839 Wisconsin St. This is Pam's second summer as a pool employee. She will teach phy ed at Appleton in the fall.

Oshkosh Man To Seek Seat In Congress

Democrat Entry to Announce Candidacy Later This Afternoon

BY MARK E. OLIVA
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — The announced entry of Edward Weber, 42, as a Sixth District congressional candidate later today threatens to bring the statewide Democratic Party split to the district level in a hard nomination battle

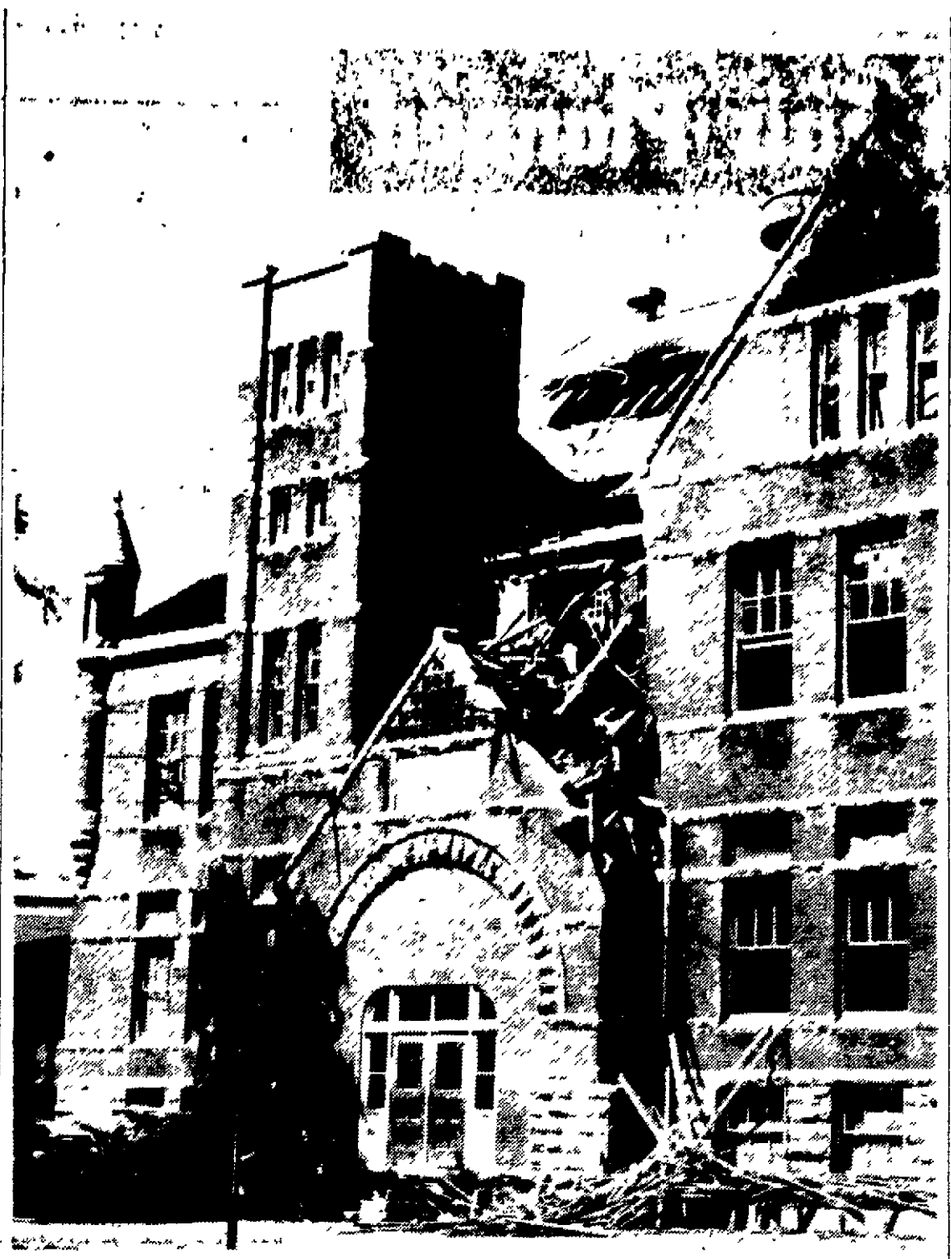

Weber began his campaign for office at the High Cliff State Forest Park dedication Saturday and said he would make a formal announcement of his candidacy at 4 p.m. today at the Sheboygan. County picnic.

The announcement follows a recent announcement by John Race, Fond du Lac, that he too was seeking the Sixth District Democratic nomination. Weber, a veteran member of the Winnebago County Democratic chapter and past county chairman, has been aligned with Gov. John W Reynolds and National Committeeman Patrick Lucey in the state party feud

Race, chairman of the Fond du Lac County party chapter and vice chairman of the district organization, is allied with the forces of Sen Gaylord Nelson and State Democratic Chairman J. Louis Hanson The two state party factions have been at odds with each other since 1954, and currently ae in a struggle for control of the state party.

During his visit to the High

200 Swelter At Rites, Hear Talks

BY MARK OLIVA

SHERWOOD — A sparse crowd of 200 persons sat through 90-degree temperatures under blue skies Saturday to witness the final phase in the culmination of a 35-year dream, dedication of High Cliff Forest Park as a state park.

Speakers related some of the significant details and interesting points of the park. Giving talks were Gov. John W. Reynolds, Gordon A. Bubolz, founder and chairman of High Cliff Forest Park Association, and Charles Smith, Wausau, member of the State Conservation Commission, who dedicated the park in place of chairman Guido Rahr, forced to cancel his appearance because of a death in the family.

Among points of the park outlined for special interest were Indian effigy mounds, discovered by Dr. Chandler Rowe, archaeologist and dean of Lawrence University; the Old Military Road; Limestone deposits and outcroppings, the park's educational values as a reminder of the Ice Age and the statue of Chief Red Bird.

In dedicating the 500 - acre park, Smith said, "There is a paradise here — a little of all the world is here."

"The idea of conservation is to conserve for the future what we have today, and here, today, we have High Cliff Park," Smith said "It does credit to all the other state parks, and it does credit to the local public officials and citizens who made today possible.

"I hope we value this park as much today as it will be valued by people 100 years from today," Smith concluded.

Reynolds cited High Cliff as an example of what purchase of lands on time can accomplish and renewed his call for a bonding program to accelerate state purchase of recreational lands.

Referring to recreational land acquisition, the governor said, "A dark cloud looms. Land values are increasing at such a rapid rate that we are unable to make all the purchases needed." He said it would take 21 years to purchase all the recreational lands the state should purchase under current plans, and this could be done only if land value did not increase.

Reynolds said a bonding program "will not only preserve land, but also will save money." Last year he proposed a bill to put the $50 million land acquisition program on a bond basis and to use cigarette tax money financing the program to pay off the bonds.

Among the Speakers at the dedication of High Cliff Forest Park Saturday were, from the left, Charles F. Smith, who substituted for Guido Rahr, chairman of the Conservation Commission; Gordon A. Bubolz of Appleton; Adam C. Remley, former president of the High Cliff Forest Park Association, and John H. Stumpf, current association president. Behind them is a view of the park's modern marina. New Era Opens Wednesday as OSC Becomes State University - Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH—With proper ceremony as befits the occasion, Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh, better known as Oshkosh State College and to many oldtimers as "the Normal School," Tuesday afternoon will retire the banner which has served the educational institution since 1949 when it underwent another name change.

It will open Wednesday with a "university breakfast" at the Reeve Union Lounge to inaugurate the first day as Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh.

Changing a name requires more than just retiring a banner and holding a breakfast. It requires that the school have university characteristics.

Three Schools

It has three schools—a school of education, a school of letters and science and a graduate school. It will award its first master of science degree in education on July 30. Only one of its more than 200 graduate students in the summer school will have completed the requirements leading up to that degree this year.

Besides this degree, the university-to-be also is authorized to grant master's degrees in guidance and in music education. Previously, the college had a cooperative arrangement with the University of Wisconsin where work could be taken at both schools for a master's degree which would be granted at the latter school.

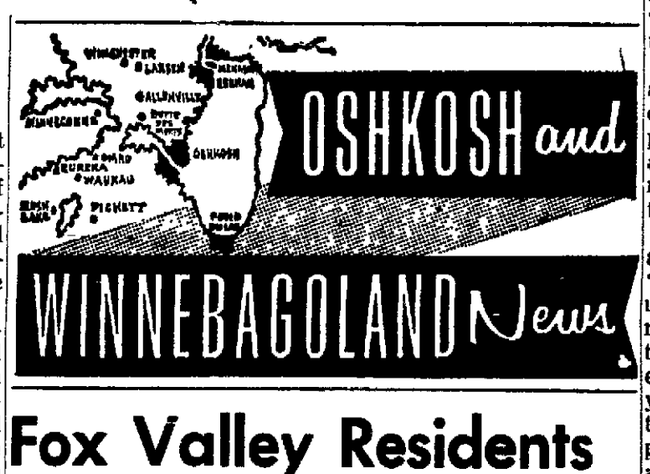

Catalogs for the coming school year were printed last winter and will bear the name of Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh, since it was only a month ago that the name change was authorized. The new catalog goes to press this winter for the 1965-66 school year. It will be extensively revised and will show the new organization of the university and its expanded programs.

July 1 was selected as the time for the name change since on that day a new state fiscal year and budget begins. Already changed, though, is the name of the faculty organization for the state colleges which has adopted Association of Wisconsin State University Faculties as its new name.

Supplies Depleting

Much of the college's supply of letterheads and envelopes has been exhausted, so professors and secretaries are using leftover supplies since new stationery will not be available until after July 1. All present record forms, brochures, pamphlets and anything else containing the

Fox Valley Residents Benefit in Fond du Lac Newspaperman's Will

FOND DU LAC — Several Fox Valley residents, including most of the members of his editorial staff, are beneficiaries of an estate of over $250,000 left by the late Charles F. Coffman, an owner and editor of the daily newspaper and radio station here.

Coffman, whose career as a newspaperman spanned 60 years, died June 12, less than a month after making out his will which was filed for probate in County Court June 16.

Blind for nearly 20 years and semi-retired at the time of his death, Coffman was vice president of the Reporter Printing Co., which publishes the Fond du Lac Commonwealth Reporter, and had been its editor since 1926.

He was also vice president and part owner of the KFIZ Broadcasting Co., on the second floor of the Lange Building above the newspaper.

As a result of the terms of the will, controlling interest in the newspaper will be assumed by Louie A. Lange, Lake DeNevue, who inherited the major share of Coffman's assets. Lange is president of the Reporter Printing Co.

Coffman left Lange all of his stock in the newspaper and radio station, which are operated as separate companies. The value of the stock was not given, but it is believed that Coffman was a one-third owner in both firms.

Coffman, along with the late A. H. Lange (father of Louie) and Emery Martin, were the

Tom Madison to Direct Oshkosh Drama Group

OSHKOSH — Tom Madison, Oshkosh State College faculty member has been elected to direct the first Oshkosh Community Players production of the 1964-65 season. The list of plays for next season has not yet been released.

Madison is a Community Players veteran of both acting and directing. He directed last season's production of "The Women."

Fond du Lac Officials Study Proposed Development Unit

Committee of 25 to Aid City's Promotion Projects

FOND DU LAC — Selection of the 25 members to make up the new Committee for Industrial and Commercial Development is under study by the Common Council and City Mgr. Robert H. McManus.

The idea of such a committee was proposed by the city manager a month ago to that there might be some agency through which information regarding industry and commercial development and the city programs could be correlated.

This committee would not interfere with efforts of the Association of Commerce committee but would supplement and coordinate with that organization.

The council two weeks ago adopted an ordinance to create such a public committee and has referred to the city manager the question of personnel for this committee.

Mercantile Growth

The ordinance provides the committee is created "in the interest of the industrial and mercantile growth of the city of Fond du Lac."

The ordinance also gives the committee's purpose as being "to hear, present, investigate and study ideas, concepts and plans. and to devise and make recommendations to the Common Council concerning matters which in the committee's judgment relate to the advancement of the commercial and industrial development of the city of Fond du Lac."

Membership on the committee is to be composed of persons engaged in industrial management, retailing, real estate, finance, labor, the clergy and housewives. It is not to be limited to just those specific groups, the ordinance also provides.

Approximately 25

Membership shall be approximately 25 persons, but this is not to be considered a fixed number and the committee may be increased or diminished from time to time as meets the needs and as the council as appointing authority may. decide.

City Mgr. McManus in suggesting such a committee pointed out the council had received from the City Plan Commission Feb. 28, 1963, a physical plan of the city and surrounding area which related to future land use. thoroughfares and community facilities

On Feb. 13 of this year the council received an economic survey and market analysis of downtown Fond du Lac Both reports are elements of the city's master plan as being prepared by the Plan Commission. They contain information vital to the commercial and industrial development of the community

The city manager points out that much of these findings and other studies have not been adequately publicized so that this information most likely is not part of the "working knowledge of some of the persons who make key decisions about private development which is of importance to the city.

"It also is questionable that

Problem of Bridge Traffic Attacked

Possible Solutions Set for Holiday Tie-Ups on U. S. 41 Near Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Traffic volume Sunday, July 5, at the U.S. 41 bridge over Lake Butte des Morts is expected to reach 1,600 to 2,000 vehicles per hour during the peak period in late afternoon, according to Lt. Donald Kennelly, commander of Wisconsin State Patrol District 3 headquarters at Fond du Lac.

A total of six to seven State Patrol men and four members of the Winnebago County Sheriff's Department will be on hand in the bridge area to assist in moving the expected heavy traffic Sunday, according to officials of both agencies

The State Patrol plans on using their newly formed airplane patrol system in the area during the weekend, Lt. Kennelly said. There are two marked areas in Winnebago County, two in Fond du Lac County, and in the near future, one area will be used in Outagamie County for the aerial clocking of vehicles on U.S. 41.

In addition to the aerial checking of vehicles, Lt. Kennelly said radar and unmarked cars will be used extensively during the weekend period, as part of a statewise strict law enforcement program by the State Patrol during the Fourth of July weekend.

The bottleneck is mainly caused at the bridge by the narrowing of the southbound lane of U.S 41 as it approaches the north end of the two-way bridge. Traffic. which had been traveling on two lanes in one direction. must merge into one lane of traffic at the bridge.

Two other factors cause jamups at the bridge — the opening of the bridge for water traffic and the merging of traffic from State 110 onto U.S 41 just north of the bridge in the southbound lane

Earlier this summer, the State Highway Commission, in cooperation with the State Patrol, the Winnebago County Sheriff's department and Oshkosh city police, built detour signs which could be used to reroute State 110 traffic which would normally enter U S 41 at the bridge into Oshkosh and back to U S 41 on State 21, just south of the bridge

This closing of State 110 traffic at the discretion of the State Patrol has done much to ease the jamming at the bridge, both State Patrol and sheriff's department officials said

In addition to the detour routeing of State 110 traffic, the State Highway Commission recently has installed a new system of

Preparation Of Oshkosh Budget Set

OSHKOSH — A tentative calendar for preparation of the 1965 Oshkosh city budget has been set by City Mgr. Ray Harbaugh. with work on the budget starting now and culminating with adoption of the budget by the Common Council Nov. 18.

Harbaugh has set Aug. 7 as the deadline for department heads to file departmental budgets with Director of Finance Orville Gartman. Oct. 20 is the suggested deadline for school school budgets.

From Aug. 7-26. Harbaugh will go over the departmental budgets with Gartman and department heads and will present his general city budget to the council Aug 26.

For the next six weeks, the council will meet as a committee of the whole with Harbaugh to review the proposed general budget The budget will then be published Oct 31 with the public hearing set for Nov. 11.

During the week of Oct. 21-28, the council will meet with the various town chairmen and school board to review the school budgets The public hearing on the school portion of the overall budget also is Nov. 11.

Councilmen will use the week after the public hearing to review suggested changes in the budget made at the public hearing before adoption of the budget Nov. 18.

The 1964 budget adopted by the council totaled $10,963,214 for all purposes.

Reports Indicate Bethel Home Drive Has Reached Goal

OSHKOSH — Tuesday night will mark the wind-up of the $400,000 fund drive for the Bethel Home for the Aged, with reports already indicating that the goal may be met.

The more than 700 fund drive workers will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Peace Lutheran Church to bring in their final reports and pledge cards.

Final meeting of the special gifts section will be at 7:30 a.m. Monday at the Raulf Hotel.

One of the latest pledges received is $10,000 over a three-year period from the Bethel Home Auxiliary, a newly-formed group of more than 900 women who are stressing the financial help they can give now to the drive and then later the physical help where they can be of service to the Bethel Home.

Their $10,000 donation will be for the dining room. according to Mrs. Ruth Vanderhoof, president. Membership of the auxiliary comes from all faiths and several chapters are now being formed in various churches or groups of churches.

Although started originally by churches of the American Lutheran Church, the drive has received support in donations and workers from members of all faiths in the city. The home for maximum care elderly patients will be persons of all faiths.

"The citizens of Oshkosh saw the need for such a home and are doing something about it," commented Richard C. Mueller, general chairman of the fund drive. "It is reasonable to assume that there definitely will be a Bethel Home with a minimum of 100 rooms as planned.

Public Response

"It will depend upon the public response as to how much more can be provided," Mueller said. He expressed gratitude with the way the campaign has been proceeding and the way the campaign canvassers have been zealously working their cards and making their calls.

Everything points toward a victory report meeting Tuesday night, he declared.

The drive for $400,000 toward the estimated $1 million cost for the Bethel Home began late in May, with the pattern gifts and special gifts sections first to seek donations The general gifts section, which comprises the majority of the donors to the home. began its campaign less than three weeks ago.

The campaign planning has been directed by E. G. Pritchard. director, and Miss Marie Turner, office manager, of American City Bureau-Beaver Associates. This fund drive advisory firm also has conducted the two successful United Fund campaigns in Oshkosh these last two years and the Theda Clark Memorial Hospital fund drive several years ago.

2 Oshkosh Churches Plan Congregational Picnics for Sunday

Because of Shortage

Oshkosh Lutheran Churches Forced to Share Ministers

BY ALLAN EKVALL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — A shortage of pastors in the Wisconsin Lutheran Synod has led to two of its churches here, Faith Evangelical Lutheran and Immanual Evangelical Lutheran, sharing the former's pastor, the Rev. Glenn H. Unke.

In addition to his duties as Faith Lutheran's pastor, Pastor Unke had been vacancy pastor for Immanuel Lutheran since the death on Feb. 1, 1963, of the Rev. T. J. Mittelstaedt, who had been pastor of that church for 20 years. On May 31 of this year he was installed as its regular pastor.

Both congregations are separate parishes and have their own church councils. But they also have a joint council of four from each parish which considers matters jointly affecting the two churches.

For example, the joint council agreed to have the worship service for the present period at 8 a.m. Sundays at Faith Lutheran and 9:30 a.m. Sundays at Immanuel Lutheran for six weeks and then the early service at Immanuel and the later service at Faith Lutheran for a similar period.

The two churches work well together in a spirit of harmony, Pastor Unke stressed.

Serving on this joint council are Robert Berndt, William Brooks, Louis Baehman and LeRoy Huebner from Faith Lutheran and Raymond Loerke, Carl Dobish, Earl Waite and Henry Hanneman from Immanuel Lutheran.

Faith Lutheran was begun as a mission church for the south side area near the airport and held its first service Feb. 11, 1951. A two-story frame dwelling at 1728 Ohio St. had been purchased and services conducted by the Rev. Willmar Wichmann of Neenah from then until the calling of its first resident pastor in July of 1952.

First known as the South Side Lutheran Mission, the congregation adopted the name of Faith Evangelical Lutheran Church on April 15, 1951. Its congregation then was 20 persons, of which 10 were communicant members and five were voters.

The Rev. Howard W. Kaiser came directly from seminary on July 6, 1952, to be the first resident pastor. He left in 1958 to begin a mission church in Florida and was succeeded by Pastor Unke who began his pastorate here Nov. 2, 1958.

The new church structure replaced the former house in December of 1955. A new spacious 5-bedroom plus study colonial style 1½-story parsonage was dedicated, Oct. 30, 1960. The congregation owns a large tract of land in the 1700 block on Ohio Street. Its membership now totals 155 communicant members and 60 children in its Sunday school.

Pastor Unke was born and raised in Milwaukee where he attended Concordia High School and its college for his first two years of college. He completed his college at Northwestern College at Watertown and received his seminary training at Lutheran Theological Seminary at Mequon from which he graduated in 1955. He vicared for one year at Winona, Minn., prior to his senior year in seminary. His first parish was Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church at Wabeno where he served from 1955 to 1958.

Rev. Glenn H. Unke

He is married to the former Miriam Pieper, whose father, the Rev. Paul Pieper, baptized, confirmed and married him. Pastor Pieper is in his 52nd year as an active minister, of which 42 years have been at St. Peter Lutheran Church of Milwaukee.

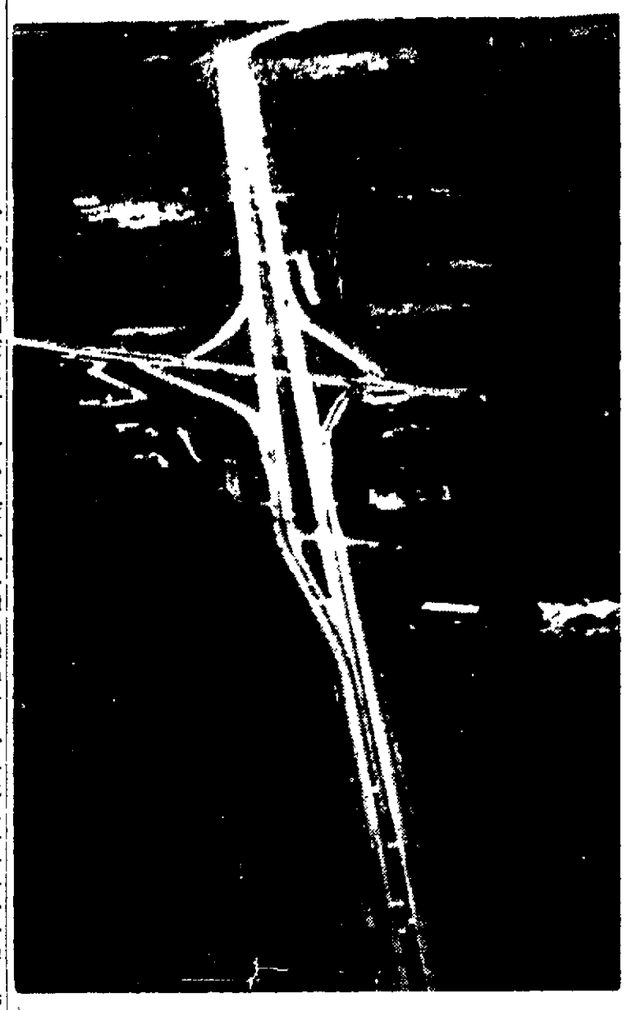

Their four children are Timothy, 7, James, 5, Cynthia, 3, and Julie, seven months.

Pastor Unke is secretary of the Winnebago Pastoral Conference which includes 39 Wisconsin Lutheran Synod congregations. He also is on the board for the Winnebago Lutheran Academy at Fond du Lac. An uncle of his, Ralph Unke, is on the faculty of Fox Valley Lutheran High School at Appleton.

Serving on the council for Faith Lutheran Church are Robert Berndt as president, Robert Dettlaff as vice president, James Mathe as secretary, Rueben Zwicky as treasurer, William Brooks as financial secretary, and Rolland Felix, chairman, Earl Paulsen, James Atwood and Delhardt Kollmann as trustees.

Organist for the church is Mrs. Norma Lansing and the custodian is Fred Schmidt.

(The story of Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church will be presented in the July 5 Sunday Post-Crescent.)

present "college" name of the school will be used until exhausted. All new forms ordered will have the university designation.

New signs put up early this year in front of each building have as an insignia in each corner the capital letters "WSC" inside a large "O." Enough matching paint is on hand to paint out the "C" for college and replace it with a "U" for university.

Planned for the corner of Algoma Boulevard and Elmwood Street, where a new 246 bed dormitory is to be built, will be an artistic sign. This will stress that OSC is now a university.

Information almanacs, dictionaries and school directories will still include the Oshkosh institution under its college name since many of these already are printed. Publishers will be notified of the name change for succeeding issues.

It will take about a year to complete the name change, Garner Horton, coordinator of public information for the school, estimated.

Keepsake Items

The book store manager in Reeve Union did not anticipate any problem in disposing of many of the varied items which carry "college" as the school's designation. Many alumni members who attended when it was a college may seek such items as keepsakes since they no longer will be available.

Other items will be just as practical and usable with "college" written on them rather than "university." This includes notebooks, sweat shirts, jackets, T-shirts and similar clothing and paper items.

That new school seal will not be immediately available since university officials plan to give considerable thought to the insignia for the new seal.

Athletic jackets just mention "Oshkosh" and do not indicate the type of school, so no problem is encountered there. Jewelers have called already for information as to what to put on rings and pins or other jewelry the university students might want.

Legal Changes,

Legal changes will be needed for both the Alumni Association and the Oshkosh State College Foundation to comply with the new designation of "university." They are legally incorporated.

As for the regents who voted the name change a month ago, they must continue to operate as the Board of Regents of State Colleges and as such administer the new state universities.

The regents must go to the Legislature to have their board name changed.

traffic signs on both approaches to the bridge, which serve to merge the U.S. 41 traffic down to one lane before it gets to the bridge itself.

These signs, which consist of overhead suspended types and standard roadside types, are located starting about one mile from the bridge, with the sign reading "Lane Closed, 1 Mi." A half-mile from the bridge, an overhead sign reads "Single Lane Begins. One-half Mi." Then comes another overhead set advising drivers to form a single lane. Immediately before the bridge two overheads inform drivers that the inside lane is closed. On the bridge, signs advise drivers to "Maintain 45 mph When Traffic Permits."

"There is no question but that the new signs will help the smooth flow of traffic at the bridge during the weekend," Lt. Kennelly said.

Heavy Traffic

Traffic is expected to be heavy at the bridge northbound Thursday and Friday evenings, Lt. Kennelly predicted. This will be caused by numbers of residents of southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois driving north for the July Fourth weekend.

But the main problem is expected to develop late Sunday afternoon or early Sunday evening, as great numbers of motorists head south.

The standing plan of the State Patrol for the jams at the bridge is ready for action. Traffic officials are hoping drivers will have the patience necessary to make the bridge area accident free.

Ald. Ayers Wants Council Members to Tour City Departments

Alderman John P. Ayers (12) has suggested city council members make a tour of all departments so they could gain knowledge of the working structure of the city.

He suggested the council tour the city garage, water department, sewage disposal plant, Golden Age home, police station and fire department.

The tour could be given in one day, and the heads of each department could give a report on each operation, Ayers said.

the city government is receiving sufficient reactions from these same people to programs being planned by the city on the basis of these studies and other studies which have been conducted in the past for various city departments.

"I can't help but feel," McManus continued, "that the organization of the community for commercial and industrial development is an unresolved matter."

McManus indicated he felt a need for close cooperation and interchange of knowledge and ideas about contemplated public and private investments.

Prompts Suggestion

This need prompted him to suggest forming such a study committee which would be primarily a clearing house for ideas on commercial and industrial development in the community, rather than a promotional agency. It would aid promotional efforts by others, McManus indicated.

Some of the need for such an agency came to head during the last year when it appeared that Kiekhaefer Corp., which is located just outside the city, might relocate if the city was to continue annexation of the area in which its plants were located.

The annexation of that area was thrown out by the Supreme Court and an agreement has been reached by the City Council and the company regarding future programs.

Kiekhaefer officials indicated after that agreement an extensive expansion program would take place at its site outside the city.

International Paper Co. also has requested that its plant site outside the city not be included in any future annexations the city officials might have in mind.

Eucharist Festival Set for Diocese Of Fond du Lac

FOND DU LAC — Clergymen and laymen of the Fond du Lac Diocese of the Episcopal Church will take part in the fifth annual Eucharistic Festival set for 4 p.m. today. About 500 are expected to participate.

The Rt. Rev. William H. Brady, bishop of the Fond du Lac diocese, will open the festival with the sermon, after which will be the procession of the Blessed Sacrament and the solemn benediction.

Bishop Brady will be assisted by the Rev. Claude A. Thompson, an assistant at All Saints Church, Appleton, as deacon; the Rev. Harry Vetter of Holy Apostles Church, Oneida, as sub-deacon, and John E. Steiedamann Jr., Fond du Lac, as master of ceremonies.

Also participating will be the Rev. John O. Bruce, vicar of St. John Episcopal Church, Shawano, who will sing the Litany of the Blessed Sacrament.

Those attending will be guests of Bishop Brady at a picnic supper in the cathedral close.

Founding Date Uncertain

Oshkosh Brewing Firm Has Centennial

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — If King Gambrinus and the Menominee sachem named Oshkosh were to meet in this year of 1964, they would either celebrate or quarrel about the Oshkosh Brewing Company which this year announces its centennial.

Gambrinus is a mythical Flemish king who is credited with the first brewing of beer. Oshkosh, who became chief of his tribe in 1827, was a notable quaffer of things liquid.

And Gambrinus, who is always pictured with a foaming glass in his hand, is credited with being the first brewer of beer, and a devotee of his discovery.

If the meeting would be one to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the progressive brewing company, there would be joy of course, for a celebration is invariably a cause for two-fisted drinking.

Birth-Date Uncertain

If the meeting were scholarly, however, there would be trouble. And the trouble would rise from the birth-date of the Oshkosh Brewing Company which was founded either in 1864 or 1866.

It was in one or the other of those two years that a Bavarian mason, August Horn, joined with a German-born brewer, Lenhardt Schwalm, and founded a little company which they called the Brooklyn Brewing Co., named for the part of Oshkosh where it was located

The first building to house their efforts, a two story frame structure, was a brewery on the bottom and a family-type boarding house at the top. Both the Schwalms and the Horns lived upstairs and took turns boarding their help.

An economy measure it was, for the workers were paid in cash, in room and in "found," and the arrangement helped the young brewers to grow and to develop.

It did, too, despite a damaging fire in 1879 which burned the burgeoning brewery to the ground. Undaunted, the partners erected another building on the same site—the same, indeed, which the present brewing company occupies in part It is the bottling plant and general offices.

Merger Occurs

By 1894, however, when the Brooklyn Brewing Company was 28 (or 30) years old the competition was such that a merger seemed the proper course to take. Thus, in that year, whichever it was, the Union Brewing Co. and—wonder of wonders!—the Gambrinus Brewing Co merged with the Brooklyn organization. The Union had been operated by John Glatz and his son; the Gambrinus company was owned by one L Kuenzl.

The tripled brewing company changed its name to the one it bears today, the Oshkosh Brewing Co., and it said farewell to the others, even Brooklyn.

Some time in the brewing company's history, the Menominee sachem who had given his name to the city of Oshkosh had been photographed in an outlandish costume, complete with a plug hat The picture was so quaint that the company adopted it as a trademark and called its product Chief Oshkosh beer.

Stylized Trademark

Recently, however, the old sachem has been replaced by a stylized arrowhead considered to be more suitable to modern advertising techniques.

By 1911, the company had grown to such proportions that it required more space, A new building was erected, tall and imposing and towered, with jutting angles and castle-like parapets "It looks the way a brewery ought to look," said David Uihlein. president since 1961 And it does.

It functions as a brewery should, also. Since his arrival here after purchase of the controlling interest in the brewing company, Uihlein has brought an almost unbelievable amount of energy to the plant.

A powerful expansion and rebuilding campaign was launched to the tune of some $100,000 to improve the facilities, to meet modern brewing methods and to fare well, as it has, with rugged competition.

Uihlein, a hard-working, forever-stimulated, former Milwaukeean is dark-haired, blue-eyed and dedicated to the development of the 98 (or 100) year-old company which he has pushed into a 7 per cent sales increase in a three year period.

Devoted to Principle

He is devoted to the principle that he must work hard on a state-wide basis, and that "selling beer takes lots of shoe leather." The philosphy was his grandfather's, he said,.

Uihlein, who holds a master brewer's license, is a cousin to Robert E Uihlein, president of the far-flung Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co He is not otherwise associated with the Milwaukee firm.

Vigorous promotional activities, and intensive community enterprise and spirit has marked the immediate past growth of the Oshkosh company which now produces some 55,000 bar- of beer annually.

Gifted with a sense of the common touch, Uihlein is generally called "Dave" and is friendly and informal

Proud of Brewery

"If anybody wants to come in and look at our brewery, we take them around. We don't have regular visiting hours. We're proud and we like to show it and we think that people who come in to see it will feel proud of it, too."

An avid hunter-fisherman, Uihlein seldom finds time for such fun, but his firm is extremely active in promoting skill-competitions in fishing and hunting.

There's a big buck contest sponsored in the autumn, a sturgeon spearing contest in the summer, a walleye contest in the spring and fall

"Some day," Uihlein said "I'm going to take some time off and try to win one of those contests. If my deer's antlers are big enough to take a prize, or any of my fish can win, you can bet your life that I'm going to claim the prize. Then won't there be hell to pay?" he asked, grinning at the thought.

The brewing company has reconstructed an old river boat, "The Paul L." which once shuttled up and down the Fox and Wolf Rivers delivering the Chief Oshkosh beer to purveyors of the beverage. The replica of the old stern-wheeler is a fantastic-winner" for the brewing company, for it is often put to use to aid community endeavors. such as the recent Venetian Night promoted by Fremont

Gambrinus would have approved of the effort put forth by the Oshkosh brewer.

Patron Saint

Gambrinus, though a mythical being who acts as a sort of patron "saint" to the brewing industry, actually is a facsimile of a real man—Jan Primus (Jan I) a duke of Brabant who lived between 1261 and 1294. It is he who is credited with being the first brewer of beer and thus holds his place of honor among all brewers.

Whether he would or not quarrel with a fellow toper, Oshkosh, is not known of course: for two years are not much in a century The years 1864 and 1866 are long gone.

It would seem more logical for Gambrinus and Oshkosh to applaud the coming of a cause for celebration, and if the founding year is really 1866, the pair should get a two-year head start.

And if the year for celebration is this one, they would relish the occasion of the centennial which is ample reason for serious quaffing.

At any rate, the celebration is "on " In a huge tent adjacent to the Oshkosh Brewing Co , all of the world has been invited to "free lunch and free beer".

"Thousands of people" have come for the treat, said Miss Bernice Howlett, assistant secretary.

Among the thousands would be of course, Gambrinus and Oshkosh. In spirits, that is.

Three Different Breweries merged in 1894 to become the Oshkosh Brewing Co., which last week observed its 100th anniversary. Antecedents of the present brewery date back to 1864 wehn the oldest of these three separate breweries was founded. The present brewery plant was built in 1913 while the bottling house and office dates back even farther.

A Close Look Into the huge copper brew kettle was taken by some of the visitors at the open house last week of the Oshkosh Brewing Co to mark its centennial anniversary. Operations had been suspended during the tours. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Boys and Girls To Compete in Play Program

It's boys against girls on Appleton playgrounds Monday as the recreation department summer program goes into its third week of activities.

In a "battle of the sexes" in the afternoon, boys will compete against girls in team games. A rock and roll party is scheduled from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Erb Park.

A new event on the playgrounds is scheduled for Tuesday: a stuffed animal contest and display in which ribbons will be awarded in 12 classifications.

Wednesday's featured event is a boys and girls hair contest.

The trip to Milwaukee is scheduled for Thursday. Youngsters who are going on the all-day affair will leave from various playgrounds at 7:45 a.m.

Playgrounds are closed Friday.

Newcomers Spoil Hopes for Economical State Primary

Both Reynolds and Knowles Face Possible Fights for Nomination

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The best laid plans of both Wisconsin political parties for a quiet, painless and economical primary election are going awry.

There is now a strong prospect for challengers in the September primary elections of Gov. John W. Reynolds, the incumbent chief executive of the state, and Warren P. Knowles of New Richmond, the endorsed candidate of the Republican organization to head the GOP state ticket who had assumed also that he would have an uncontested nomination.

Dominic Frinzi, a Milwaukee lawyer who apparently has some financial backing, has already filed his nomination petitions, the first major elective office aspirant this year to do so, in an apparent move to resolve all doubt about his intentions.

Republicans during the week, moreover, thoughtfully pondered the declaration of Milo Knutson, long-time mayor of LaCrosse, that he will seek the Republican nomination in the primary against Knowles—if Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, his own favorite candidate for the presidential nomination of the party—wins that nomination at the San Francisco national convention next month. ....

Since Goldwater is recognized by friend and foe as holding a powerful lead in delegates committed and friendly, Knutson's candiacy in the gubernatorial nomination appeared to be a strong probability.

Unknowns

Frinzi and Knutson are comparatively unknown in party politics. Knutson has had very little connection with organized party work, although he has become widely known in a controversial way as the fiscally conservative head of the LaCrosse city government.

Frinzi is widely known in the big voting center of Milwaukee, but he has had little active part in Democratic affairs. Both men evidently minimize the enormous task of making their personalities and their causes familiar to the voters on a state-wide basis in the comparatively short time remaining before the primary election ballots are recorded.

But while politicians in both parties have little doubt that Knowles and Reynolds will be nominated in spite of such challenges, they regret the competition, nevertheless.

Expensive

The diversion of a primary contest is expensive for parties and candidates in several respects, not the least of which is financial. If the nomination threat becomes serious, it means outlays for publicity and other campaign fodder that otherwise would be reserved for the "main show", the fight against the nominee of the opposite party, in the campaign leading up to the final election in November.

There is always a risk also that a substantial vote for the challenger in a primary will be interpreted as a protest vote against the incumbent or as in the case of Knowles, the organization favorite, and thus tend to show weakness in his posture as the leader of the party ticket. That risk is especially acute when there is a contest in one column and not in the other.

Thus the Democrats and Gov. Reynolds probably welcomed the announcement of Knutson that he wants to compete with Knowles in the Republican Primary. Without such a Republican contest, there will be a temptation for many Republicans to vote in the Democratic primary and a tendency for them to vote for Frinzi as a means of embarassing or weakening Reynolds. With a contest on both sides of the primary ballot, voters will have an incentive to vote in the column of their real party choice.

Of the two primary contests emerging, the Reynolds-Frinzi competition is the more unusual.

Challenge

Normally an incumbent governor is given renomination without a contest. His predecessor, Gaylord Nelson, was nominated twice for governor and then for U. S. Senator without a candidate filed against him in the primary. Most recent Republican incumbent governors won renomination without question also. The last instance of a primary challenger of an incumbent governor involved the late Gov. Walter S. Goodland in 1946, and his advanced age and deteriorating physical condition probably provided an opportunity that is not relevant to Gov. Reynolds' situation today.

The Frinzi challenge of Reynolds will be carefully watched by the Democratic organization—although it will be ignored in a studied way with regard to public comment—because there are centers of powerful resentment against the governor in populous Milwaukee County.

Some of the important ethnic neighborhoods in Milwaukee are visible resentful about the Reynolds' advocacy of open housing legislation—which they interpret as a threat of Negro migration into their residential neighborhoods. There is also a coolness in official Milwaukee toward the governor for his origination three years ago of the John Doe investigation of the Milaukee police department which continues today.

Conservative

Meanwhile, Knutson's self-described status as a fiscal conservative and admirer of Sen. Goldwater by implication suggests his belief that Knowles is a liberal although in state politics for the last 20 years including long service as a member of the legislature and as lieutenant governor Knowles has built a solid record as an advocate of Republican orthodoxy.

There is some speculation that the threatened Knutson candidacy is a device to force Knowles, as a leading man in the state party organization and as a delegate to the San Francisco convention, to show his hand in the choice of a nominee for the presidency.

Like all of the Wisconsin delegates elected in the April presidential primary, Knowles is pledged to the favorite son candidacy of Rep. John W. Byrnes of Green Bay and Byrnes has declared firmly that he won't call a caucus of the delegation until San Francisco, just before the convention, to consider its convention strategy.

If the delegation gives a complimentary first ballot vote to Byrnes, it may mean that Goldwater will win the nomination without the assistance of any Wisconsin delegates. That possibility has already aroused some protests among the more fervent Wisconsin backers of Goldwater.

1,947 Students Receive State Education Loans

MADISON (AP)— A record 1,947 students at Wisconsin state colleges received state loans to help finance their education last year, the State College office reported today.

For the 11 months ending May 30, loans totaling $966,065 were granted to students at the nine state colleges. For the previous year, 1,659 loans totaling $737,292 were granted.

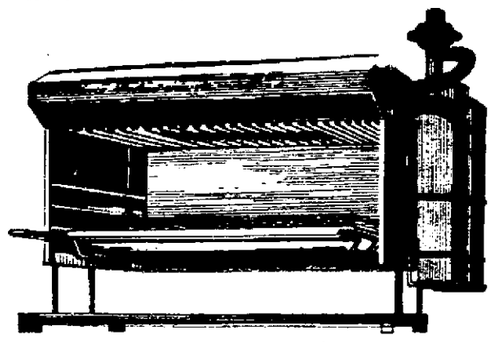

A new law increasing from $5 million to $10 million the amount of loan funds available will provide important assistance to students enrolling at state institutions of higher education, said Eugene McPhee, director of state colleges.

A student may apply for up to $750 per school year and $250 per summer session to a maximum of $5,000. The first loan is due one year after the student leaves school and the other loans fall due in successive years. Students are charged 1 per cent interest on the loans while in school and 5 per cent after leaving school.

Mr. Reynolds and Taxation

John W. Reynolds in many respects is an unusual personality among the men who have held the high office of governor in Wisconsin over the years. His political style is a curious amalgam of aggressiveness and humility, a sometimes surprising realism and idealistic advocacy of what are obviously lost causes, and a skillful adaptation of propaganda opportunities that sometimes appear to run counter to his other instincts.

Friend and foe must share some admiration for his obdurate insistence upon old-fashioned ideals of democracy and fair play, as in his literal adherence to civil rights goals including the patently difficult goal of open occupancy housing legislation.

But at the same time he is capable of making campaign publicity of the kind that would be labeled demagogic if it sprang from a man more accustomed to raising his voice or possessing more arrogance of manner.

An example, we think, is his insistently deceptive position on state tax policy. We have only limited objection to some of his exploits in that direction in the past. He ran for attorney general, for example, on the totally foreign issue of sales taxation and won. He won, quite manifestly, because the issue of tax revision was indifferently understood six years ago, and because there was an apparently substantial bloc of voters who agreed with him that the sales tax should be avoided if possible.

But it could not be avoided. Nor was it avoided. Limited sales taxation was started under the governor's predecessor, Mr. Nelson. The sales tax was extended under Mr. Reynolds. There was no other way, saving the raising of already high income tax rates that would have given Wisconsin front page notoriety in all the economic and business reports of the country, to accommodate the crushing increase in costs of state and local government.

Now the governor is accusing his political foes of plotting more sales taxation, down through food and clothing and the basic necessities of life. He knows that is not true. But he knows also that the record is complex and that the individual citizen is unlikely to possess the resources for nailing down the details of what happened in the tangled legislative proceedings of the last year. He knows also that no Republican, anywhere in Wisconsin, has said that he stands for such a program and that no candidate of the opposing party will do so. He knows that the state now has a general sales tax in all except name, since about two-thirds of the revenue of a comprehensive tax on sales and services exempting those which everybody wants exempt, is being yielded by his present state tax budget.

An objective analysis of prospective state spending demands for the rest of this decade said the other day that the income tax increase equivalent of those requirements would be 75 per cent. Is that what the governor wants?

The time is past for quibbling about sources of taxation. The time has come to extract tax revenues from all sources—in an equitable balance. The governor knows these things. But he is wedded to an obsolete stance.

Liberals boast about a willingness to move with the times. But Mr. Reynolds, the titular leader of the organized liberalism of Wisconsin, adamantly refuses to do so on the most important issue in state politics.

Why Not Outlaw Clothes?

There has been a great deal of publicity and not-so-sly humor about the new topless bathing suits for women, something that was predicted with both enthusiasm and dismay a few years ago as the bikini shrunk to less and less. But entirely aside from the salacious comments, the matter once more presents the moral and social problem of what is lewd, what are "contemporary community standards" and why in the United States today do we have this emphasis upon the female form clothed or unclothed.

Of course styles of clothing change with the years and with the cultures. In other times and places the exposure of a woman's breasts was commonplace but there was seen great evil in the sight of a bare ankle. There is not much difference in view between the topless suit and the plunging necklines popular for the cocktail hour. But perhaps the most revealing statement of all concerning the new suits was made by a burlesque dancer who opposes the suits but not because of a moral stand. "Who will pay to watch a stripper now?" she complains.

Police officials are also upset because they obviously do not want to get involved on one side of a court case about what constitutes lewdness since it has already been determined several times that nudity itself is not necessarily an offense. What is really the trouble here is the attitude of the American public as it has been exploited and perhaps even controlled by the so-called molders of public opinion.

Is the obvious trend toward nudity in the country a sign of moral decay or is it merely a refutation of the Victorian misconception that the human body is evil? And what is more likely to arouse what the Supreme Court calls a "prurient interest" and something to be avoided—the bumps and grinds of a dancer clothed according to the regulations of law or a bather without a stitch of clothing?

The trouble is in great part that which sociologists have described as the paradox of our sex-crazed and sex-starved culture. And here a great many of us, who may be righteously indignant about the new bathing suits, have had a part.

We parade young women in a variety of "beauty" contests in suits carefully modeled according to regulation and often with some vague "talent" requirements but we still follow the formula of the sex symbol. We list with lip-licking descriptions the vital statistics of 36-24-35 of movie stars as if they were on the market place like so many dairy cattle. We extol the wonders of so-and-so's bosom or so-and-so's bottom as if either has much to do with dramatic ability. Mothers worry because teen-age daughters aren't "popular" or don't have dates every weekend. High heels, lipstick and nylons are presented to little girls too young for junior high. And since sexual maturity arrives long before intellectual maturity, why wonder that the number of illegitimate children born to teen-age mothers and fathers increases and that the divorce rate zooms? Sex is presented as the end-all of existence and when it doesn't bring automatic happiness, not to mention peace of mind, it is no surprise at all that there are serious emotional disturbances.

Fashion experts of course have deplored the idea of no bathing suits at all since that would cut into their business even more than that of the live shows at nightclubs. But perhaps the only way for us to get things back into perspective is for us all to take off our clothes for a couple of months during the warm summer. We might find out once more that the human body is indeed a beautiful creation and that sex is but one of the remarkable gifts of life.

Summer Schools Grow

One of the most encouraging trends in the educational picture has been the gradual but generally steady growth of summer school programs in the elementary and secondary schools of this area. It is part of a nation-wide trend and it has come about for a number of reasons.

The traditional school year developed at a time when the United States was primarily agricultural, and school was recessed for part of the spring, summer and early fall months to enable youngsters to help with planting and harvesting and general farm chores. This has obviously been long outmoded, even for many farm students.

But opposition to summer schools, particularly among educators, centered around the tradition of the long summer vacation, that teachers could not be induced to work or students to attend, that programs would interfere with family vacations and that schools anyway had to be repaired during the summer. But as interest and obvious need developed, the obstacles have been generally overcome. The size of enrollments in the variety of summer programs in the Fox River Valley give ample proof that children will attend or at least that their parents will see to it that they do. Some teachers will agree to teach summer courses and somehow or other the buildings are maintained.

There have been a lot of changes in the summer programs. Such programs as remedial reading and arithmetic have been expanded but many courses of the enrichment variety have been added. Programs in music, art and the drama which students often don't have time to take during the regular school year are increasingly popular. There is the opportunity here for experimental programs with nothing much lost if they turn out to be ineffective. Biology projects out-of-doors, impossible in the winter months, have developed. Creative writing, humanities, personal typing, local and regional history, mechanical drawing, home economics have all been added in different schools.

The programs do not catch on immediately in some areas. Both public and parochial students and their families in DePere showed a complete lack of interest in a proposed expanded program this year. But such communities as Kimberly have demonstrated how much can be done in both scholastic and recreational areas when parents, school boards and administrators are aware of the needs and are concerned about the opportunities open to the young people during the summer months.

Family vacations are spreading out more generally over the entire year as traveling further becomes possible for more people. The pressure to get into college and the competition has meant taking advantage of scholastic opportunities even if it interferes with water skiing or loafing. And as summer chores at home become less important, youngsters in today's modern world are bored. Moreover jobs for the teen-agers are increasingly hard to get as the war baby crop has grown into adolescence. This is a nation-wide trend—something that Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz calls "the harshest employment problem since the depression of the 1930's." Wisconsin State Employment Service offices report that there are many more high school and college students seeking summer employment than there are jobs available.

Of course summer school programs cost more and present problems. But in overall efficiency, public service and common sense, they are a wise development in education whether or not the year-round school ever becomes a reality.

Jacqueline Kennedy Will Have Leading Role at Convention

BY ROBERT S. ALLEN AND PAUL SCOTT

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy is putting aside her year-long period of mourning to play a dramatic and potentially far-reaching political role at the Democratic national convention in Atlantic City the last week in August. The former First Lady will participate in an all-day memorial program, on Tuesday, second day of the convention, for her assassinated husband.

This significant backstage development is a direct outgrowth of the serious injuries sustained by her brother-in-law, Senator Edward Kennedy, Mass., in a plane crash. The 32-year-old lawmaker had been under consideration as convention keynoter. Most likely choice now is between Senator Eugene McCarthy, Minn., and Senator Gale McGee, Wyo., both militant liberals and staunch administration supporters.

The decision for Mrs. Kennedy to take a leading part in the memorial program was made after President Johnson gave the word he favored holding these ceremonies on Tuesday rather than Friday, the closing day of the convention.

The latter was urged by top political lieutenants of the President on the ground the memorial services on Tuesday could be used by supporters of Attorney General Robert Kennedy to sway delegates to press for his nomination as vice president. It was pointed out that an estimated 50 per cent of this year's delegates were supporters of the late President at the 1960 convention.

This possibility was carefully weighed by the President, but was discarded because another factor was deemed more important — his conviction that the convention should not wind up on a funereal note.

As one White House insider expressed it, "Having the memorial program on Tuesday is a gamble. We're fully aware that involves very definite risks. But the President feels we'll have to chance them because we certainly do not want to wind up on a mournful note."

OPEN CONVENTION—The White House is keeping a close eye on undercover country-wide efforts to maneuver a so-called "open convention" on the running mate issue.

Authoritative reports from a number of states leave little doubt that influential delegates are being sounded out on such a move — for the unmistakable purpose of building up a powerful boom for the selection of Attorney General Kennedy.

It is also known that efforts are underway to persuade nationally - known Democratic leaders to declare publicly for an "open convention."

Until Senator Kennedy's near-fatal plane crash, the inner strategy called for three limelight figures of the family to participate prominently in the convention — the senator, the former First Lady, and Sargent Shriver, head of the Peace Corps and the proposed anti-poverty program.

The attorney general, the senator and Shriver have been designated delegates to the convention, and will have the valuable "privilege of the floor."

Shriver also is seeking a place on the Platform Committee. That has been put up to Illinois party leaders who are in a position to give him this prize. Potent influence is being brought to bear on them to name him as one of the state's two representatives on the committee — where Shriver could play a headline role.

Another significant facet of this situation is a developing drive to bar the seating of regular party delegations from Mississippi, Alabama and possibly Louisiana.

A revealing tip-off on this was the action of the Wisconsin State Democratic convention in overwhelmingly instructing its delegation to support the seating of a "Free Party" delegation from Mississippi — which doesn't even exist as yet. Apparently it is anticipated such a group will appear and challenge the regular party delegation.

Wisconsin Governor John Reynolds, an ardent Kennedy supporter, masterminded this strategy. He contended the regular party delegation was illegally elected because Negroes were excluded from voting.

Similar moves reputedly are contemplated in other northern and western states, with the backing of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE).

A stormy fight against the seating of the Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana delegations could precipitate a bitter explosion at the convention — which might play into the hands of the attorney general's partisans bent on naming him the President's running mate.

POLITICALS — Premier Khrushchev is "contributing" to the Kennedy Memorial Library. The Kremlin ruler has agreed to make a tape recording of his still-secret exchanges with the late President, as well as impressions of him. Still to be determined is whether a Kennedy emissary will go to Moscow to interview Khrushchev, or he will do his own recording. . . . Defense Secretary McNamara is dipping into the turbulent political waters. He has agreed to allow his Washington home to be used for a $50-a-ticket fund-raising party for Representative Neil Staebler, Democratic candidate for governor of Michigan. Although Staebler is rated as a millionaire, his backers seem to feel a fund-raising party is called for. Chief sponsors of the affair are Assistant Secretary of State G. Mennen Williams, former Michigan governor, Assistant Postmaster General Frederick Belen and Assistant HEW Secretary Wilbur Cohen.

Another well-to-do Democrat is also to be the beneficiary of a fund-raising party — Senator Harrison Williams, N.J. This event will have some unusual angles. It will consist of a reception and volley-ball party, with the charge $10 for women, $15 for men, or $25 for a couple. . . . Fast political footwork by Texas Governor John Connally blocked a move by backers of the attorney general to persuade Democratic governors at the recent Cleveland conference to go on record for an "open convention" on selection of vice president. Wisconsin Governor John Reynolds proposed that at a meeting of the Democratic governors. Connally, tipped off in advance of the move, adroitly adjourned the caucus before Reynolds could act. Reportedly, he had three other governors lined up with him. When out-maneuvered by Connally, Reynolds countered by persuading the governors to meet in Atlantic City the day before the national convention opens on August 24.

Here's Word of Praise For Our Police Forces

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Our local paper has carried critical comments on the police forces for several years now, usually in letters to the editor. May I say a word in defense of our police?

The men who make up our city, county and state force have a difficult job to perform. Their duty hours are on shifts that cover all 24 hours of the day. They answer calls that run from checking doors for businessmen, to directing traffic downtown, to getting doctors to fatal accident scenes and back to referee a domestic battle. Their jobs are necessary to orderly living, vital to the welfare of our community and largely unrewarding and thankless. The total police force for Appleton is now 70 men to handle a population of at least 50,000 people, or one patrolman for each 700 citizens. (Some of our local paper mills have one foreman for each ten workers for efficient operation).

One group of youngsters wrote to criticize the police handling of a badly injured deer, another group wrote their disproval of the police chase of some adolescent drivers that resulted in the death of one of the youths, and now a note in Friday's paper, again critical of the police who participated in the high speed chase of the young convicts with fatal injuries for both.

To set the record straight, the police in both highway chases were following the unlawfully driven cars in performance of their hazardous duty. The fatalities in both cases were the direct consequence of the disregard for lawful driving. These young motorists would be alive today if they had obeyed the well known signals and lights of the police cars that order drivers to pull over and stop. There is also the little matter of the lives of police officers that are risked each time in these chases. Surely the lives of the police are fully as important as the careless drivers lives. Let us have a good word for the police and put the blame where it properly belongs.

P-C Family Back From Weekend in Woods; Didn't Miss an Issue

BY JOHN TORINUS

In the last two years the Post Corporation, publisher of this newspaper, has considerably expanded its operations into other media and other markets. We have purchased two television stations, one radio station and two suburban weekly newspapers in the Milwaukee area. Purchase of two other radio stations is awaiting the approval of the Federal Communications Commission and we have an additional application on file for a new radio station at Oshkosh.

Torinus

This expansion has brought a lot of new people into the organization, some of whom had not even had a chance to meet each other. So last weekend department heads from all of the various operations met at home headquarters in Appleton and then adjourned up to Door County for a weekend of relaxation and conversation. It turned out to be a huge success.

We developed a pattern for such a weekend in Door County a number of years ago when we started entertaining advertising agency people here each summer. It all starts out with one of Door County's famous fish boils Friday night, continues with a lumberjack breakfast at Murphy Moore's in Egg Harbor Saturday morning, concludes Saturday with a family style chicken dinner after a day of golf, fishing, boating, swimming, horseback riding, sightseeing and just plain loafing.

Then on Sunday morning ye editor presides at the outdoor grill for a breakfast of blueberry pancakes, pork sausage done Sheboygan style (in beer), eggs, etc. I don't know how I got talked into cooking breakfast for 35 hungry men, but it's become a tradition and I guess I'm hooked with it permanently.

Since you people have never met some of our new associates either, I thought I'd give you a rundown in the column today.

We'll start with Post-Crescent personnel, with most of whom you are probably familiar. There was Publisher Vic Minahan, Director of Sales Glenn Arthur, Business Manager Dave Nelson, Associate Editor Mary Walter, Managing Editor Gordon McIntyre, News Editor Les Biselx, Comptroller Larry DeCoster, Circulation Manager Erb Krueger, Promotion Manager Fred Schweikher, Retail Advertising Manager Mel Parsons and his right-hand man Wilmer Krueger, and Classified-National Advertising Manager George Browne. The production departments were represented by Production Manager Henry Starck, Composing Superintendent Phil Behl, Engraving Superintendent John Hurley and Press-Stereo Superintendent Gene Mueller.

Up from the Twin City News-Record were Editor Randy Haase and Business Manager Jack Williams. Ken Davis is now general manager of the Milwaukee newspaper division and he brought with him Publisher Dick Menke of the West Allis Star and Editor Bob Wiesian of the North Star. Editor Tom Hutchison of the West Allis Star had just moved his family into their new home there after four months of commuting to Green Bay so he decided that spending a weekend at home with the family was indicated.

The group that enjoyed beautiful Door County the most was the gang from Ottumwa, Iowa, where the lakes are all man-made and where 90-degree temperatures are a cool night. Bill King is general manager of KTVO-TV there, Leroy Wallace is chief engineer, and Miss Alvina Britz is the business manager.

The fugitive from Oklahoma, General Manager Leo Howard of WEAU-TV at Eau Claire, brought along Sales Manager Elk Strand, Chief Engineer Elmo Reed and Office Manager Miss Helen Gabus. And from Chippewa Falls were General Manager Paul Zahorik of Radio Station WAXX and Don Holden, station manager.

Reed and Zahorik were both associates of Dave Nelson and myself when we were in Green Bay so it was a warm homecoming.

Our general counsel, Roger Minahan of Milwaukee, showed up with a brand new 150-horsepower outboard-inboard cruiser, and was kept busy all weekend taking groups on cruises along the beautiful Green Bay shoreline. Our financial advisor, John Naber of Shawano, was also with us, and coming the longest distance was Ralph Dippell, engineering consultant from Washington, D. C. Harry Wise, president of George P. Hollingberry Co., our television representatives, had to renege at the last minute.

After spending the weekend with "the family," I came to several conclusions: I'm not in the same poker league with most of these fellows; one night of singing "Honey" until the sun comes up puts me to bed earlier the next night, they're playing some new kind of bridge rules in Washington now (I think Ralph called it the Goren system); and you can lose a whole golf match to Elk Strand on the first tee. Also this final one: it was better to tuck these boys away in the woods than to have turned them loose around here.

Cracks Begin to Show In Solid Ranks of MAFIA

Y JAMES M. LONG

PALERMO, Sicily (AP)—The birds" have started singing in icily.

Police say the informers are nally talking, at last cracking he wall of silence that has stood r centuries between the law nd the lawless on this island ronghold of the dread Mafia. If that wall can be broken own it might mean the end of e Mafia, Sicily's so-called Honored Society," after seven enturies sodden with the blood uncounted thousands slain for ower, for profit or for venge-nce.

Change

A year ago, before a massive olice crackdown began, it was asy to hear fascinating stories out the Mafia. In any village ou could find someone willing talk, but name no names. He ould pull open his jacket to ow the short gun stuffed in s pants waistband, give you cold-eyed stare, and start off: Well, I don't speak for myself, course. But I have a cousin ho—"

Today the waistband pistol is hidden. It is hard to find a Sicilian who has a cousin.

Yet few Sicilians really share police optimism that the Mafia is finally being stamped out.

The "Honored Society" thrived through the medieval days of foreign conquerors who ruled this Mediterranean island. It survived everything that Mussolini's fascism could do to wipe it out. It endured the violent opposition of postwar communism, and held its own against the assault of modern trade unions.

Underground

Sicilians think the loose-knit alliance of "families" of the lawless league has merely gone underground, quietly waiting out the present storm.

The Mafia, elder brother of the old American "Black Hand" and father of the new American "Cosa Nostra" crime syndicate, flowered naturally in the waterless, treeless, eroded mountains of western Sicily where nothing but poverty grows easily.

It started probably in the 13th century, as a secret society to defend the oppressed Sicilians against foreign overlords.

Protesting His Innocence, Genco Russo, a landowner believed to be the Sicilian Mafia boss, heads into exile under the provision of new laws designed to isolate suspected Mafia members. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Time and the taste of blood and power brought a cruel metamorphosis. The white knight defender of the poor tarnished into the oppressor of peasants.

No Tales

It imposed the rule of omerta —that no one dared carry tales to the police on pain of death. It was its own court and executioner under the ancient law of vendetta—blood vengeance.

The terror became rooted so deeply, and the penalties so sure, that witnesses in a thousand court cases sat mute. Mothers stood dry-eyed and ashen-faced beside the body of a slain son and denied that they knew who he was.

The Mafia dealt out small shares of its prosperity to its members and its friends. It controlled lands, transport, markets, prices, construction, contracts, jobs, smuggling, traffic in narcotics. Its men in politics governed cities and provinces and controlled the regional legislature.

Start Anew

It became a part of Sicily—like the eternal heat, the blighting poverty. There was only one hope: to leave, to get away, to try anew somewhere else.

That sent Sicilians streaming to the United States by hundreds of thousands at the turn of the century when America needed labor and there were no immigration quotas.

Now America has quotas but the outbound tide still carries Sicily's life blood away from the island.

Big Loss

In the past five years 300,000 Sicilians packed their scant goods in pasteboard suitcases and took that long train ride to northern Italy for factory jobs in booming Milan, Turin and Genoa. Another 100,000 emigrated to South America, Australia, Switerland, Germany and Belgium.

The past decade has cost Sicily more than 10 per cent of her population. Tens of thousands of acres are barren. Huge feudal estates are going back to wasteland for utter lack of farm labor.

Reformers came and went. Writer-reformer Danilo Dolci, a Sicilian Don Quixote, was arrested when he led a labor gang of unemployed Sicilians out to repair state roads, without pay, just to prove there was useful work for the unemployed.

Storm clouds of trouble had been gathering over the Mafia since the end of the war. Mild-mannered Don Calogero Vizzini, who police say ruled the Mafia for years as "chief of chiefs," finally died. Internal strife developed as regional Mafia chieftains vied with one another to take over the top control.

New Force

But there was a new and deadly factor in the struggle for power. Scores of deported gangsters were coming home to Sicily from their tough training schools in the underworld of the big cities of the United States.

The old-school "respected men" of the Mafia dressed in black. They were softspoken men of deceptively mild manner and Old World courtesies. They did not dirty their hands with law-breaking nor violence of their own.

The new school of Madia imports were flashy dressers, tough talkers, and triggered their own guns.

Gang battled gang in bloody ambushes on the mountain roads and in pitched gunfights in broad daylight in the city streets.

Violent Deaths

Palermo alone has counted 560 violent deaths since 1961, most of them attributed to the Mafia. Corelone, a town of only 20,000 perched in the bleak mountains 30 miles inland from Palermo, had 150 slayings in five years.

The brazen openness of the slaughter began to stir demands throughout Italy for stern police action.

Last July the tempest broke.

Mafia killers had been using dynamite charges, rigged to the batteries of automobiles of rival gangs, to wipe them out.

One such charge—more than 100 pounds of dynamite—blew up while police were examining a car. Seven policemen and two garage workers died. In distant Rome, Parliament acted. Carabinieri, Italy's national police, went on a war footing against the "Honored Society."

New Laws

New laws cut down the protection that even omerta had always given. Police were empowered to hold suspects almost indefinitely on open charges. Courts were authoried to exile men even suspected of being Mafia leaders. Permits to carry firearms were canceled.

In the first five weeks 800 suspects were rounded up. many eventually talked their way free. Hundreds were arrested.

By the end of May this year, 450 remained under precautionary arrest, 947 had been officially warned that police were watching them, 117 were placed under orders to report their whereabouts and activities to police each week, 59 had been exiled outside Sicily, and 447 others awaited court decision on possible exile.

Many were small fry. But police claimed they had some big fish in the pan, too.

1. Americans like their excitement.

2, Astonishingly, they work.

nbelievable

So on July 13 the Republicans ther in San Francisco; on ug. 24, the Democrats conerge on Atlantic City, and an nthropologist from another anet, studying the antics of e natives, would never guess is madness is expected to oduce a United States presint.

Even observers on this planet n't believe what they see.

The English political scientist, arold J. Laski, wrote:

"An American presidential nvention is like nothing else the civilized world."

In 1895 Thomas Hart Benton, flamboyant senator from Misuri, called the convention sysm one of the two greatest als taxing this nation's capay for self-government. The her was slavery.

ribal Ritual

Skipping lightly down 105 ars, let's turn to George Galp, an opinion sampler whose n opinions are strong on the ed for picking candidates by me new method.

"Party conventions resemble bal rituals," Gallup has said. Almost everything about them is phony. The spectacular campaigns and 'give 'em hell' speeches reduce office seeking to the intellectual level of professional wrestling."

Between Benton and Gallup hundreds of critics have had their say — and the convention system seems as entrenched as ever.

Why?

Not Simple

Like most political questions, no simple answer can be found, but:

—Conventions do whip up the enthusiasm needed to launch a campaign; indeed, they are an important part of it.

—They do provide a method, however macabre, for finding the necessary compromises.

—They have produced candidates who, if not all one could wish for, are incomparably better than the country has any right to expect.

—They do come up with an answer quickly. Imagine the U.S. Senate trying to devise a platform and pick a candidate.

—And they have passed that sternest of tests: survival.

Anti-Masons

The first national nominating convention in the modern sense was held by the anti-Masons at Baltimore in 1831.

That first convention was also the anti-Masons' last. Like so many early parties, they melted away.

But the deed had been done. Almost immediately conventions took on that glorious idiocy that distinguishes them to this day.

Listen to this description: "Imagine all the hogs ever slaughtered in Cincinnati giving their death squeals together, and a score of big steam whistles going together."

Whoop It Up

Approximately the same words will be written in San Francisco and Atlantic City, as true as they were when they told of a new party, the Republicans, whooping it up for a newcomer, Abraham Lincoln.

Murat Halstead, a bright 30-year-old Cincinnati reporter, attended all the 1860 conventions. Here he explains the difficulties that faced the Democratic convention in Charleston, S.C.:

"The platform must be drawn with elaborate ambiguity, and capable of two constructions, or the party must be divided."

"Elaborate ambiguity" — a perfect description of the modern platform on any really sticky issue.

Pious Speech

In 1860, as now, some preachers were confused. Had they come to pray or to politick?

At the National Constitutional Union convention in Baltimore, Halstead wryly observed:

"When the noise subsided, we had a prayer, a very fair pious political speech. It was written out and read from manuscript. The difficulty with it was to whom it was addressed—to the Lord or to the convention. It was very eloquent and well delivered."

The bands, the demonstrations, the endless oratory, all are so old and routine that unscheduled absurdities stick in mind.

Who can forget that hilarious moment in 1956 when Terry Carpenter, a Republican delegate from Nebraska, nominated a mythical Joe Smith for vice president?

"Joe who?" asked the chairman, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts.

"Joe Smith," said Terry Carpenter.

In the ensuing uproar Martin finally cried out in exasperation: "Take your Joe Smith and get out here!"

High Drama

If it's drama you're after, go back to the 1952 Republican convention where Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, a strong backer of Sen. Robert A. Taft, was trying to block Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Looking straight at Thomas E. Dewey, a two-time loser as a GOP presidential candidate and an Eisenhower man, Dirksen said:

"We followed you before, and you took us down the road to defeat."

Boos. Howls of disapproval. Bedlam.

Then—as if planned by an inspired playwright—comedy relief.

A baffled reading clerk found it impossible to poll the Puerto Rican delegation, even though it had but three members. Reading the dialogue now, featuring Marcelino Romani's cavalier view of the English accent, the words are but moderately amusing. On that taut night they sounded like perfect comedy.

Seek Winner

It must be remembered that, despite their fancy talk, the delegates don't really meet to pick a good president. They want a candidate who can win, and if he also happens to make a good president, hurrah! The nation can be grateful.

A candidate may be chosen simply because he hasn't done, or even said, anything of consequence. Nobody dislikes him.

Benjamin Harrison, elected president in 1888, got this dubious endorsement in his party's campaign book: "He had a good record and not too much of it."

Buildup

A candidate may be chosen as a result of a careful buildup.

Mark Hanna, boss of Ohio, pushed William McKinley so relentlessly that Theodore Roosevelt complained: "He has advertised McKinley as if he were a patent medicine."

The convention system has also produced Lincoln, Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt. But the English economist, Walter Bagehot, has said: "Success in a lottery is no argument for lotteries."

The problem boils down to this. Anyone can see a convention's flaws, but no one has devised anything better.

What's Better?

Joe Martin, who presided over five GOP conventions, a record, puts it this way.

"I always ask, 'What system would be better?' And I have yet to hear a convincing answer."

So, while watching the great American frolic this summer, recall the observation of the late H. L. Mencken:

"There is something about a national convention that makes it as fascinating as a revival or a hanging. It is vulgar, it is studied, it is tedious, it is hard upon both the higher cerebral centers and the gluteus maximus and yet it is somehow charming."

Geologists Star at Timmons

Brokers Take Over From Prospectors In New Ore Strike in Modern Alaska

BY SID MOODY

TIMMINS, Ont. (AP) — The greatest mining strike since the Klondike regularly makes the Wall Street Journal. But it will never make a Broadway musical. The old wild and woolly mining days have been bathed, barbered and beautified beyond recognition.

When Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. announced in April it had hit what could be a $1-billion strike of copper and silver, the miners came not by prairie schooner or dog team but company plane. They had college degrees and were more at home with Dun & Bradstreet than Smith & Wesson. The only killings have been in the stock markets.

Bonanza

It has been a bonanza befitting the organization man, the electric toothbrush and the pop-top beer can as you might expect of a monstrous mother lode discovered but 15 miles from the nearest A&P.

No ladies known as Lou can-can in the Timmins saloons. Instead a quintet known as the Stratotones twang their guitars in the Mattagami Motel. Six or seven helicopters roost in a field behind the Bon Air Motel. Some riverboat types from Detroit came up to start a floating crap game but it promptly faded. Everyone was too busy playing the stock market.

The Air Canada pilot lands his Viscount at the town airport—which has been claimed for mining by the International Nickel Co - and before his props have stopped spinning yells out the cockpit window to a bush pilot. "Any tips?"

Stock Talk

Driving into town the cab driver talks stocks. Some farms, cleared from the spruce and poplar forest, glow greenly in the afternoon sun. "Oh yes, we farm here. But every farm hopes his plow hits gold."

At the red brick Empire Hotel, unofficial headquarters for the bonanza, where they have packed them in four customers to a room, the two bars were crammed. In the Beverage Room, an austere chamber with swinging doors, hordes of unshaven drillers and timber cutters fresh out of the bush sturdily battled upstream against rivers of beer.

Next door in the more plush Fountain Court, geologists in khaki, helicopter pilots in boots, speculators in blue suits, mining executives with prim, rimless glasses poured through the doors. Townspeople, fresh from Timmins' two brokerage houses, came to weep or rejoice. They talk of mines, the ones they hit or just missed, the ones they may strike tomorrow.

Key Room

The key room in the Empire, however, is Suite 358 on the third floor. That's where the money is.

Several local men had gotten wind that Texas Gulf might be onto something big and had staked as much land as they could around the company's property. Then they rented Suite 358, loaded it with liquor and cigars and waited for the mining companies to come a'buying. This night 358 was filled with the town fathers who looked on the point of dancing a jig because the rainbow's pot of gold had turned up just beyond the city limits.

Indeed, once it had. Timmins was founded 50 years ago as a mining camp after one of the great gold strikes of North America. The gold has been running out, though, and the town's future had not been glittering—until last April.

More Ore

"Now we got 50 years of copper," boomed Vince Bon Homme, a vast-girthed real estate broker and officer in the Department of Industries. "When that runs out we'll drill for something else." He raised his glass on high in a pudgy fist and shouted French epithets at Mayor Leo Del Villano, who shot back in Italian. They both bent over with laughter.

Timmins had made it so big the mayor was on his way to New York to appear on the 'To Tell the Truth' television program. He already had made the wire services with a posed picture of him lighting the pipe of Don McKinnon with a $50 bill.

McKinnon is one of the local lads who struck it rich. The mayor got his ears burned on that one. Cuban refugees wrote indignantly they could better use the money to buy anti-Castro bullets. A California woman in hard straits wrote she needed money for her funeral.

Night Claim

Don McKinnon, a quiet, tanned man in his 30s, walked in and was roundly greeted by the men who were busily drinking his grog. He explained how he'd staked claims around Texas Gulf's property by night in snow and rain, then registered them at the mine recorder's office before going to work at his regular job as timber surveyor.

"I can't take a drink now," he said. "I have to take a canoe out into the bush to one of my crews. I can't stop now. I've waited too long for this."

How much had he made? "I don't know now, could be $3 million. What's the difference? It's a great opportunity for the area." And off he went back into the bush.

Gold Bricks

Not every one has been as high minded as McKinnon. There have been sharpers who sold valueless claims to the gullible or planted deliberate rumors to boom worthless stocks.

For a solid week after the Texas Gulf announcement you couldn't wedge your way into the town's two brokerage firms, T. A. Richardson and Doherty, Roadhouse & McQuaig Bros. Sidewalks outside were packed. You were lucky to even get a phone call through.

Those who got in early and got out at the top could have increased their stake tenfold playing on the so-called penny mining stocks. Some did. Many, more — housewives and their husbands dipping into the savings account, school children pooling their lunch money, homeowners mortgaging their houses — got burned, badly.

Radio Report

"I'd say 30 per cent of the people, many of whom never played the market before, lost," said Dan Kelly of station CKGB who broadcasts every half hour with reports direct from Doherty, Roadhouse.

Down at the mine office Recorder C D Ezerton has hired eight extra people to file some 11,000 claims submitted since April 1. Last year he filed 1,900.

The rush was so fantastic people hired helicopters to fly them into the swampy bush — locally known as Moose pasture — to stake claims and then fly them back to the recorder's office.

There are thousands out in the bush, skilled geologists and French-Canadian timber cutters who haven't been out of muskeg since Easter. Their camps range from the orderly, tented company town of Texas Gulf to a couple of tents strung in the forest.
